5223 So. 25th Phone Market 3475 O. J. Burkhardt, Pastor

Sunday was an interesting day. Congregations were not large, but all enjoyed a real interesting day of worship. The Sunday school was well attended and also the League. At 11 a. m. the Pastor preached from Heb. 6-1, on "Christian Perfection." At 8 p. m. Rev. A. Rayford preached. Next Sunday is Mother's Day. A great day, in fact, we hope all who respect their Mothers and can, may attend some church upon this day.

Dickerson, secretary-treasurer. A committee consisting of Dr. W. W. Peebles, W. G. Haynes and Emery R. Smith, was appointed to complete details of organization, which are to be simple and democratic. The club will hold its next meeting on the second Monday in June.

N. A. A. C. P.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People met at Mt. Moriah Baptist church last Sunday. Mr. J. R. Garrett accepted the vice-presidency to fill the unexpired term of Milton L. Hunter, resigned. The president urged each chairman to double their efforts in the next few months and let us help to put the Dyer Anti-Lynching bill across. He stated that unless the bill passed this congress it would probably be years before such a bill would be introduced again.

Mr. J. W. Alexander spoke of the need of another U. S. Grant to break up the Ku Klux Klan. He said there had only been one and he was fearless and fought them with their own weapons. Quite a bit of criticism was made of President Harding and his inactivity insofar as our group was concerned, and all indications are that the Negro is fast learning that he owes no fealty to the Republican party. The next meeting of the branch will be held at Freestone Baptist church, 26th street between Caldwell and Hamilton streets.

WHERE MONEY HAS NO VALUE

Natives of Small Greek City Do All Business by the Primitive System of Barter.

William McFee wrote to the Fruit Dispatch, the magazine of the United Fruit company, on one of whose "Great White Fleet" he sails as chief engineer, that he has recently visited a community in which money is so valueless that it will not buy a fig or a piece of cheese. At Megalavahdi, a little Greek city built on a mountainside so steep that each citizen plants his garden on his neighbor's roof, trade is conducted by barter.

In the market place cheese, figs, raisins, hens, geese and goats are transmutated into one another without the aid of coin or scrip. Mr. McFee wished to buy a basket of fine figs and a bottle of wine and having no change, drew from his pocket a five-ruble gold piece. He instantly found himself an object of suspicion.

The owner of the figs and wine expressed in vigorous pantomime her fixed refusal, nor would any of the neighbors consider the money. The interpreter who came to McFee's assistance looked grave and said the only thing to do was to take figs and wine without giving anything save a promise.

"What shall I promise?" asked McFee.

Money, of course, was no use. But it would be a fair exchange if he were to promise, next time he came, to give the lady a small piece of soap. McFee promised and later sent Marianna a whole box of soap.—From the Book Leaf.

Sparkling Gems.

The humorist contributor looked in upon the editor of Answers upon his busy day. The humorist contributor should not have looked in upon the editor of Answers on his busy day. The editor of Answers can't feel humorous and busy at the same time.

What was more, the humorist contributor would not go. At last the editor of Answers decided to stop being busy for one moment and be sarcastic.

"That was a gem, that joke you sent me," he said in his usual dry tone. The contributor drew himself up with pride.

"Sir," he said, "you flatter me!"

"Not at all," replied the editor. "You should have seen it sparkle when I put it on the fire!"—Answers.

Well! Well!

Mollie is six years old and has just started lessons. The other day she was seen to throw her new doll down the well, which the gardener had inadvertently left uncovered. When her father came home he was told of the occurrence.

"So you have thrown your new doll down the well, Molly?" he remarked.

"Yes, daddy."

"And how do you expect to get her out?"

"Why, Miss Young told me that the world turns round every day, and when it turns over tomorrow dolly will drop out."

Prepared for Death.

The suburban lady heard an airplane whizzing overhead. She called Cottie, the colored maid, to see it.

"Has you all ever been up in one of those contraptions, ma'am?"

The suburban lady said "No," and in turn asked Cottie if she wouldn't enjoy a ride in one.

"No, s'ree, ma'am," she answered. "Seems like when I went up that high I'd like to be ready to jes keep right on going up."

Why Not?

The human fly was sealing the outside of the tall building at a dizzy height and an anxious throng watched in the street.

"What's he doing?" asked an old gentleman.

"He's going to the top of the building," said a bystander.

"Well," asked the old party, "why don't the darned fool take an elevator?"

Literal-Minded Witness.

The prisoner was being cross-examined by counsel for the prosecution when the judge interrupted.

"You say you dined at the Hotel Metro. What did you partake of?"

"Beefsteak, my lord," he said. The judge looked stern.

"On your oath?" he said. "No, my lord," he said, "on a plate."

Weapons Laid Aside.

"Nobody tries to stop card playing in Crinson Gulch."

"It's valuable for its social influence," replied Cactus Joe.

"I thought friendship ceased in a poker game?"

"On the contrary, a poker game is the only occasion on which some of the boys really suspend hostilities."

Deliberately Unfriendly.

"Why is Mr. Grumpson so unpopu lar?"

"Because he's eccentric."

"Yes?"

"He carries around a pocket Bible. When a golf player starts to tell about his score Mr. Grumpson takes the Good Book out and asks him to lay his right hand on it."
