"BLOOD WILL TELL"

"Blood Will Tell" is the title of a racial and moral drama in three acts written by Mrs. Senora Mae Wilkinson of this city. The play opens with a pleasing scene in the home of a cultured Southern family that of William Trent, in which the mother expresses her anxiety over the moodiness and restlessness of their adolescent son, Harold. This leads to a round table talk in which Harold discloses the reason for his discontent. It is the repression from local conditions which he resents. An altercation with a boorish white boy who bumps into him on his way to school, and the threatened violence for his daring to strike a white boy, causes his flight. The play depicts his progress in the North, his admittance to the bar, his subsequent experiences and services, centering around a very happy romance. The play is a good one and has a serious purpose. The characters are well drawn. It is to be presented at St. John's A. M. E. Church, August 5th.

DELAWARE REPUBLICANS SEEK HOLD ON VOTERS

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 1.—(By the Associated Negro Press).—Republicans in this city and about the state are leaving no stones unturned in their efforts to hold the race voters in their parties. But the outlook is very dark for the republicans and the race voters have awakened to the fact that they have been fooled long enough and still, in which they are justified because of the blunt refusal of the republicans to help send a race delegate to Cleveland after they had endorsed him. These and other facts are responsible for the turn.

The name of John W. Davis calls forth much cheering whenever he is mentioned by race voters at their meetings. The outspoken pledge of Edward Henry, president of the Citizens' Republican Club of Philadelphia, whose denunciation of the Coolidge party and which have caused considerable comment among the voters of Pennsylvania added with that of Dr. R. R. Wright, president of the Citizens and Southern Banking Co., also of Philadelphia, the voters in this little state are rising and claiming the democratic nominee as the man of the hour. The republican party in Delaware is fighting with its back to the wall.

Advertising Talk

A hen is not supposed to have
Much common sense or tact,
Yet every time she lays an egg
She cackles forth the fact.

A rooster hasn't got a lot
Of intellect to show,
But none the less most roosters have
Enough good sense to crow.

The mule, the most despised of beasts,
Has a persistent way
Of letting folks know he's around
By his insistent bray.

The busy little bees they buzz,
Bulls bellow and cows moo,
The watch dogs bark, the ganders quack,
The doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and squawks,
Pigs squeal and robins sing
And even serpents know enough
To hiss before they sting.

But man, the greatest masterpiece
That nature could devise,
Will often stop and hesitate
Before he'll advertise.

Merchants who are wise
And want our people's trade
Use THE MONITOR to advertise
And thus their fortune's made.
