WILLA PEARL HAYES
PRESENTED IN RECITAL
PLEASES AUDIENCE

Youthful Pianist, Pupil of Florentine Frances Pinkston, Gives Excellent Program Displaying Talent and Musicianship

A torrential downpour of rain seriously interfered with the attendance last Thursday night when Miss Willa Pearl Hayes, aged 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Hayes, was presented in pianoforte recital at Zion Baptist church by Mrs. Florentine Frances Pinkston. The audience, which numbered more than a hundred, composed of both races, was fully repaid by the excellent program rendered and the musicianship displayed by Miss Hayes, reflecting credit upon herself and her painstaking teacher. The demand for encores at the close of several numbers, which won a gracious response, attested the delight of the audience.

The simple, but most artistic setting of the stage, was in keeping with the classical program presented, and the air of culture and refinement surrounding the recital was a most significant and pleasing indication of progress in the cultural life of our race in this community. Young men of the Intercollegiate club served as ushers. Several floral gifts were presented Miss Hayes and a beautiful basket of roses to Mrs. Pinkston.

Her rendition of Vals Arabesque by Lack and the three by Nathaniel Dett, the Negro composer, Night, Humoresque and the Juba Dance were among her best numbers and were played with brilliancy.

The program was as follows:

Program

Mr. Karl E. Tunberg, the well-known musician and critic, has favored The Monitor with his opinion of Miss Hayes' recital, which will be interesting to our readers.

WILLA HAYES RECITAL

Florentine Frances Pinkston presented Willa Pearl Hayes in a piano recital at the Zion Baptist church, May 3, in a program which was really quite professional in character. Miss Hayes, although quite youthful, played most creditably. She possesses a good technique, fine sense of rhythm, a well trained memory and has good ideas of interpretation.

She began with the first movement of Beethoven's Pathetique Sonata, in which, as also in the following preludes by Chopin, she showed a lack of maturity. This can hardly be otherwise in one of her years. In the Grieg numbers, the Valse Arabesque by Lack, and the Dett numbers, she was more within her range and played them in good style. The Butler, MacDowell and Rogers numbers were also well played. The Mendelssohn pieces were creditably played but lacked somewhat in brilliancy that these compositions require. This, however, will develop as the pianist grows older and more experienced.

Miss Hayes has exceptional talent and shows that she is diligent and painstaking in her work, which reflects credit upon her teacher, Mrs. Pinkston, as well as herself. She is deserving of every encouragement and has unquestionably a most promising future.

KARL E. TUNBERG.
