GENERAL BULLARD'S BOOK

(From the Springfield Republican) General Robert Lee Bullard of "Old Alabama," seems to have a hard time in winning the war, according to the accounts in his book recently published. Gen. Clarence Edwards looked crossly at him. Gen. Pershing declined to spank Gen. Edwards for such conduct, and the Negro troops "ran away." Which is probably the reason that the French government decorated several companies and regiments of Negroes for bravery. Gen. Bullard should not allow his southern sympathies to overcome his spirit of justice and fair play.

According to the story told police by Morgan he had come to Omaha Sunday to persuade his sister, who it is alleged was the common-law wife of Snell for twenty years to leave him. A quarrel resulted in which it is claimed by Morgan that Snell threatened to stab his wife with an ice-pick, whereupon Morgan shot him three times, one bullet piercing the heart. Morgan was placed under arrest by Officers Bailey and Sullivan. A coroner's inquest was held at the Jones Undertaking Parlor Monday afternoon, but the jury could not agree upon a verdict. A charge of murder was filed by the County Attorney, but at the preliminary hearing held in police court Tuesday Judge Dineen dismissed the case. The only witnesses were Morgan and Mrs. Snell.

Gwyn, Lee, Madame Hightower Honored

The Late Ben Gwyn

Madame Mamie Hightower

Tom Lee

MEMPHIS, Tennessee—Never in the history of Memphis have so many or so signal honors been paid to members of our race as in the past four months, and most particularly in the last two months. Great has been the service rendered the entire community by members of our Group and the city has appreciated it as never before in its life of more than 195 years.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal, which has the largest circulation of any white newspaper in the entire South, has given large space daily for more than six weeks past to raising funds to buy a home for Tom Lee, the hero of the "Norman" disaster when that boat sank in the Mississippi in May, Mr. Lee, passing in a launch, pulled back to the sinking ship and saved life after life, carrying a load to shore and then hurrying back to the doomed hulk. In all, single-handed, the hero rescued thirty-two men, women and children. To date the Commercial Appeal has raised nearly three thousands dollars towards the Lee home.

The Literary Digest also has paid tribute to this humble worker who became famous overnight because he saw his duty and performed it when to fall would have meant 32 more lives lost in the horrible disaster.

The late Ben Gwyn, has also received front-page notice because of his noble character and unselfish devotion to church and city during his long life. He was a member of the Episcopal Church. Spending 47 years on two jobs, at the time of his death Mr. Gwyn was head of the shipping and delivery departments of Ridgely's, the finest tailoring house in the entire South, as well as one of the oldest in the United States.

In the past ten years with Ridgely's, Mr. Gwyn handled more than $1,000,000 of bank deposits and payroll money, according to President Faquin of the Ridgely Company. He knew nearly all of the prominent men of Memphis and of Mississippi by name. He is survived by five daughters and one son.

Another Memphian who is being honored throughout the South is Madame Mamie Hightower, internationally famed beauty culturist, who is at present recuperating from strenuous months, taking a short trip South. She will be back at her home within two or three days.

Madame Hightower, determined to find the greatest beauties of our Group, recently launched her great Golden Brown Beauty Contest, after which a splendid Hudson Super Six Coach will be given to Miss Golden Brown of America (the girl receiving the most votes). The five girls leading will each be given a free trip to Atlantic City, a $100 trousseau and the next forty-eight girls (the leader in each state in each of the famous Golden Brown Beauty Preparations.

The loveliest, the scintillating beauties of our Group will assemble at Atlantic City at the expense of the Golden Brown Chemical Company in October where they will be welcomed by a reception committee composed of some of the nationally famous men and women of the race, including Hallie Brown, the famous lecturer and reader; Edouard Scott, the artist, and others of national importance, both in business and the professions.
