As They Impressed Her. Little Kitty who had happened to be the only one at home when the strangers called was trying to describe "One of 'em was a good deal younger than the other," she said, "and he's the one that did the talking. He wanted to know when you'd be back."

"How did be look?" asked ber father. "Did he have any beard?" "No; he was bearfaced."

"How about the esser man? Was he barefaced, too?"

"Kind o'," said Kitty, remembering his shaggy brown beard; "only be was grizzly bear faced."

STREET CAR ETIQUETTE.

An Old Man Gives Roughs a Vigor

If at any time in the future a broadshouldered man with an iron gray mustache should offer suggestions in a crowded street car, it will be found wise to accord him respectful attention. For the man might be Charles Johnson of McKeesport. Mr. Johnson demonstrated the other afternoon in a Homestead and McKeesport car what a varied assortment of things may happen to people who start his fists going. Two young men, who will hereafter pay strict attention to the old maxim relative to the buzz saw, experienced the most eventful five minutes of their lives while Johnson was

On his own admission Johnson "will be seventy years old come next July." He added with a chuckle, "Guess I can take care of myself yet."

When the car stopped at Fourth avenue and Smithfield street there was a rush for seats. Two young men tried to squeeze ahead of several women. That made Johnson mad. He wanted to know "if they thought they were in a pigsty at feeding time."

"Aw, don't butt in unless you're lookin' fer trouble," returned one of them. This interchange served to uncork a mess of bad language. The two young men were getting the worst of the argument and knew it. With an oath one of them suddenly struck the Me-Keesporter. It was the mistake of his life. Johnson's list shot out and landed on his assallant's chin dimple. Both young men then tried to get in a knockout punch. A fat woman with three chins and a market basket let out a yell of terror-and the fun was

Johnson seemed to worry more about the screaming, terror-stricken women than he did about the little job on his hands. His efforts to quiet them went like this:

"Don't be"-whack-"frightened, ladies. Sorry it"-biff-"couldn't be avoided, but"-crack-"once in a while you"-bing-"strike a blamed hog that's got to"-swat-"have some politeness pounded"-bang-"into him." Conductor Harry Wiegman and Motorman Ross Riebert tried to make the combatants break away, but it was no use. The old man's arms kept right on making jabs and hooks until both his adversaries were on the floor taking the count. Wiegman and Riebert helped them out the rear door, and they slunk around the corner.

As Wiegman gave the motorman two bells Johnson selected a strap and began to study the advertisements.-Pittsburg Post.

Fifty Miles to Market.

It is not an uncommon thing in France to see a farmer forty or fifty miles from home in wet weather with a load. If he sees a prospect of a three days' rain, he puts his tarpaulin over his load, a cover over his horses and a waterproof coat on and starts off to market. He may go fifty miles before he finds a market that suit him. or he may know in advance just where he is going. You do not often see anybody driving fifty miles through a rainstorm in the United States to find . market for a load of hay, but it is not uncommon to see farmers' wagons for ty or fifty nilles from home in France. They choose the wet weather for that purpose. Their roads are just as good

There have been nearly 6,000 cases of suffering animals, from an injured cab horse to a consumptive lizard, treated at the Animals' hospital in Westminster, London, the last nine months. One of the latest inmates in a 2-year-old hen, which is suffering from a peculiar disease in the crop. The hen in the hospital is the last one of a family of nine, the others having died from the same disease. A unique operation is being resorted to by the doctor to save the hen's life. Every day a rubber tire is inserted in the bird's mouth, and its crop is filled with warm water. Then the water is allowed to trickle out.

A Dehorning Chute.

While there are a great many cattle that lose their horns by dehorning fluids and preparations of this kind in calfbood, there are a great many that come to maturity with an ugly pair of horns that create a great deal of trouble in the feed yard. We have received quite a number of inquiries of late requesting a plan for a good dehorning clute. Accordingly we have here reproduced a most convenient and satisfactory chute.

One of the good points about this chute is the hinged doors on the rear end which make it possible to adjust the chute to any sized barn door. Where the width of the rear end of the chute is satisfactory and cannot be adjusted to the door as shown in the Illustration, there is often a foot or two of space to be divided between the two sides. As our readers who have had experience in dehorning know, an animai will always choose to pass through this small opening rather than into the chute and thereby cause a constant aggravation. The chute proper is mounted on two heavy timbers which may be 4x4's or 4x6's, while the uprights are generally 4x4's. The stanchion is made to open and close and secured in any way that suits. The convenient part of the chute is the trough shaped part marked H. This is made of two-inch stuff and securely fastened to bottom crosspieces. After the animal is secured in the stanchion a halter is thrown over its head and the halter rope is passed through the hole just below the letter H. The letter A shows a continuation of this rope to the pole which is used as a lever to bring the animal's head into position on the trough.

As soon as this is accomplished the rope B is thrown over the neck of the animal and secures the head firmly to the trough, when the deborning operation may be performed. As soon as the operation is concluded the animal is unstanchioned and one of the sides of the chute is hinged so that it may be opened for the animal to escape from the chute, after which is closed and another animal is driven in.-Montreal Star.

Improving Dairy Stock.

A 2-year-old helfer, fresh in milk, will sell for more than a fatted steer and she will cost only half as much to produce. These grade cows are not hard to produce. Purchase a pure sire of one of the standard breeds, cross farm and the young will, in all useful characteristics, be far more than half of that pure breed. When we remember the years, even centuries, of pure breeding in these animals, and remember also that the purer the blood in any stock, the stronger will be that blood, $100 or $150 for a male of breeding age will not seem an extravagant price. Every neighborhood where there is any co-operative spirit should prepare to supply this demand for fairly well bred cows. Every male purchased should be of the same breed. so that new animals will not have to be purchased every two or three years. By exchanging these animals about the neighborhood, a farmer will then be paying $100 or $150, not for two years, but for six or ten years of service. The cows thus produced will find a more ready market, because there are a sufficient number to attract purchasers. Higher priced males may also the much longer period of usefulness.

Onions with Sweet Peas.

If you have early peas sow them in a block rather than in long drills. As soon as they are harvested, plant squash, says Suburban Life. Hubbard ample.

If sweet peas are grown, a row of onions may be grown on each side of the peas without detriment to either. The evergreen onion is particularly well adapted to this. On rich soil it is better to have a cow that gives even matures long before the peas bloom richer milk, but the majority of famiand may be harvested.

Late cabbage may be set in the rows needs in producing more than one crop superior animal. per season.

Plancing Garden Seeds.

It is time lost, and broken backs, to undertake the planting of garden seeds by hand. Use a drill, which puts the seeds in regularly and evenly, marks the rows and covers them at the right depth. There are many handy little implements suitable for the garden that are not in frequent use. Even a trowel does excellent service in transplanting, and a weeder will tear out the weeds much quicker than can be done by hand,

The Small Garden. The small garden is the one that gives the owner pleasure. Probably the majority of those who cultivate small gardens make no profit, but actually suffer a loss, when the crops are compared with the prices received and the cost of seeds, fertilizers and labor. But there is considerable pleasure derived, the value of which cannot be estimated. No matter how small the plot owned or rented may be, the one who can bestow a portion of his time to the cultivation of crops the coming spring should do so. There are some things grown in a garden that cannot easily be procured in market, when the freshness and quality are considered. No one can buy tomatoes in market equal to those taken from the vines and placed in fresh condition on the table. If the plot is very fertile, and is not equal to more than half an acre. the amount of produce that may be grown thereon will supply a whole family from early spring until late in the fall. Beginning with onlons and peas, beets, carrots, parsnips and early cabbage, followed with string beans, Lima beans, tomatoes, corn, turnips and late cabbage, two crops can be grown on the same location during the season. Potatoes need not be planted in a gar-

The platform on which the rear end of the wagon box rests when it is to be raised from the wagon may be made any height so as to suit the height of the trucks. The Family Cow.

Families that keep only one cow should endeavor to have the best ani mal that can be procured. More labor is required to care for a single cow, does well after early peas if water is proportionately, than for a herd. A cow for the family should give a large flow of milk for at least ten months of the year, and the milk should contain not less than 4 per cent of butter fat. as cream is one of the essentials. Avoid Deep Dead-Furrows.

Do not plow your land round and round the same way, year after year, unless you want a deep dead-furrow in the middle that will bear nothing and be a hard place to cross. When plowing for seeding begin at the dead-fur row, throw the first furrow into the ditch, wheel the horses about to the right and drive back to the starting point, turning a furrow up against the one just plowed. This plan, followed to the end, will leave the land all smooth and in good shape.
