THE CAMELS' WALK.

"I've heard children talking," said the camel with two humps, known as the Bactrian Camel.

"So have I," said the camel with one hump, known as the Dromedary.

"Well, that doesn't take anything away from the fact that I've heard them," said the Bactrian Camel. His name was Carlton, while the camel with the single hump was named Davey Dromedary.

"No, I never said it did," said Davey. "Of course it doesn't take anything away from that fact, nothing at all. What makes you think it does?"

"Because," said Carlton, "when I start to say something about myself you start in to say the same thing."

"I'm only agreeing with you," said Davey.

"You can agree with me without saying you did the same thing or heard the same thing. You are like some creatures," continued Carlton, "who never hear anyone who knows anything, or has had any fun or any interesting experience that they don't want to step in and say they'd had something just as interesting happen."

"I didn't step anywhere but straight ahead," said Davey.

"You know what I mean," said Carlton.

"Oh, all right," said Davey; "what did you hear children say?"

"I heard them talking about the joys of riding the camels in the zoo and I wanted to tell them that once I was in a circus and I had handsomely dressed ladies riding on me."

Davey was just about to say that he, too, had been in a circus, but then he remembered his story wouldn't be a very good one because he hadn't given children or handsome ladies or anyone a ride. He was rather small in comparison with Carlton.

"Yes," continued Carlton, "life in the circus was very interesting, and if the children come to the show I will tell them about it, if I can take the time away from my chewing."

"Do you suppose you will be able to take the time away from that?" asked Davey.

"That's the whole trouble," said Carlton. "I very much doubt it. Yes, I very much doubt it, indeed."

"So do I," said Davey. "I may say that much, may I not? I see you're not feeling so pleasant today and we'd better be friendly or we'll do the show great harm, great harm."

"I'm feeling pleasant," said Carlton, "and I don't mind having you or any other creature relate interesting adventures and experiences."

"Only, it does make me a little mad when I think that there are some creatures who will never, never, never let anyone else tell a story that they don't say: 'Oh, yes, I know all about that. I had the same thing happen to me, only more so!'"

"You were about to get into that bad habit, Davey," said the camel, with the two humps. "I stopped you in time, for you're a nice dromedary."

"Thank you," said Davey.

"Yes, you say something that is true when you say that you don't know whether I'll be able to stop chewing long enough to tell the children my story."

"I'm not sure that I will have time. Anyway, I am doing my duty now, and you are, too, Davey."

"Thank you," said Davey, "for mentioning me, too. Yes, we couldn't quarrel now, for here we are, walking in this city street, and we're to walk around some others, and we're all dressed up with capes or shawls or something of the sort, which say that there is going to be a show tonight and where it is going to be. In other words, we're advertising these shows. We're doing good work."

"I know we are," said Carlton.

"We're attracting attention, notice, the looks of people and children. That is, we're not getting their looks so we'll look like them instead of us, but we're making them look at us and they're reading our signs."

"I guess, come to think of it," said Carlton, "that after this long city walk advertising the show I'll have to take a good rest when the children come to see me and will have to do nothing else but chew."

"I feel the same way about it," said Davey.

More Blessed to Give.

Father—Jimmy, why did you beat Neighbor Smith's little boy so shamefully?

Jimmy—You told me to.

Father—I told you to! Why, my son, what do you mean?

Jimmy—Didn't you tell me the other day that it was more blessed to give than to receive?

Father—Yes, but—

Jimmy—Well, I had to give him a hickin' or receive one.

A Giveaway.

Bobby, aged six, answered the door when his big sister's new beau called. "Where's your sister?" he was asked.

"Upstairs putting herself on," was Bobby's rather startling answer.

NEGRO HIGH SCHOOL PROPOSED FOR KANSAS CITY, KANSAS

A junior high school for Negro students is part of a plan of school improvements proposed by the board of education of Kansas City, Kas., in asking an issue of bonds of $1,500,000.

At a meeting recently, M. F. Pearson, superintendent, submitted to the board plans for various improvements. One of these was the building of a 14-room junior high school for Negroes. A new junior high school is proposed in the northwest section of the city to relieve the congestion of Quindaro, Bryant, Hawthorne, Abbott and Chelsea schools.

PARENTS' LEAGUE PLAN TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Colored Parents' League Adopts Resolutions Decriing Secret Nature of Recent Inquiry.

(Special to The Monitor, by Walter J. Singleton.)

Washington, D. C.—Plans for carrying on its fight for the removal of Roscoe C. Bruce from the head of the colored schools, despite the action of the board of education in finding M. Bruce competent, were discussed by the Colored Parents' League at a meeting in the Vermont Avenue Baptist church last night.

Resolutions were adopted decriing what the league regarded as the secret nature of the board's investigation and asking the board to give the league a copy of the testimony taken.

The meeting was enlivened by the assertion of Mrs. C. M. Tanner, president of the league, that Rev. Dr. John Van Schaick was elected president of the school board on the vote of a colored members who, according to M. Tanner, believed there would be an open inquiry into the Bruce case. Dr. Van Schaick was elected.

Discussing the matter today, Mrs. Tanner said the colored member in question was Fountain Peyton, and that she asked him to vote for Dr. Van Schaick because she believed it would be in the interest of what the league was working for.

Dr. Henry B. Learned, chairman of the committee of the school board which investigated the Bruce case, stated today that he expects to complete by tomorrow the majority report of the committee, representing himself and Mrs. Coralie F. Cook, said he would submit copies to all the members of the board as soon as it is finished, but that it remained with the board to say whether it should be made public.

Mr. Peyton, the third and dissenting member of the committee, said he expected to have his minority report ready for the next meeting of the board and would make every effort to have the board make it public.

PROHIBITION INCREASES THRIFT AND CONTRIBUTES TO PROGRESS

Westerville, O., Oct. 15.—From this partant departments of the Anti-Saloon League of America, its officials say, will be the home missionary work.

This work will be done among not only the foreign-speaking element of the United States, but also among other large classes, including Negroes.

The Negroes of America own 20,000,000 acres of land, 500,000 homes, 64 banks, 398 newspapers and periodicals, and 31,393 churches worth $26,000,000.

There are 4,000 Negro physicians in the United States, 2,000 Negro lawyers and 1,000 trained Negro nurses;

750,000 Negroes have migrated into the northern states from the south since 1916.

It is quite likely, in the opinion of league men, that a special department will handle the work of the Negroes.

Prohibition in the southern states, it is agreed by both white and colored men, has been of inestimable benefit to the Negroes.

PROF. G. DAVID HOUSTON HEADS BUSINESS COURSE

Washington, D. C.—Appointment of Prof. G. David Houston, head of the English department of Howard university, to direct business training in the colored high schools of the district has been announced.

Prof. Houston holds the degree of A. B. and M. A. from Harvard university and is regarded as one of the foremost colored teachers of the country. He formally taught at Tuskegee Institute and at Baltimore high schools. The position as head of business practice in local high schools was created in the last appropriation bill. The colored high schools have had a business course for some time, but it has not been under an organized head thus far. It is expected that the business training will be broadened under the direction of Prof. Houston.
