Poorly Paid Austrian Soldiers.

The officers serving under Francis Joseph are the worst paid of any in Europe. The fledgling who enters the service as a second lieutenant gets $350 a year. After he works for seven years this stipend is increased to $420. A captain of the second class gets $500, a colonel $1,500 and a major general $2,375. In order to guard against the domestic privations of which American officers complain, the Austrian government forbids marriage to men holding its military commissions unless they or their prospective wives have private incomes.

In the United States a second lieutenant fresh from West Point or the ranks gets $1,400 a year if unmounted, $1,500 if mounted. First lieutenants begin at $1,500 and $1,600, captains at $1,800 and $2,000, majors at $2,500, lieutenant colonels at $3,000, colonels at $3,500, and each grade attains a 40 per cent maximum increase inside of twenty years.

"Why is it," asked the intelligent foreigner, "that your statesmen generally consider the vice presidency an office to be shunned instead of sought?"

"Most of 'em would like it well enough if they could get it without seeming to want it," explained the native; "but to make a try for vice president and get left, why, that hurts a man if he wants to run for Congress, or the Legislature, or something of that sort afterward, you know."

Legal Information

The United States Circuit Court for Ohio in Wall Paper Company v. Louis Volght & Sons Company, 148 Federal Reporter, 939, denies the right of the wall paper trust to recover from a wall paper dealer for goods bought by the dealer from various members of the wall paper combine.

Connecticut has a law giving any railroad company which, acting under authority of the laws of the State, shall have acquired more than three-fourths of the capital stock of any other railroad, and which cannot agree with the holders of the outstanding stock for the purchase of the same, the right to have such stock appraised and surrendered to it on payment of the appraised value. The validity of this statute is upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States in Offield v. New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, 27 Supreme Court Reporter, 72. A sustaining authority is cited the case of Long Island Water Supply Co. v. Brooklyn, 116 U. S. 685, 17 Supreme Court Reporter, 718.

The distinction between the rights of a parent and a stranger to induce a wife to leave her husband is pointed out by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in Mutter v. Kullbbs, 79 Northeastern Reporter, 762. A stranger may disprove any intent on his part to cause a separation in advising a wife to leave her husband, and show that his advice was honestly given. But the rights of a parent are much greater. He may give his daughter such advice and bring such motives of persuasion to bear on her as he fairly and honestly considers to be called for by her best interests, and is not liable to the daughter's husband in damages for her desertion resulting therefrom unless he has been actuated by malice or ill will.

An ingenious marriage contract not to be performed until the death of the young lady's mother, presumably to avoid any disagreeable interference by the mother-in-law with the conjugal bliss of the wedded pair, is revealed in the case of Balley v. Brown, 88 Pacific Reporter, 518. Judge McLaughlin, of the California Court of Appeals, who filed a concurring opinion in the case, intimates that a breach of such contract did not constitute a cause of action. He asked the question, "How could a contract to marry exist when the promisee might never be under an obligation to marry the promisee, and vice versa?" and continued: "If this good mother should live to a very ripe old age, as mothers sometimes do, no human could tell what might happen. Either of the parties might be waiting for the other, harp in hand, beyond this vale of tears, or both might pine away and die before this promise of future conjugal bliss could ripen into a cause of action enforceable in earthly courts."

WOMEN IN OFFICIAL LIFE.

Results of Elections in Bohemia and Norway—Swedish Policewomen.
The progress of women in official life in Europe is slow, but it cannot be doubted that progress is being made.

Within the last few weeks women appeared for the first time as candidates for election to the Bohemian Diet. It had been demonstrated as a logical proposition that if they fulfilled the other requirements their sex was no bar to their election.

So far their candidacy stands merely as a demonstration. Two women received votes of some importance. One, Marie Junmore, who ran in the district of Hopenmouth, had 144 votes, while the man who won had 392. In Prague the social democrats made a woman, Miss Machewa, their candidate. She polled about 20 per cent of the total vote.

The woman suffragists of Norway were disappointed at the outcome of the local election in Christiania. In all the other parts of the country they elected important delegations to the commercial councils. In the capital only five women were chosen in a total of eighty-four city councilors. There is an active agitation going on all over the country to bring the women—and men—voters of Christiania to a different frame of mind.

Of advances made where the suffrage was not involved, the appointment of three women policemen in Stockholm is an instance. The authorities have determined to experiment with them. They are to have salaries of 1,500 kronen, or about $390 a year, to begin with.

England also has just named her first woman school physician. She is Miss Sophie B. Jackson, M. D., and she has been appointed in the borough of Craydon.

Where Total Eclipses are Rare.

It is a fact well known to astronomers that the average number of total and partial eclipses in any one year is four; that the maximum is seven and the minimum two. Where only two occur they are always both of the sun. There are a great many more eclipses of the sun in the course of a year or a hundred years than there are of the moon. This fact, notwithstanding, however, London, the metropolis of the world, seems to be a place where such obstructions to the sun's light seldom occur.

A WOMAN AND HER DIVORCE.

THE weakness of our divorce laws is well shown by the action of a Minnesota judge, who, on granting a woman her fifth divorce, forbade her ever to marry again. He couched his decision in severe terms, and one hearing them might think they meant something. As a matter of fact, they were so much wind. The woman can board a train and in a few minutes be outside of Minnesota, where marriage for her is perfectly legal.

Illinois has a divorce law which forbids persons divorced from contracting another alliance within one year, or from returning to the State within that time to live in matrimony with a person married outside of the State. But the law has no practical effect.

This state of affairs will continue so long as there is no uniform divorce law in all the States. So far as divorce laws are concerned, the States are so many various nations, each having jurisdiction within its own territory, but nowhere else.

The States should appoint commissions to hold a meeting, agree upon a uniform divorce law and recommend it to legislatures. When every State has the same divorce law as every other our divorce scandals will cease. Steps to that end should be taken without loss of time, for, as Cardinal Logue and other observers have truly said, divorce is the one great menace to the nation's safety.—Chicago Journal.

DANGEROUS EXHIBITIONS.

THE time has come for a note of warning regarding certain public exhibitions that are becoming increasingly popular—those where the performer earns his livelihood by deliberately risking his life.

The interest to the onlookers in these performances arises from the fact that life for a moment hangs by a hair. Agility, muscularity, beauty of movement have become secondary, whether the feat is "looping the loop," riding the bicycle round and round the sloping sides of a huge basket with no bottom to it, or taking chances in a cage with some wild-beast. It is one and the same appeal to something within us that craves unhealthy excitement.

It is true that the "gladiator" in these days does generally escape with his life, but the quality of the amusement demanded proves us akin to those far-off ancestors whose one idea of a good holiday was a batch of Christians and plenty of wild beasts.

Nothing grows so quickly by what it feeds on as this demand for excitement, and it is well understood by the caterers to the public taste that the "shocker" of to-day is the platitude of to-morrow. For a season we could hardly believe in "looping the loop," but the dish rapidly grew insipid, and tabasco had to be added, so the loop was looped in a motor car, then in a motor car with a piece of the track removed, and so on.

The "thumbs down" of the ancients is represented today by the girl who stops chewing gum long enough to

IF THE FLEET COULD BE PAWNED.

THE $180,000,000 invested in the warships which visited San Francisco harbor would irrigate 6,000,000 acres of arid land, and provide homes for 120,000 families, giving to each family fifty acres of land. That amount of money would build a railroad from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and such a road, owned by the people, would squeeze every drop of water out of the railroads of the country.

That amount of money, properly spent, would go far toward relieving the people of the tremendous monopoly burden now resting on their backs. That amount of money would build from sixty to 100 great electric power plants for the people, and free them from a monopoly that is now skinning them.

Instead of building more warships, isn't it time to call a halt? With tens of thousands of our citizens begging for an opportunity to earn a living, isn't it time to call a halt on this wicked waste of money and energy? If we are going more and more into the warship business, let us be honest and pull down our churches. If we are to glorify war, let us quit glorifying the Prince of Peace. Let us quit being hypocrites.—San Francisco Star.

CONDUCT OF A JUDGE.

JUDGE JESSE HOLDOM, Chief Justice of the Appellate Court, Illinois, declared before the State Bar Association that a judge, "like a bishop, should be the husband of only one wife," be wary of affinities, avoid the life of the rooster, not associate with persons of known evil life, and not seek political preferment while still a wearer of the ermine.

Because all this is elementary information, the judicial attributes mentioned being generally accepted, several Chicago judges have hastened to deny that the shoe fitted them, and there is general indignation that the distinguished jurist indulged in such broad strictures without being more specific. They feel that if Holdom hadn't meant to reflect on somebody near at home, he would not have spoken as he did, although no one will deny that he has laid down a rule of conduct at which no upright, patriotic judge can cavil. But all the same he has stirred up a veritable tempest of protests, which makes one all the more suspect the timeliness of his utterances.—Toledo Blade.

CAT AND QUAIL CHUM.

Strange Friendship Between Wounded Bird and Domestic Animal.

It is very unusual for a quail to become domesticated, and in the instance here related, where absolutely no efforts have been made to train the bird, the incident is still more unusual.

A year ago Mr. Schippang, of Bethlehem, Pa., who is one of the best sportsmen in that vicinity, while out hunting, winged a quail. Having shot the bird in season he was entitled to it; but his heart went out to the quail with a broken wing, and instead of killing it, he took it home and set the fracture, says the Bethlehem Dispatch.

In a few days it was hopping around as lively as could be, free to go where it wanted to. It had lost its "call of the wild," however, and refused to leave the abode of its benefactor.

Even though it was not held captive, Mr. Schippang felt uncertain as to the advisability of allowing it to stay around his yard. So one day he took Fritz, as the quail was named, up the hillside to a large wheat field. In among the shocks of grain Fritz was placed and Mr. Schippang started home.

He had returned perhaps half way when he chanced to look around and there, following like a trained dog, was the quail. Its broken wing had never healed properly and its gift of flying was lost to it forever.

After this incident Mr. Schippang felt that he was justified in letting the quail enjoy its liberty around his house, as well as elsewhere. One of the bird's favorite stunts is to perch upon the shoulder of Mr. Schippang's daughter, while she goes about her housework, often falling asleep with its head nestling against her cheek.

The only sound the average person has heard from the quail is the well-known "bob white"; but this bird at times gives all the sounds of danger, warning, etc., that only he who communes with nature has the privilege of hearing.

The daintiest morsel of food to Fritz is the common house fly. When- ever one of the Schippang family dips its hands the quail will appear, for it has learned to know that the clapping is a signal that it is to get a fly to eat.

The quail and the family cat have become inseparable friends. This friendship has existed from the day Fritz came to the Schippang home. No one thing pleases the cat more than to have the quail cuddle up under its paws in the bright sunshine, and both take a snooze together.

For the sake of amusement a mirror will sometimes be placed before the bird. Overcome with jealousy that another of its ilk has dared invade its domain, Fritz will puff up and fly headlong at the mirror and not cease fighting until the looking glass is taken away.

Asbestos sheets are being instituted under the mattresses of sleeping cars on some of the railways of the United States to shut out the heat from the radiators underneath.

How Could She Know?

He was a fragile youth and didn't dance all the dances.

"Let's sit it out," he said to his pretty partner.

"On the stairs?" he suggested.

So they went up and sat down.

"Ah!" cried the fragile youth, suddenly, and rose hastily, gasping for breath.

"Why, Mr. Stackpole, what's the matter?" cried the fair young girl.

He could not answer. His face was livid, his eyes were rolling and his whole frame was shaking.

"What kind of attack is it?" she gasped. And at this interrogation his voice returned to him.

"What earthly difference does that make?" he growled, "so long as it was one?"

Then without a word of apology he strode manfully away.

But how was she to know that the particular description of attack was just an ordinary tack, acrobatically standing on its head?

Excursion to Milwaukee.
Reduced rates of fare and one-half for the round trip are offered to merchants in the West and Northwest by the Milwaukee Association of Jobbers and Manufacturers. The dates of sale at all stations distant 100 miles or more from Milwaukee are August 15-25 inclusive, tickets good returning until September 2 and August 29-September 6 inclusive, tickets good returning until September 16.

To obtain these rates merchants must get from their local agent receipt for one full paid fare to Milwaukee which, when countersigned by any Milwaukee jobber or manufacturer and the secretary of the Milwaukee Association of Jobbers and Manufacturers will entitle holder to return ticket for one-half fare.

Milwaukee jobbers and manufacturers want the patronage of up-to-date business men. They offer best goods at right prices and believe in and offer fair treatment. How the Dirt Files at Panama.
Lieutenant-Colonel George Geothals, chairman and chief engineer of the Isthmian canal commission, told President Roosevelt late in January that before January 1, 1915, the ditch which is to bisect the vertebrae of the American continent will be completed and that all will be in readiness for the first trip to make the little pleasure journey from the Atlantic to the Pacific, so writes Roy Crandall in the Technical World Magazine. Inasmuch as the colonel is noted for conservatism and caution, it is believed that he feels deep down in his own heart that at least a year will be cut from that estimate.

SAVED AT THE CRISIS.

Delay Meant Death from Kidney Troubles.
Mrs. Herman Smith, 901 Broad street, Athens, Ga., says: "Kidney disease started with slight irregularity and weakness and developed into dangerous dropsy. I became weak and languid and could do no housework. My back ached terribly. I had bearing down pains and my limbs bloated to twice their normal size. Doctors did not help and I was fast drifting into the hopeless stages. I used Doan's Kidney Pills at the critical moment and they really saved my life."

IT SEEMED INCURABLE.

Body Raw with Eczema—Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless—Cuticura Remedies Cured Him.

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. In spite of treatments the disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. He used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep and the agony he went through is quite beyond words. The regimental doctor pronounced the case hopeless. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but had gotten almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies. The result was truly marvelous, and to-day he is perfectly cured. Mrs. Lily Hedge, Cambridge Green, England, Jan. 12, 1907."

A Tooth Point.

Dentists' children rarely have filled teeth for the reason that they are taught to use the toothbrush with a circular motion. The brush, as in the ordinary motion, goes back and forth, but it also goes round and round. Thus it finds out all the crannies. Dentists say that the circular motion, applied both to the front and back of the teeth, will keep them absolutely clean—and absolutely clean teeth cannot decay. The teeth should be brushed after each meal and especially at bedtime. The morning brush before breakfast, which is the only one commonly applied, does scarcely any good at all, since the teeth, immediately after, become clogged with food.
