LINCOLN NEWS IN BRIEF

Messrs. M. G. Wright and G. W. Bullock of The Monitor staff of Omaha were in the city last Friday and Saturday on business.

Mrs. E. A. West is reported somewhat improved at this time.

Mr. Jack Spicer is confined with the rheumatism.

The N. A. A. C. P. held a rousing meeting in the Newman last Monday night, and quite a few were in attendance. The next meeting will be with the Morning Star Baptist church, corner Twenty-first and Q streets, Monday, December 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wiley entertained the Eutopian Art club at their home 1124 O street, last Thursday night. They report a good attendance and successful meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Williams have returned from St. Joseph, Mo., where they attended the funeral of their father.

At Mt. Zion Baptist church last Sunday the pastor delivered two interesting messages to his congregation. The Sabbath School and B. Y. P. U. services were well attended. Preparations are being made for the Christmas program to be given December 24. Services for Sunday, December 19, will be as usual. The public is invited.

Rev. McAlister of the Newmar Methodist church held his rally last Sunday. In the afternoon there were special services, and all pastors and churches were invited to take part. Rev. H. W. Botts of Mt. Zion Baptist church did himself and his hearers credit in the message he delivered. Amount raised for the day netted over $100.

The annual union services will be held in Mt. Zion Baptist church on Christmas morning at 11 o'clock.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Michoes, a fine baby boy last week.

NEW FALL STYLES

Light and Airy Colors Is Prediction for Season.

Designers Are Endeavoring to Eliminate Lines Which Will Give Wearer Broad Appearance.

Tea time in fashionable places is a most fascinating hour this time of the year, as we are all tired of sport clothes and this affords an opportunity of seeing something decidedly new in little afternoon frocks, according to a fashion authority.

It is going to continue to be a fall season of light airy colors—cream lace for afternoon wear and black lace for evening wear—quite the reverse of what we have been accustomed to.

A charming frock worn at tea by a blonde miss was deep ecru pussy willow taffeta and an overdress of fishnet lace in cream color. A wide ribbon girdle with immense bow and streamer ends in the back was of wide ribbon in light tobacco brown. The whole dress carried three tones of the lighter shades of brown beautifully blended. The hat worn was one of the newer models, a medium-sized rolling brim. It was a brown duvetyne, beautifully hand embroidered in several oriental shades. The crown, semi-Tam O'Shanter effect, was of silver metallic embroidery trimmed on one side with a soft bow of glossy brown satin ribbon.

Black lace certainly reigns supreme for semievening affairs.

Whether a coat is long or short, wide or narrow at the bottom, or a wrap of conservative rich velvet or any other popular material, the designers are endeavoring to eliminate any lines which will give the wearer a broad appearance.

The majority of suit coats are almost knee length, many unbelted and slightly flaring at the bottom, but not rippled, although a few show pointed insets of contrasting materials.

One suit was most novel, showing a cape instead of a coat. The skirt was made on plain, straight lines, the material being rusty gold-colored duvetyne, the bottom finished with a five-inch band of the same material in dull delft blue duvetyne and around the bottom was a band of the gold-colored duvetyne put on underneath as a facing and it had no other lining. The large draped collar was of the same material as the skirt proper.

Suit collars generally are not as large as last season. The choker types coming in strongly, especially if made of fur, are pulled through a loop, giving a double-breasted effect, but on capes they appear very large and draped quite full, whether made of fur or material.

While set-in sleeves predominate many are showing the kimono and wrap style. Raglan or semiraglan with a single seam in the back or front, or one piece are also found. The bell-shape bottoms are not neglected this season.

Dandruff Is A Warning

If you are bothered with dandruff and itching scalp it ought to be a warning to you. There is danger of baldness ahead. Don't delay, but begin at once to use

Painting on Spider's Web.

Painting on spider web is done in Norway and the pictures are framed like any other drawing. The webs employed which are of a very dense weave are found only in few localities difficult of access, and the supply of them is limited.
