Killer Whale Has No

Equal for Ferocity The killer whale is the undisputed champion of the sea, declares Mack Sennett, who, as a hobby, has made an exhaustive study of marine life in Lower California seas. "If there is anything that can lick the killer whale, I have never heard of it," Sennett says. "Everything that swims the waters of the earth dreads the terri ble killer whale.

"Strictly speaking," the writer ex plains, "It isn't a fish; it is an air breathing mammal about 35 feet long It has huge jaws and heavy fighting teeth. Its head suggests the head of a bulldog, as does its disposition What makes it more terrible than other big sea monsters is its great speed. Nothing can escape it.

"The favorite dish of the killer whale is the succulent tongue of the real whale," the writer continues. "Its method of killing the whale is curious When the big fellow comes up to breathe, the killer fastens its jaws on the whale's blowhole and does not let Finally, dying of suffocation, the whale thrusts out its great, agonized tongue. The killer nips this off and goes blithely on its way. 'It is a com mon sight to find a tongueless dead whale floating in the water."

Find New Evidences of Coal Formation

Evidence that coal was formed at the bottoms of ancient lakes, and not in vast swamps or bogs as com monly supposed, is advanced by Prof E. C. Jeffrey of Harvard university in an article in Science. Professor Jeffrey's studies were conducted on coals from geological formations of tertiary age, which is much more recent than the source of most of the coal in this country, but which supplies remains of plants more like those growing today and hence more significant to the botanist as far as their habits are concerned. Earlier studies of similar coals had disclosed wood structures which were taken to be of cypresses and since cypresses are swamp trees this was taken as evidence for the classical theory of coal formation Professor Jeffrey's investigations, however, have shown that these supposed cypress-like woods were really from redwoods and similar trees that normally grow on well-drained upland soils and never in swamps. His conclusion, therefore, is that these coal beds are the remains of great masses of water-logged vegetation washed down from the hills by rivers and deposited in the bottoms of huge lakes

Proper Diet Brings Poise

Persons who lack poise, who are in clined to be nervous and quickly upset or provoked, should be extremely careful of their diet. In the morning they should confine their breakfast to simple easily-prepared cereal or fruit. If they must have something to drink, they should take nothing stronger than warm milk or chocolate At noon let them rigidly adhere to a substantial salad or vegetable dinner Lean, fresh meat, fowl or fish may be added for variety at times. The evening meal, embracing fruits and nuts blended into an appetizing and attractive fruit and nut salad, with wholewheat bread and butter, will be sufficient. These foods contain all the elements necessary to nourish the body. They soothe and strengthen the nerves. They calm the blood Very few veteran vegetarians fly into a rage or lose their poise.-Psychology Magazine.

Cousin Meets Cousin

The woman was visiting at a home where two little cousins were meeting for the first time. The visiting cousin from the West had never met any of her relations before, and the mothers of both little girls were anx tous that the afternoon should pass

They drank their tea and contribut ed to the general conversation with half an ear for sounds of strife that might, they were afraid, issue from the nursery.

All was serene, however, and when it was finally time for the guests to leave and the children were called from their play, Jean ran down hap pily to her mother and said: "Mother Helen wasn't at all like a cousin; she was just like a friend!"-New York

They entered a large build ing where everything was spic-and span and rode up a few stories on ar elevator. Through swinging doors and down a long hall which was fragrant with the odor of fresh-cut flowers they came at last to a room. There mother and the new brother Jackie looked at him for a moment watched him open his tiny mouth and cry and with a disappointed air turned to his father and said: "But daddy. wanted a brother with teeth."

Darkness Thought to Herald Judgment Day

Famous dark days have occurred to history when great fear seized the people because of abnormal darkness in the middle of the day. May 19 1780, is famous as "Black Friday," or The Dark Day" in the history of New England Schools were dismissed work ceased, barnyard fowl went to coost, ordinary print could not be read at noon without artificial light, and andles were lighted Many over-con cientious people thought the Day of Judgment had arrived The Connecti rut legislature, which was in session at Hartford, adjourned at 11 a.m. It is related that in the council, which was also in session on that day, a motion to adjourn having been made 'ol Abraham Davenport of Stamford rose to his feet and said: "I am grainst adjournment Either the Day 1927. of Judgment is at hand or it is not. It it is not, there is no cause for ad journment. If it is, I wish to be found in the line of my duty. I wish candles to be brought." No 'satisfactory ex' planation for this extraordinary dark ness throughout New England has ever been given by scientists

Hunger Supreme Motive

Hunger is a more compelling motive than either mother love or the desire for companionship. Dr. F. A. Moss of George Washington university, discov ered when he made a series of tests with rats. The reactions of the ro dents, he believes, fixes rules that also will apply to other animals, and, pos sibly, to man. Doctor Moss used a cage built in three parts, with the cen ter section so wired that a rat pass ing through it received a slight electric shock. Ten rats were placed in one end and food in the other. Within 72 hours eight of the 10 risked the shock to reach the food In the next experiment mother rats were installed in one section and their young in the other, but only three of the ten moth ers would pass the charged wires .--Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Social Discipline

Society is the true sphere of hu man virtue. In social, active life, dif ficulties will perpetually be met with restraints of many kinds will be neces sary, and studying to behave right in respect of these is a discipline of the human heart useful to others and im proving to itself. Suffering is no duty, but where it is necessary to avoid guilt, or to do good; nor pleas ure a crime, but where it strengthens the influence of bad inclinations, or lessens the generous activity of na ture.-Philadelphia Record.

Prepared

A Harley street reader tells of an old friend whose mother had a new maid who had never seen gas. On the occasion of a dinner party she was in structed as to what to do in the draw ing room, and towards the end of the dinner her mistress asked her if she had lit the gas,

"No, ma'am," was the answer, "hu I have turned it on already." Doubt less if her mistress had not interfered everything would have gone off splendidly .- Weekly Scotsman.

Hunters' Greed Blamed

The biological survey says that mar ket hunters are probably the direct cause of the extinction of the passen ger pigeons. These birds were so called "colony birds," and nested in great quantities in certain vicinities This made it possible for hunters to wipe out great numbers with very little effort. There are many tradi tions accounting for the extinction of these birds, one being that forest fires in woods where they roosted destroyed great numbers.

Book of Revelation

The last book of the Bible is vari justy called the Revelation of St. John the Divine, the Book of Revelation and the Apocalypse. Roman Catholics prefer to call it the Apocalypse, while Protestants usually call it the Book of Revelation. It is frequently bu erroneously called the Book of Revela tions. The word Revelation in this nection is singular, not plural.
