SPLITTING THE PLATE
By John A. Tholmer, The Prophet

Texas' illustrious governor in a recent address to citizens of the outlaw state declared that Texas was for Texans. Which we presume was intended to mean for white ones, inasmuch as it is well known that Colored persons there cannot own themselves unless by grace of the tyrants.

Therefore, it has come to pass that the pale face has proved to be such a mighty man that his darker brother found it, not only advisable; but profitable to follow his lead.

Texas for Texans (white ones), America for Americans. (We fear that had such been true the old standard would never be endangered.) As it stands for white ones and foreigners who (fortunately or unfortunately) are not of yelof, brown or black blood, first and after.

Japan, the little island empire, strong arm of the far east, a crafty imitator, seems to be laboring under the same advanced idea, if advanced it can be called, and is without doubt heading for the same straight. "Asia for Asiatics."

That, it appears, is a reasonably fair game. You keep me out of your home, I'll keep you away from my household. If it's sauce for the gander why should it be otherwise for the goose?

That it will not be otherwise is an assured fact. Now, vipers may wiggle and snakes may hiss and twist, but the show down is in the making, the day of the reckoning is surely at hand.

From afar in the darkness I hear a voice saying: "Give an account of thy stewardship." What will the answer be?

A news item from Pine Bluffs, Ark., September 3, says. Flinton Briggs, aged 26, a discharged Negro soldier was lynched near Star City, Ark., Monday afternoon.

He was charged with having insulted a young white woman. (No account as to reason.)

Such reports are not surprising to the public, but that Texas Negroes representing St. John's Missionary Baptist society in session at Austin could go on record having passed a resolution condemning the people of the north for trying to keep the lash off their backs is galling in the extreme.

I have long held that what the Negro needs is more real manhood and much less religious hypocrisy to gain a foothold among men and win respect.

What does white Texas care for all the would-be sanctified "niggers" in the world? Yet one Wright Cuney's shadow could make the cowards slink away to cover.

Can it be possible that some beings masquerading under the cloak of agents of God will so prostitute themselves that they are willing to see their brothers destroyed and their sisters despoiled simply to be called "good niggers?"

Is there not one Negro preacher in the Lone Star state with one drop of blood in his makeup like Bishop Turner's? True indeed, Texas long ago ruled: She knows what to do with her "niggers."

Despite the oft repeated boasts of the south that if all of its Negroes went north she would be benefited and furthermore would gladly furnish the necessary traveling equipment as not only would it be an act of ridding the southland of so much rubbish, but the ever threatening cloud of black rapists, a continual menace to the white womanhood also now. For several years the Colored man to escape oppression has been drifting away from the southern task master to climes where he can at least rest in the safety of his household after his honest toil. And now comes the wail from Dixie: "Come back Henry, come back to the old millstone; I and the missus and the children as well as the dogs and the cattle miss you sore."

"Nay, nay, says Henry; not me. You can't fool me no more." "I see you goin' to say right here." The south may raise as much corn, cane and cotton as ever, but she'll pay for it if white men have to work in the fields instead of blacks. No more sixty cents a day extending from "kin-see to kant see." Then again why should Dixie want Henry at their daughter's side again?

Eugene Scott, a Colored bellboy, was killed here early Monday morning by police officers who went to raid the Plaza hotel. County Attorney Abe Shotwell conducted a fair and rigid investigation. Three Colored men and three whites were members of the coroner's jury. E. Holman, a railroad detective, was indicted for the crime. Omaha in general voiced its disapproval of the killing which was cowardly, unprovoked and unwarranted. Yet people wonder why Negroes are leaving the south, where Negroes have no rights that whites are inclined to respect and much less forced to regard. I'll say Omaha is very unlike Dixie land towns that buy medals for white law officers who murder inoffensive Colored men to add glory to their records of misdeeds and to gain promotions. It must also be remembered that the county attorney, elected by the people to a position of honor and trust, did not plead too busy because the victim happened to be a Colored man. Show me the southern burg that shows such fairness and I'll take you to the zoo of flying elephants. Let there be peace, but always with righteousness the main aim.

Texas is mighty? The chief executive said that all outsiders who came into its confines to tell them how they should dispose of their property (the Colored people) should be sent out of the state with broken jaws.

He mentioned no names, but we have a sneaking opinion that he had in mind John Shillady who was beaten by toughs in Austin recently. Well to tell a long tale quickly he may yet get his chance to make his say good. He is so strong in the Lone Star state that it's a cinch he might mingle with the hoi poi in Washington society sooner or later.

Big Athletic John lives in lil old Noo Yawk and happens to drop into the burg where the white house sets, at times.

Peradventure, Shillady should bump into Hobby along the avenue some fine afternoon: Oh, boy! All I know is that I'd like to be close enough to fall into a ringside seat to enjoy the festivities. Who'd score the winning hit? You know, so don't be foolish and ask silly questions.

Bet I could make a boodle big enough to strangle the whale that swallowed Jonah telling the fellows who'd be unfortunate enough not to be in on the show, the details of hostilities. It sho' would make good readin'.

Most men think their fathers fools, And call their own wisdom just right; Yet still they live by grace of rules, Their sires proved by sheer light.

Wonder if the fellow who wrote the golden rule: "Honesty is the best policy," was caught in the act or convicted on circumstantial evidence?

Abraham Lincoln, one of the greatest men born since Jesus' time, made up in true statesmanship for what he lacked in ability to use flowery language. On the other hand, Woodrow Wilson's every expression is so filled with eloquence that if they were of sound reasoning we would be inclined to the belief that he is the long looked for Messiah.
Play ball: Tomorrow.

PHYSICAL CULTURE AND SPORTS John A. Tholmer

Let every youngster who would like to cause Noah and Methuselah a bit of worry lest they see their records for longevity over topped begin right and now.

Sure we're going to have a hard job dodging automobiles and falling airplanes for five or six hundred years and still live to cast our ballots on election day a few centuries later. But nothing beats a try, and we had better make up our minds and be quick about it.

The good book tells us of how the boys of Adam's time of two and three hundred years of age used to get to roost about the same hour the egg layers did: That is, we can read between the lines how Cain and his brother, Abel, stuck close to the domicile long before papa Adam blew the horn for retirement, as soon as the sun had tucked itself away. There the two babies of several score years slumbered in peace till the morrow. Now it must not be overlooked that it has never been definitely revealed why brother Cain used brother Abel's bean for a ball which he no doubt endeavored to knock for a homer.

We have always had a sneaking sentiment that we have the key to the mystery of the quarrel: But as no trial was ever called we thought it best to say no more on the matter. Yes, those kids of a few hundred years old used to pull off stunts like the boys of ten and twelve of the present day and live to grow whiskers two yards long.

The only reason we die soon is because we age too rapidly. Yes, we arrive at manhood much earlier than did the boys of five and six thousand years ago and about the time we should be asking mamma's permission to call on Mrs. Mary's girl, who is nearly a hundred and who has invited us to spend a few moments, we ourselves have long been the principal figures in the show that slowly winds its reel to happy hollow as the orchestra peals out its direful notes.

Certainly Mr. Adam's children did not have movie shows and all those things to worry about and neither did they have sweet cakes and candies and ice cream sundaes and soda to trouble them, to say nothing of eight dollar kicks and six bone ping pong hats and knock 'em silly suits of clothes and watches and chains and rocks and other jewelry to dazzle 'em; so they lived plain, very plain—just like us newspaper guys do.

And the result was that they got their names in the papers for being great fellows and the fellows who made the books copied it from the papers and put it in the book and it's been handed down to us to read. That's how we come to know what the old timers did.

Sure they lived a long time, because they lived right.

Follow these articles and learn how they grew strong and healthy and lived long.
