COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BLUEBIRD

Sialia sialis

Length, about six and one-half inches.

Range: Breeds in the United States (west to Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana), southern Canada, Mexico, and Guatemala; winters in the southern half of the eastern United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: The bluebird is one of the most familiar tenants of the farm and dooryard. Everywhere it is hailed as the harbinger of spring, and wherever it chooses to reside it is sure of a warm welcome. This bird, like the robin, phoebe, house wren, and some swallows, is very domestic in its habits. Its favorite nesting sites are crannies in the farm buildings or boxes made for its use or natural cavities in old apple trees. For rent the bird pays amply by destroying insects, and it takes no toll from the farm crop. The bluebird's diet consists of 68 per cent of insects to 32 per cent of vegetable matter. The largest items of insect food are grasshoppers first and beetles next, while caterpillars stand third. All of these are harmful except a few of the beetles. The vegetable food consists chiefly of fruit pulp, only an insignificant portion of which is of cultivated varieties. Among wild fruits elderberries are the favorite. From the above it will be seen that the bluebird does no essential harm, but on the contrary eats many harmful and annoying insects.

visiting near friends at Camp Funston, as many of the boys will depart soon for the war zone.

The Misses Mary and Martha Burdon returned Tuesday from a very pleasant visit with their brother at Camp Funston.

There are three ways God calleth men to repentance. Today is the day of salvation and the day you hear My voice harden not your heart.

Can a man glorify God in his body, with his mouth full of tobacco, spitting out the filthy stuff for somebody else to clean up? Read God's command: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do ALL to the glory of God." (I Cor. x:31.)

The Patriotic Children's day program will be a grand affair at the Baptist Sunday school, June 9.

If you want good, substantial clothes instead of mere pretty lining buy from YOUNG. Don't be misled. Call and ask us anything concerning clothes.—Adv.

News of the death of Mr. Peter Turner of Omaha was received as a shock to Lincoln friends, where he lived for over thirty years. Mrs. Pricilla Ross and Mrs. Jessie Beard, his daughters, were summoned to his bedside.
