

Make Nightly Climb to Rocky Stronghold

What is believed to be the oldest town in America is Acoma, situated on top of a great rock that stands 350 feet above the surrounding country in New Mexico. It was in existence 300 years ago when the first Spanish missionaries came into the country. Acoma is the most picturesque of the three pueblos of the Laguna Indians visited by the party of Jesse L. Nusbaum, archeologist, and described by Deric Nusbaum, the scientist's son, in St. Nicholas Magazine. Clinging to their ancestors' distrust of all strangers, the Indians refuse to give up the ancestral defense afforded by the barely accessible rock. In the valley below, at the foot of the rock, they stable the horses with which they work their farms, but every human habitation is reached by the 350-foot climb up steep steps cut into the rock. The village itself is made up of two streets of stone and clay houses two and three stories high, the upper floors being reached by ladders from the lower. All of the building materials, even the great wooden beams of the church, one of the oldest of the Spanish missions, have been carried up on human pack trains after having been transported across the country for distances as great as 20 miles.

"Father of Medicine" Was Well Grounded

Hippocrates gets his name carved on the friezes of libraries as the father of medicine, but probably few who see it there realize the great extent of his knowledge of that science or the cycle that the practice of medicine has traveled in the 2,300 years since the famous Greek died.

His general ideas are those held by the most advanced medical men today. He placed a strong reliance on the recuperative powers of the body to eliminate or overcome disorders even of the serious kind if aided by proper regimen and improved environment. With this was coupled an equally strong disinclination to interfere with the normal functions of the organism by the administration of drugs.

Thus, his prescriptions often ordered merely a change of climate, or an altered or limited diet, or the securing of conditions that would provide absolute quiet and long hours of sleep. Frequent bathing of the entire body, sometimes in cold, and at others in warm or hot water, was also a favorite method adopted. It is held probable that this sensible system brought him the high reputation accorded him by contemporaries.—Kansas City Star.

Shocking!

He entered the newspaper office in a manner that suggested murder. He reached the counter and took a newspaper from an inner pocket.

"I was intensely shocked this morning to read in this wretched journal an intimation of my engagement," he said.

The clerk behind the counter looked at him with some concern.

"I am almost beside myself with rage," the agitated man went on. "I cannot tell you how angry I am. I am worried. My fiancée is worried. I am dreadfully annoyed. My fiancée is dreadfully annoyed. We are all annoyed. Give me 50 copies of the paper."

Easy Way to Clean Silver

Put a teaspoonful of salt and a like amount of soda in a new aluminum pan and pour boiling water over them. Place your tarnished silver in the solution. When the tarnish is removed, wash and dry with a soft cloth. This method will not injure the silver, which is cleaned as thoroughly as by hard rubbing and is not scratched as it may be when pastes or powders are used. This method leaves the silver with a soft dull finish, which can be heightened to a high polish by rubbing with a chamomile or soft cloth and the use of silver paste.—Capper's Farmer.

Thought and Conduct

The right thought has much to do with the right conduct, and if one thinks and acts kindly in life to others he creates that personality which speaks of a nobility that cannot be surpassed. There are many today who have bitter recollections that they might have done so much better toward their fellow creatures if at the moment they had thought differently, and our brother who apparently regrets some of the past has still time to ease a troubled conscience.—East London Observer.

Out of Her Depth

The popular preacher had excelled himself, and the congregation were discussing his sermon as they left the church.

"Wasn't that a fine sermon?" said one woman admiring to her companion.

"Yes," said the other; "but did you understand it all?"

"Understand it!" replied the first. "Oh, no. I wouldn't presume to understand such a great preacher."

Why Dog Flees

"It's a wonder Mrs. Alexfritz doesn't understand why her dog doesn't like to sit on her lap while she eats," observes Grandma Matson. "No self-respecting dog likes to be used for a napkin"—Farm and Fireside.

PORO AGENTS TO ATTEND SERVICE
