

SAM HOWE AT GAYETY
Sam Howe returns to the stage for this season's presentations of "Sam Howe's Joys of Life" in theatres on the Columbia circuit of burlesque theatres, his appearance at the Gayety theatre being set for the week beginning Sunday matinee, September 3.

For three years Howe has been in retirement so far as burlesque has been concerned, occasional appearances in vaudeville, with one of his Hebrew character sketches, having marked his public appearances. He has, meanwhile, buried himself with the management of Sam Howe's Show, which has continued, without interruption, as an attraction on the Columbia circuit.

There is sure to be a hearty welcome for the droll Hebrew character Howe will again present with his own company. During the many seasons he played in burlesque, Howe established a loyal following and there is sure to be a newly awakened interest in his droll characterization of the Hebrew philosopher who is ever ready to turn any sort of stage situation into a laugh.

Helen Tarr has been prima donna for the Sam Howe show during its travels for the past six seasons and she is again designated as the leader of this season's company. Miss Tarr has constantly added to her popularity with patrons of burlesque and her appearances in Sam Howe's support will be not the least entertaining and welcome incident. Vera Desmond is another girl who has won her way to public favor through her talents and personality.

"Sam Howe's Joys of Life" comes with the advance promise of elaborate scenic equipment, a large and active chorus of dancers who can also really sing. A fine complement of stage accessories, lighting effects and production novelties are designed to captivate the fancy of theatregoers.

Sunday's matinee (at reduced prices) starts at 3:00. Grand holiday matinee Labor day, ladies' matinee at 2:15 daily thereafter.
