STOLZENFELS on the RHINE

Stolzenfels on the Rhine.

By STEPHEN DOUGHTON.

THE ex-kaiser has a somewhat marvelous ex-palace, known as Stolzenfels, with quite wonderful floors—really quite the last word in wooden floors; so fine, indeed, that a very considerable part of a very considerable army of invasion views them with some degree of awe as it glides over them not in the hob-nailed shoes of the army but in very soft felt slippers that slip on over the army boots. That's how careful the Yankee boys are of the ex-kaiser's ex-property on the Rhine just a few minutes walk south from Coblenz.

Stolzenfels is part of the scenery which is included in any tourist's first-class trip up or down the Rhine. It sits high on a cliff with an approach so steep that even the man who brags eternally about the hills he "takes on high" would have to admit it's quite a grind "in low."

Parties formed under a Y. M. C. A. guide leave the "Y" headquarters, Fest hall, Coblenz, every day at 1:15 to make this trip. As there are 2,000 soldiers in Coblenz every day on leave and 13,000 stationed in and about the town, many men are always available and anxious to take the trip.

Old Keeper Is Amusing. The old keeper amuses the boys. He clucks about like an old hen, afraid the invaders, in the vernacular of the army, will salvage a few souvenirs. To those who speak a little German he tells how he has been on the ex-kaiser's payroll for some forty years, always keeping the horse spile and span against the day when Bill might drop in—only he doesn't call him Bill. These trips are conducted by H. B.

Hinman, a "Y" man of Everett, Wash., who shows the soldiers through the castle chapel, pointing out frescoes on a gold ground by Deger, the Life of Christ, the Creation, the Fall of Man, the Last Day, and in another room a rather outstanding fresco by Lasinsky, showing a Mr. Hohenzollern of an older generation paying a visit to the bishop of Trier.

Careful of the Fine Floors.

Then the boys pass on into the corridor that leads to the rooms with the particularly choice floors inlaid with three different kinds of hardwood. The guide slips his feet into a pair of felt slippers, large enough to cover an army shoe. The boys take it sort of for granted and do likewise and soon they are gliding, like a Chinaman on a slippery pavement, across the smooth floors.

"Pretty soft for the old kaiser," remarks a doughboy. "to have the army come up here and polish his floors for him," and so it is.

The soldiers take in all the natural appearances of a well-regulated castle with great interest. They view old pieces of armor, costly and elaborate wood carvings, good paintings, the kaiser's own personal dining room, the rich drinking vessels and tankards. They are making the best of their stay in the vicinity of Germany's favorite little river, the Rhine, and are storing up "hencoop knowledge" against the day when curious ones at home shall be asking them about all the sights overseas.

The trip is part of the joint efforts of the army and the "Y" to entertain soldiers on leave, for Coblenz, in addition to being Third army headquarters, is also leave center.

MIND THEIR OWN BUSINESS

People of the Faroe Islands Cannot Truthfully Be Accused of Undue Curiosity.

The Faroe Islands are a bleak and rain-swept group lying on the steamer route between Norway and Iceland. They are recommended to the traveler who would escape the prying eye of curiosity and the stare of the crowd. A man with a great secret in his life could emigrate to the Faroes, secure in the consciousness that he might live there for 20 years and his neighbors would probably never even wonder why he came.

Every visitor to the little archipelago notices this characteristic attitude of mild indifference on the part of the natives, so different from the usual frank curiosity shown by isolated peoples in strangers from foreign lands. The islanders are kindly enough, but they do not go out of their way to show it. They are completely immersed in their own humdrum concerns of fishing and farming, and they would hardly look up from their plowing to watch an airplane fly over. It is said that when their ruling sovereign came over on a state visit to the islands it was necessary to go out among the people and urge them to crowd in the capital city and stage something resembling an enthusiastic welcome. At that most of them got bored and went home before the celebration was half over.

Old-Time Ceremonies.

In olden times the festival of Easter was celebrated with many ceremonies and sports. Then, as now, colored eggs were given. In some places the children rolled them down hillsides. In a royal roll of the time of Edward I preserved in the Tower, appears an entry of 18 pence for 400 eggs to be used for Easter gifts. Town authorities engaged with due dignity in games of ball. It is recorded also that on Easter Monday the women had a right to strike their husbands and on Tuesday the men struck their wives, as in December the servants scolded their masters. From a German authority it is learned that in the Neumark on Easter day the men servants whip the maid servants with switches and on Monday the maids whip the men. In some parts of Germany parents and children try to surprise each other in bed on Easter morning to apply the health-giving switches.

SOME GOOD COMPANY DISHES.

It is a pleasure, when entertaining our friends, to give them something unusual and attractive.

Ham With Cider.

Have a thick slice of ham cut, lay it in the frying pan and quickly sear it over on both sides then add a cupful of sweet cider, a tablespoonful of parsley and let it simmer for an hour on the back of the stove or in the oven. Serve with the sauce poured around the ham and garnish with parsley.

Fried Chicken Southern Style.—Joint a fat young chicken, dredge it with flour, salt and pepper and place on a platter. In a deep frying pan, try out a half-pound of bacon, add one cupful of lard and when smoking hot lay in the pieces of chicken; turn when brown, giving the thicker pieces longer time to cook. Place on a hot platter and garnish with watercress.

Rhubarb Baked With Figs.—Cover well washed figs with water (boiling) and cook until the water is nearly evaporated. Cut a pound of unpeeled rhubarb into inch pieces, put a layer into a baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, then add a few figs; repeat until the dish is full. Add a few tablespoonfuls of water and bake covered in a slow oven until the fruit is tender.

Frozen Boston Pudding.—Grate a half-pound of brown bread a day old, pour over it a pint of cream, boiling hot, and let it stand until cool. Prepare a rich boiled custard, using a pint of milk, three eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Cook until the custard coats the spoon. When frozen remove the cream to a chilled platter and cover with crumbs of macaroons. The cream may be packed in a mold dusted with the crumbs and let stand packed in ice for several hours to delect the flavor.

Blueberry Cake.—This is an old-fashioned dish which one never refuses. Cream a tablespoonful of butter, add a cupful of sugar, and when well mixed, two unbeaten eggs. Beat five minutes, add a teaspoonful of vanilla a few gratings of nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with two cupfuls of flour; then add a pint of well-floured blueberries. Bake in loaf and serve warm with butter.
