

THE Kiddies' Korner

Madree Penn

MAY

The whistle of the meadow lark; The dew-kissed morning glory; The perfume of cherry blossoms; The songs of praises.

It's seven o'clock morning in May! The month of May is a beautiful month. In it come some of the most wonderful things we know. It is the time for deliverance, of rebirth, of blossom. All through the realm of nature sweeps a surge of rising life, bursting its bounds at last, in a flood of bud and blossom, and blade and song.

Last fall the glorious hued leaves, one by one, reluctantly parted from the boughs and were whirled away into the great unknown. Then winter threw her thick, white blanket over all; and nature slept. The whirling March winds and the clean April showers have come and gone.

Now, May is here! Wonderful May! Beautiful May! May with its warm sun and sweet smelling flowers, and its brilliant choruses of feathered sweet singers!

We are also so glad and thankful, aren't we kiddies? It's fine being alive and happy. And so, we are going to make everyone we meet just a little happier because we are. Once a very wise man said:

"All who joy would win must share it: Happiness was born a twin."

To his only forgotten son, God gave the sweetest gift he had—a human mother.

Literary Lore

What poem is it that bubbles as it goes? The brook.

What poem rules in spring? The May Queen.

What poem belongs to the kiddies? The Children's Hour.

"Out of the Mouths of Babies"

Johnny lived in a household where the folks were always talking about making money, building corporations, floating stocks, etc. One day he walked up to his older brother and said: "Bob, I got a good scheme for getting rich. We can give the people in this town some of the things they want and it won't cost us a cent."

"How is that?" asked Bob.

"Well," said Johnny, "Grandma has gas in her stomach, sister has electricity in her hair and you say that cousin Chauncey has water on the brain."

"Harry," said his mother sternly,

"isn't that a hole you have had in your stocking since morning?"

"No, mother," said Harry.

"But what is it, then, if it isn't a hole?" said his mother.

"My leg, mother," said Harry.

ENGLISH SPARROW

Passer domesticus

Length, about six and one-fourth inches. Its incessant chattering, quarrelsome disposition, and abundance and familiarity about human habitations distinguish it from our native sparrows.

Range: Resident throughout the United States and southern Canada.

Habits and economic status: Almost universally condemned since its introduction into the United States, the English sparrow has not only held its own, but has ever increased in numbers and extended its range in spite of all opposition. Its habit of driving out or even killing more beneficial species and the defiling of buildings by its droppings and by its own unsightly structures, are serious objections to this sparrow. Moreover, in rural districts, it is destructive to grain, peas, beans, and other vegetables. On the other hand, the bird feeds to some extent on a large number of insect pests, and this fact points to the need of a new investigation of the present economic status of the species, especially as it promises to be of service in holding in check the newly introduced alfalfa weevil, which threatens the alfalfa industry in Utah and neighboring states. In cities most of the food of the English sparrow is waste material secured from the streets.

You can't always measure a statesman's generosity by the way he votes funds out of the public treasury.

OLD-TIME TOOTH POWDER AD

Printed in Scottish Newspaper in 1660, in All Probability It Was the First.

One of those individuals who has leisure enough to dig into the records of days long past, has unearthed what is said to be the first advertisement ever published of a preparation for cleansing and preserving the teeth. It appeared 258 years ago, and, though the language is a bit involved, the writer needed no lessons from modern publicity experts in claiming virtues for his product. The ad was printed in the Mercurius Politicus of Leith, Scotland, in 1660, and reads:

"Most Excellent and Approved Dentifrices to scour and cleanse the Teeth, making them white as Ivory; preserves from Toothache; so that being constantly used, the parties using it are never troubled with the Toothache; it fastens the Teeth, sweetens the Breath and preserves the Mouth and Gums from Canker and Imposthumes. Made by Robert Turner, Gentleman; and the rights are only to be had at Thomas Rooker, Stationer, at the Holy Lamb at the East end of St. Paul's Church, near the School, in sealed papers at 12d the paper. The reader is desired to beware of counterfeiters."

Fortunately Placed.

"Robin Hood was lucky."
"In what way?"
"He lived early enough to be known by a comparatively respectable title instead of being called a bolshevik!"

Miners as Gardeners.
The growing of leeks is a favorite occupation of the miners of Northumberland, England. They are skillful gardeners and particularly proud of their leeks, in the cultivation of which there is keen competition.

Thought Rules the World.

In the end thought rules the world. There are times when impulses and passions are more powerful, but they soon expend themselves; while mind, acting constantly, is ever ready to drive them back and work when their energy is exhausted.—McCosh.

Insects and Forest Fires.

Insects cause the destruction of more timber that would otherwise be available for building purposes than do forest fires, according to investigations made by the bureau of entomology at Washington.—People's Home Journal.
