Woman Explains Man's Failure. "Men who lack popularity among women are prope to say it is because we are attracted by the worst side of man's nature," remarked a matron who suits. Many show the diagonal weaves. thinks. "The man who knows himself to be steady and loyal and above small weaknesses is likely to become rooted in that belief when he sees men he knows to be below him in worth walk off with the matrimonial prizes. He thinks the woman who marries a wild chap does so because of the wildness. It's in spite of it. The chances are that the wild young man takes pains to make himself agreeable to women. He studies their likes and dislikes and always professes, whether he feels it or doesn't, profound interest in their health, their whims, the fit and fashion of their clothes and even the welfare of their pet dogs. Now, the man of sterling worth, as he likes to be called. will not condescend to court favor in those little ways. He is convinced he would make a good busband for any woman. He knows he is honorable, industrions and purposeful, and he thinks those qualities ought to suffice. But they don't. And the woman, repelled by his indifference to her in tiny things, sake of his charm."

A man says that a great deal of un-Intentional entertaining takes place among women. Women-when they are by themselves-it appears, lack independence of action. They cannot shake off one they have met a moment or two ago with a nod, when they want to lunch by themselves. The spirit of domestic hospitality is too strong. In a weak moment-for it is painfully weak-they insist on paying for the company and the food of an acquaintance they had merely meant to be civ-

Of course, this sort of thing seems almost incomprehensible to a man. Invitations, in men's clubs, say, have to be backed by pretty sound reason. The pleasant sort of a fellow who waited about for some sensitive man on whom to insinuate his appetite would soon find himself living a hungry life. This is certainly a strange and disturbing insight into the manners and customs of women. It goes against one's observation, too. Women usually ly when the coat is removed. In such a bit of any bright silk, etc. Conceal appear to be quite conscious that they are doing an independent thing in an independent spirit.

Girls Taught Life-Saving.

A course in lifesaving has been instituted among the women students of Columbia University for the purpose of making them as adept as men in rescung drowning persons. They receive the regular lifesaving drill, including the grips and breaks, towing to shore and artificial respiration. A fully dressed girl is thrown into the water at one end of the swimming tank and the other girls are obliged to rescue her from the opposite end and take her back. which is already done in fifty-seven seconds.

The increase of all sorts of printing augments the trouble every day, and "all things seem to be conspiring to make us use our eyes more and more for the very thing for which they are most poorly adapted." There is, no doubt, much reason in this, but could the world banish its printing presses and retain its civilization?

How Woman Was Made, According to a legend, Twashtri, the Vulcan of Hindu mythology, created the world, but when he arrived at the final object which was to be his chief d'ocuvre he found to his annoyance Top brims of yellow or white straw, that he had run out of materials. He with facings of black, brown, blue or bad not a single chunk of solid matter

With a mental execuation upon his carelessness he fell into a profound meditation, the result of which was that he took "the roundness of the moon, the undulating curves of the serpent, the graceful twist of the creeping point, the light shivering of the grass blade and the slenderness of the willow, the velvety softness of the flowers, the lightness of the feather, the gentle gaze of the doe, the frollesome-They copy all the striped, checked and ness of the sunbeam, the tears of the cloud, the inconsistency of the wind, the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock, the hardness of the diamond, the cruelty of the tiger, the heat of the fire, the chill of the snow, the cackling of the parrot and the cooling of the turtle dove."

He mixed these together in equal proportions and the result was woman.

Two Hats in High Favor.

The hat on the left is a yellow straw with a fold of black-and-white striped ribbon around the crown. Across the front the ribbon is loosely looped and held in place by two wreaths of blue forget-me-nots. The other hat is made on a wire frame. The edge is bound with black velvet and wide laces are used for the brim with a net which blends well with it draped around the crown. Bands of pink satin hold the net in place and a large bunch of pink roses and foliage is placed upright.

The Cont Shirtwaist.

This is the very newest thing. As its name suggests, it has the appearance of a coat worn over a vest or shirt front. To produce this effect a doublebreasted vest, with a shawl collar, is attached to a stiff chemisette. This design occurs in white butcher linen and the cuffs to the bishop sleeves are often some contrasting shade of lines, which is also used in facing the shawl collar.

In a Morocco Harem.

Every woman in the harem has her face decorated in the most curious manner. The practice is to elongate the eyebrows to the ears and to embellish the chin with little points of black paint. In contrast with the men, their complexions are very fair, as they are shut within walls and are never exposed to the sun.

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering. The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and berbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills. Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.
"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills.

During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering
