LOWERING THE FLAG. The Regulation Method of Half Mast. The method of showing honor to the dead through the position of the flag, placed at half mast—it is termed in naval circles, in the army, at half staff—is described in Article 41, paragraph 428, of the United States army regulations as follows:

"Where the flag is displayed at half staff it is lowered to that position from the top of the staff. It is afterward hoisted to the top before it is finally lowered."

"At military posts," said a sergeant of the army recruiting station, "where the flag staff is planted in the ground it is usually in two sections, one about eight feet high. When the flag is placed at half staff it is customary to lower it to the middle of the upper section, which in this case is a solid rod the staff. At forts and other posts where flags are on top of buildings the flag, when placed at half staff, is hung from the middle of the staff, the central point of the flag, the lower corner of star section coinciding with a point midway between the top and bottom of the staff."

"When a flag is placed at half mast in the navy," said a lieutenant of the United States naval recruiting station, "the distance between the top of the flag and the top of the mast is made to equal approximately the distance between the bottom of the flag and the base of the mast."—Kansas City Times.
