REBELS HAVE HAYTI

GEN. LEGITIME IS PROCLAIMED THE NEW RULER.

Alexis Attacked by Populace and Driven from the Palace, Barely Escaping with His Life—Simon and Insurgents in Control.

President Nord Alexis, of Hayti, has been deposed and is now on board the French training ship Du Guay Trouin, and Port au Prince is in the hands of the revolutionists.

Gen. Antoine Simon, the leader of the insurgents, is marching up the peninsula with an army of 5,000, and a new president, Gen. Legitime, has been proclaimed.

At the last moment, President Alexis yielded to the urging of those about him and took refuge aboard the French warship.

At precisely 5 o'clock a salute of twenty-one guns announced his departure from the palace. Thousands had gathered there early in the day and surged around the entrance, threatening to tear down the walls to drive out the president and his loyal followers.

An immense crowd of men and women had assembled at the wharf, and the arrival of the presidential carriage, escorted by a battalion of infantry and a squadron of cavalry, under command of Gen. Hippolyte, was the signal for tumult and riot.

All along the route the people who lined the streets shouted, "Jeered and cursed at the fallen president," but when the landing stage was reached the mob lost all restraint. The scene was tragic and shameful. Injured women broke through the cordon of troops and shrieked the coarsest insults in the very face of the president, who strove bravely to appear undisturbed.

They tried to hurl themselves upon Alexis, and fought with hand and feet against the soldiers, who found difficulty in forcing them back. In order to disengage him, the troops discharged their guns.

During this time a space was cleared, and Nord Alexis, with the French colors still draped about him, was hurried aboard a skiff in tow of a steam launch, his suite tumbling into the skiff after him. As the launch drew away, three Haytian gunboats and the French and American warships in the harbor fired a salute to the fallen president.

APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

Pine Bluff Citizens Want to Change River's Course.

While appealing as a last recourse to President Roosevelt that permission be granted to cut through government levees and change the course of the Arkansas river, leaving Pine Bluff, Ark., "high and dry," but safe, every available man in that city will be put to work strengthening the already crumbling banks until the crest of a 16-foot rise passes that point, in an effort to prevent an overflow which would mean the destruction of property valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars and possibly loss of life.

The plan suggested was that a strip of land several miles north of Pine Bluff, where the river starts a "horse-shoe bend," be cut through, but federal permission through the interior department cannot be secured.

Queen Lilloukalani, who is back in Washington again, is broke. The former ruler of the Hawaiian Islands at 74 is still trying to get into the United States treasury to the extent of $200,000.

There is little possibility that Lilloukalani will succeed in her mission, but so firm is her faith in her claim that she has mortgaged her home in Honolulu to make the trip to Washington, according to George B. McClelland, Hawaiian representative before congress.

The government losses at Anne Avenue on Friday and the rout of the loyal troops have caused consternation among the officials of the government with possibly the exception of President Nord Alexis.
