The Farmer's Wife
 Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every taint or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best remedy known to medical science for the above ailments is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a harmonious combination of all the several schools of medical practice. It is a pure, sweet, and wholesome, and may be used from the hour of birth.

had halted and was gazing down on the pathetic figure.

"No, I ain't," returned the boy fiercely. "An' maybe you'd cry if yer dad wallowed yer every day in the week an' twice on Sunday an' after he got through yer mother took a crack at yer just for luck. I'm done with the whole kit an' caboodle an' I've run away an' I'm goin' to stay away if I starve an' I'm most starved now. If anybody should ask yer." The torrent of words had poured forth without pause.

The mate still stood staring down at the small face, which, as he finished, took on a pitiful look of listless resignation. The big soft heart of the man stirred within him. He was amused, too, by the promptness with which his gibe had been repudiated.

After a square meal, during which the boy had manfully tried to mind his manners and not fall to and tear at the thick roast beef, floating in gravy as divine as it was greasy, he told his story simply and honestly to his new friend. There was a large farm somewhere back there, a grimy thimble had indicated vaguely, about twenty miles from town. The boy, whose constitution was none too hardy, could not do the work his father required of him. For the cities are not the only places where merciless child-labor survives. The sweatshop presses out the joy of youth more rapidly, says the intelligence and ambition more swiftly, but there are many little boys and girls brought up on farms who work early and late at chores that are never done year in, year out, to save the hire of "extra help."

The boy of this story had stolen away two nights before the mate found him, after a day of thrashing peas. He had stood for hours in the grime and heat and choking dust feeding the maw of the machine, his back breaking under the incessant strain, for the appetite of the clanking monster was insatiable. At noon he had dropped into a sleep of exhaustion and his father, brutal, ignorant and overworked, failing to rouse him by shouting, had adopted rougher means, waking him with a heavy blow. After dark, worn out and aching in every bone, the resentful 12-year-old had stolen to the barn of a neighbor and immediately dropped asleep in a far corner of the hayloft. But before dawn he was on his way anywhere that was far from the merciless grind and the grim circumstances of his home life. Forlorn, weary, unutterably hungry, not daring to ask for food for fear of detection, making wide detours through the fields and woods to avoid the traveled roads, he had at last reached the water front.

The mate obtained permission to add his charge to the crew in the capacity of cubia boy. The runaway's duties now were many and varied, from washing dishes to brushing the captain's shore clothes. The lake winds, a wholesome amount of work and, above all, the love in his hitherto starved little heart for his friend the mate, soon developed him wonderfully.

A BACKLOG FANCY.
 The room is dim, the logs burn low,
 But in the fitful flash I see
 Upon the wall the sunbeams glow
 Through the green branches of the tree.

The backlog sputters, and I hear
 The forest's leafy summer note,
 And in the waves of smoke appear
 The blue pool of the wood remote.

Then like a spirit, witching, gay,
 Ascends a throbbing golden spark—
 A fire-fly drifting on its way
 Across the lonely marsh dark.

—R. K. Munkittrick.

Going Into Port

It was during a general thaw in early winter that the Lucy B., a lumber schooner, slid alongside the dock of a little town on the shore of Grand Traverse Bay to take on a load of shingles. No ice had formed in the bay and the sun had shone bright and warm for many days. The short winter twilight had fallen by the time the vessel's sails were furled and the hawsers secured to the piles. The town boys had gone pell-mell down the hill from the village and raced across the flats, for even so small an incident as the landing of a lumber vessel was of interest to them.

The crew of the Lucy B. went ashore to lounge uptown to "the store" while the cook prepared supper. One of the men strode ahead rapidly, closely followed by a tow-headed boy, the youngest of the crew. The man was the first mate and several months before at a port town on Lake Superior he had discovered the boy huddled behind a pile of lumber on the dock crying bitterly, but silently. His face was swollen and one eye was black and blue.

"Well, well, what's the matter here? Been scrapper? Cryin' 'cause you got licked, eh?" The comely young sailor for all hands on deck. Part of the shingles had been loaded the night before under a full moon, but now the treacherous wind had changed suddenly and with violence. The schooner lay on the north side of the dock straining at her moorings. The captain, belonging to the hardy Norse stock that breeds good seamen, ordered the vessel to be cast off, intending to reach open water and then lie to until the gale should blow itself out.

The first-mate stood on the dock between the piles of shingles and the vessel. The little cabin boy had leaped ashore and waited at his left. The forward hawser was being slackened away and the first mate was endeavoring to cast off the stern line. Intent upon the coils lashed about the piles, the furious wind instantly taking up the slack as fast as it was paid out, he had eyes only for the task in hand. But the boy, keen with excitement, watched the hawser.

Suddenly a single strand of the great rope parted midway between the schooner and the pier. Its loose ends waved for an instant, then there followed a sound like the report of a rifle. The taught hawser had snapped and with a mighty recoil was hurled back.

It was a matter of seconds, but the boy had leaped at the mate, and, exerting all his strength, had literally flung him from his position. The heavy rope shot to the dock and struck the boy across the breast, crushing him for an agonizing fatal instant against the shingles. He dropped limp and white at the feet of the astounded mate, while the schooner stood out for deep water.

The unconscious boy was laid upon a stretcher quickly improvised of loose boards and, wrapped in the mate's jacket, was carried to a house near at hand, where a young doctor examined him. The mate, who had not spoken, looked at the doctor as he rose. At the slow shake of the doctor's head the mate strangled a sob and dropped on his knees at the foot of the bed, hiding his face in his arms.

Late in the afternoon the Lucy B. managed to load her cargo. Then under reefed canvas she pitched away northward; but on board there was a temporary first mate and no cabin boy.

A few moments later the little sufferer looked with understanding eyes into those of his friend. Seeing the tears in them he forgot his pain and smiled, a twisted, wistful smile. "Don't be sorry, Dave," he said. "I ain't. Give the fellows on the Lucy my best, an' the cap. An' say, Dave, he whispered later, "tell your girl I'm awful tickled you're goin' to marry her. I'm kinder sorry I can't be at the wedding, though." After a long silence the white lips opened once more. "Dave, I hate to ask yer, but—say, Dave, do you think—do you suppose—Dave, would you mind—kissin' me just once?" As the lips of the man touched his cheek the little cabin boy slipped into port.—Chicago Daily News.

Italy's Dwindling Population.
 Some strikingly curious population statistics are now being published in Rome. Some years ago the Italian population was one of the most prolific in Europe, and in one period of twenty years increased from 28,000,000 to 33,000,000. Now the tendency is strongly in the opposite direction, while, at the same time, emigration which now reaches a million souls a year is leaving whole rural districts depopulated. The annual increase had declined from 7.38 per 1,000 in 1901 to 4.1 in 1906. In the flourishing industrial districts there is some progressive increase, but in the rural provinces, like Laburn, Apulia, Sicily and the Campagna, it dwindles down as low as 1.1 per 1,000.—London Globe.

During This Month.
 Now is the time to get the rheumatic poisons and foul acids from the blood and system, states an eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble are caused by the blood, which often becomes sour from excessive acids, and also tells what to do to make it pure and healthy.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple blood cleaner and tonic at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the Kidneys are not acting right. Any one can easily prepare this mixture at home.

The Businesslike View.
 "Spooner is a poor man," said Senator Lotman, "and I don't blame him for refusing to waste himself on that job any longer. By George, sir, United States Senators ought to be graded according to their ability and efficiency and draw salaries in proportion."—Chicago Tribune.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists.

Not Worth Noticing.
 "I'll sue the scoundrel!" exclaimed Alger, in a terrible rage. "He calls me a blithering idiot!"

"I wouldn't pay any attention to it," counseled Percy. "Blithering" doesn't really mean anything, you know."

A Natural Remedy—Garfield Tea! It is made of simple Herbs. Take it for constipation, indigestion, sick-headache; it regulates the liver, purifies the blood, brings Good Health.

Got 'Em Mixed.
 "Officer," said the man with the slight limp, "I'm a stranger here. Can you tell me where I will find a musician?"

"Yes, sir," responded the policeman at the crossing. "There's one down there in the next block, on the fourth floor of the building with the brown front. He'll take 'em off for you for 50 cents apiece. First one free."—Chicago Tribune.

FURIOUS HUMOR ON CHILD.
 Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body—Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. Mrs. F. Ruefenacht, R. F. D. No. 2, Bakersfield, Cal., June 25 and July 20, 1906."

Mrs. Wiggins's Soreness Began for Children itching, swollen the gums, redness inflammation, of the joints, entire skin oozed. It came a bubble.

MEN ADMIRE

a pretty face, a good figure, but sooner or later learn that a healthy, happy, contented woman is most of all to be admired.

Women troubled with fainting spells, irregularities, nervous irritability, backache, the "blues," and those dreadful dragging sensations, cannot hope to be happy or popular, and advancement in either home, business or social life is impossible.

The cause of these troubles, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs. It acts at once upon the organ affected and the nerve centers, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms. No other medicine in the country has received such unqualified indorsement or has such a record of cures of female ills as has

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Miss Emma Runtler, of 631 State St., Schenectady, N. Y., writes:—"For a long time I was troubled with a weakness which seemed to drain all my strength away. I had dull headaches, was nervous, irritable, and all worn out. Chancing to read one of your advertisements of a case similar to mine cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I decided to try it and I cannot express my gratitude for the benefit received. I am entirely well and feel like a new person."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most successful remedy for all forms of Female Complaints, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and is invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.
