EDWIN BARCLAY, LIBERIAN SECRETARY, IN THE U. S.

Mission Is a Secret—Rubber Interests Developing Liberia—Homeland Problem Again Up for Discussion.

EDWIN BARCLAY.

WASHINGTON.—With the arrival of Edwin Barclay on the steamer Paris, in New York, speculation is rife in official circles in Washington as to the purpose of Dr. Barclay's visit in his official capacity as Liberian Secretary of State.

After being accorded diplomatic courtesies by the representatives of American State Department, the Honorable Mr. Barclay was also welcomed by Dr. Lyons of Baltimore, who is the Liberian consul general in the United States.

There has been some trouble between the French authorities and the natives in the Zinta section on the frontier and Secretary Barclay has just come from Paris, France. It will be remembered that the American Congress some time ago turned down a five million dollar loan for Liberia after it had been approved by the executive department of the U. S. government.

It is understood that some of the mammoth rubber companies of America are planning a deal with the Liberian government in exchange for much-needed rights and privileges in order that America may break the British corner of the raw rubber supply.

The arrival of official representatives of the Liberian Republic always revives interest in the relations of the African Homeland to the tremendous Race population here in the U. S. It will be remembered that a representative of the Homeland lately spoke strongly against Garvey's idea.

Opposes Garvey Idea

During Secretary Barclay's visit Inter-Racial News Service correspondents have been instructed by Ramsey Ray, general manager, to interview Race notables in various sections in regard to the actual status of our Group in each portion of the United States.

In a conversation, Madame Mamie Hightower, the famous Beauty Culturist and originator of the Golden Brown Preparations, had this to say:

"I am very happy of course to welcome Secretary Barclay both because of his distinguished position in a friendly government and because of his noble ancestry. I have not forgotten that another Barclay served as President of our African Homeland in the early years of the present century and that the Barclay family has furnished a Secretary of State at another period besides at the present."

"Like the Philippines, for mutually good reasons Liberia should remain the good and true friend of America at all times. Trade, Commerce, Finance, all these things alone will dictate such a course, even if it were not an imperative obligation based on the past history of Liberia and its settlement by the American Colonization Society, just a little over 100 years ago."

"I think that the relations of the people of our Race to both the government and natives of Liberia must be one of helpfulness, friendliness and cordial co-operation. By careful study and by constant development it should be possible in time to develop the vast, the almost unknown interior of the Homeland to a land of health and prosperity. Like the Alaska of fifty years ago, Liberia means to most of us a sort of a dreamland, a wilderness rather than a gripping, actual, living reality with magnificent potentialities. But when one looks back through development of our Race, particularly here in the South the last quarter of a century, it is impossible and almost foolhardy to suggest leaving this land of wealth and health for the uncertainty of the primitive."

New Schools in South

"I know it is unpopular to take this view, but when I look back at the five reasons in the preamble to Liberia's Declaration of Independence I find five major reasons at that time (1847) for further immigration from the U. S. to Africa: Exclusive from civil offices; exception from participation in Government taxation without consideration; discriminations without avenues of improvements; contribution without protection."

"Now seventy-five years after our Race in the South and in the United States with its schools, its colleges, its certain civil officials, its freedom and its power at the polls, looks about with pride at a country which has done so much to minimize oppression and ignorance. Granted there are certain prejudices still existing against our color yet, we are not alone, and peoples of other creeds and colors, make the same complaint.

"Through Presidents like Lincoln and Roosevelt, through the work of our own great leaders like Washington, Moton and Fuller, the Race in North America has gradually come to stand on the higher grounds of citizenship and intellectuality.

"In the South we find new schools and colleges springing up to meet the demand for more education and better education for our Race. Here in Memphis, for instance, we are just completing a monster, modern, completely-equipped high school, a model of secondary education under the personal direction of Prof. Hamilton, a scholar and musician, of far more than local reputation. In Memphis, for instance, long before the art of instrumental music was developed along band lines in our white schools, Prof. Hamilton had organized a splendid boys' brass band at Kortrecht High."

Racial Advancement

"I think that we should encourage and always continue to encourage Liberia as a home for the depressed and destitute, but I feel very strongly that with the constant advancement of the Race in the U. S. that there is but one way to greater happiness and improvement to almost ideal living conditions. That is by sending more of our boys and girls to our splendid public and private schools, urging a more general study of the racial problems by leading citizens of both colors, by showing our appreciation of the splendid assistance that is being rendered us by such men as Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, executive head of the Episcopal Church in North America, Julian Rosenwald of Chicago and other white leaders by determining to be better citizens and improve our standards of living. The surest way to still greater toleration is to prove ourselves worthy of the Republic."

Madame Hightower is known in almost all civilized countries of the world for her work as a Beauty Specialist and friend of our girls and women. She has launched the great National Golden Brown Beauty Contest which is sweeping the entire U. S. At the close of the Contest, Sept. 15th, the lovely Race girl in North America as chosen by votes will receive a gorgeous Hudson Super-Six automobile, a free trip to Atlantic City, a $100.00 Trousseau and the queenly crown of beauty.

There are from 50 to 100 free votes with every one of my Golden Brown Preparations which are on sale by all druggists and agents of Madame Hightower in every nook and cranny of the nation. Thousands upon thousands of votes are pouring in the offices of the Golden Brown Chemical Company at Memphis, Tenn., cast by the contestants and friends.
