

PICKENS SPEAKING ON PACIFIC COAST

Noted Orator and Scholar Pleasing Large Audiences and Attracting Attention—Gives His Views on the Japanese Question

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Nov. 25.—William Pickens, the noted Negro scholar and orator, is addressing large mixed audiences in this section of the country and incidentally taking note of the social and economic problems which are holding the special interest of people all along the Pacific coast line. He has been accorded a hearty reception wherever he has appeared and his opinions on public questions have been eagerly sought.

In a recent interview he has this to say on the "Japanese Question" as it appears to him:

"You must have noticed that when one is prejudiced against you, your very virtues become vices in his sight. As an outsider I have been interested to note the 'accusations' which the white man of the Pacific coast naively makes against the Japanese.

"I have heard them complain, as I rode with them on the trains, that the 'Japs' have all the business in such-and-such a little coast town—that they cater in some other places—that their restaurants sell more food for the same money than any white restaurant (think how a white restaurant would be praised if this could be said of it)—that they make more out of leased acreage than the whites can make out of the farms which they own—that they are anxious to get land—that they stick together—and that pretty generally they show a disposition to thrive where the white man fails.

"Just think of a race being 'accused' of all this crime! More than that, I saw one great San Francisco daily complaining against the Japanese high birth rate and the child-bearing superiority of the Nippon women. It was contemptuously said that one out of every thirteen babies born in California last year was a 'Japlet,' which is far above the proportion of the Japanese population. It seems, too, that while less than ten per cent of California's white women bore children, more than twenty-eight per cent of the Japanese women bore children.

"How in the world are Japanese men to blame for this? Is it not a relic of the savage that causes us to curse in another race the qualities which we would praise in our own? It reminds me that in South Carolina for generations the Negro has been 'accused' of wanting to wear good clothes, to live in fine houses, to eat the best food, to vote, to hold office to go to college, to enter the professions, to get more pay for his work (of course they put it the other way about; to do less work for his pay).

and in general 'to be like white folks.' "May Allah and Allah and the God of the Christians save all the colored races from the 'virtues' which the medieval starbusts of the white race would like to see other races endowed with."

Mr. Pickens will be in California for several weeks and will make a number of addresses in many of the large cities in the central section of the state.

INDIANS FIRST TO HAVE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

(By The Associated Negro Press) ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 25.—The Indians, long before the advent of white men to America, had a "league of nations" to prevent war and allowed suffrage to women, according to Miss Jane Zane Gordon of Los Angeles Calif., descendant of the Wyandotte tribe. She is a delegate to the convention of the Society of American Indians, in session here. The "league" dissolved, she said, on the arrival of the whites. She said the "league's" officers were nominated by the women.
