DOUBLE RECORD FOR FLIGHT IN AEROPLANE

Orville Wright Stays in Air at Fort Meyer 57 Minutes and 31 Seconds.

HIGH SPEED IS MAINTAINED.

Aviator Has Perfect Control of His Machine and Says He Could Have Continued Flying.

A new world record in aeroplane flights was established at Fort Meyer, Va., early Wednesday, when Orville Wright circled above the broad parade grounds three times and remained in the air fifty-seven minutes and thirty-one seconds, official time.

Mr. Wright's smashing of all previous records carried out his promise, after his two remarkable ascents, when, at the maximum height of sixty feet, going ten and three-quarter miles in all and averaging thirty-six miles an hour, he spent eleven minutes in one flight and eight minutes in the other.

The achievement was accomplished under ideal weather conditions and in the presence of about twenty-five spectators aside from the soldiers. The ascent was made at 8:15 o'clock in the morning. It was an easy ride in the air, the machine was under perfect control and the aviator traveled at a speed approximating thirty-six to thirty-eight miles an hour.

Wright is Highly Pleased.

Mr. Wright expressed himself as highly pleased over what had been accomplished by his machine, and declared that had he known he was close to being in the air an hour he would have remained a little longer. He said that he came down because his motor slipped once or twice, and that he thought he had been in the air only half an hour.

Except for the slipping of the motor no trouble was experienced in the working of the aeroplane. Everything went as smoothly as the most perfectly adjusted clock, and the man who essayed to beat all records in this branch of aeronautics handled his invention with as perfect ease as a trained engineer would handle the throttle of his locomotive.

Record Broken Nearly in Two.

By his wonderful flight at Fort Meyer Wednesday morning Orville Wright almost broke in two the best official record ever before made by a heavier-than-air machine. It was only the previous Sunday that Leon Delagrang, president of the Aviation Club of France, established a new world record by remaining in the air 29 minutes and 54 seconds. He circled the field at Issy, near Paris, fifteen and a half times and covered fifteen and a quarter miles. Monday Delagrang, after installing a fuel tank of increased capacity on his machine, made a flight of thirty-one minutes, but the record was not allowed to stand, three minutes being deducted because the aeroplane touched the ground while making its first round of the field.

A period of twenty years in France and Belgium has not materially changed the tonnage output of a miner employed, but the German miners have reduced their output by twenty-one tons in that term, and the British miners by no less than thirty-four tons since 1887.

In the matter of factory inspection and the health and safety of employes, legislative action was taken in thirty-nine States and Territories last year. The law in Spain which already fixed the maximum working hours for children between the ages of ten and fourteen years, limiting them to six hours in mills and other industrial establishments, and to eight hours in shops and offices, and which further prohibited them from being employed on night work, has until now made no regulations against the employment of women and children in certain harmful branches of industry.

American shippers in Mukden have made formal complaint to their consul of the fact that the Japanese railroad in Manchuria is discriminating against them. As a demonstration of sympathy, 20,000 mill hands in Bombay went on a strike. Rioting ensued, and Europeans were stoned and jeered, and a magistrate's house attacked and a mail train held up. The troops were called out and had to fire solid shots into the crowd, with fatal effect, before order was restored.
