Record Nebraska Wolf Hunt, The residents of the north edge of Adams county and the south edge of Hall county participated in a wolf hunt recently in which twenty-three wolves were captured out of twentyfive rounded up, says the Hastings (Neb.) Tribune. It is claimed that this is a record breaker for the state.

Wolf hunts are all the go, but as a rule Br'er Wolf shows a clean pair of heels and gets away. In a round-up in Farmers township an unfortunate was caught napping; the others slipped through the line. A hundred or more men and boys organized a hunt on the river bottom directly east of town. One wolf was killed, one at least and possibly more escaped by hiding in the grass.

Their hair is the color of the dead grass, and a wolf will lie flat and not be seen by a hunter only a rod or so away, and when the line passes he makes for his life. A hunt announced for Sumner town ship came off lately, when one wolk was killed and four got away. The hunts afford considerable sport, even though they get few wolves. Usually at the end of a round-up there will be a lot of jack rabbits and cottontalls in the ring, and when the shotguns are turned loose it is a reminder of a skirmish line in action.

Two Kinds; Both Tired.

An agent of the Interior Department tells many stories illustrating odd phases of the Indian's character.

"There was a farmer in the West," says this agent, "who was in a difficulty to secure help on his farm. Indians were numerous in the neighborhood, but they were poor workmen. Always tired, they would put down the hoe or the rake as soon as the master's back was turned, and, selecting a cool spot, they would lie down in the shade and sleep the day away.

"But one morning a very tall, robust Indian came, asking the farmer for

PRESIDENT ELIOT ADVOCATES PUBLICITY BEFORE STRIKES

Fifty-five applications have arisen under the act and have resulted in the creation of forty-nine boards. Dr. PRESIDENT ELIOT. Eliot shows that, on the fifty-five applications, strikes were avoided or ended in twenty-five coal mines, four metalliferous mines, fifteen railroads, three street railways, two bodies of longshoremen, one body of teamsters, one body of sailors and in two industries that were not public utilities. In only two cases were strikes not averted or ended. The six cases in which boards were not created were settled promptly through the influence of the act. Some of these disputes involved large numbers of workmen, notably two cases of the Dominion Coal Company, with 3,000 men affected in one case and 7,000 men in another; and several railroad cases in some of which 7,000 to 8,000 men were directly affected. That Canadian workingmen have acquired confidence in the operation of the act Dr. Eliot concludes from the fact that they have been the applicants for the creation of boards in forty-

Not the least beneficial result of the act, Dr. Eliot considers, is that 'although perfect liberty to strike or lock out ultimately is reserved under the Canadian act, several weeks must elapse from the time the dispute began before work can be stopped." Thus, "there is time for passion to cool, and for the costs of war to be counted by both parties. The interests of the public may also get some sort of effective expression during this interval; and when the report of the board is thoroughly published, in accordance with the provisions of the act, public opinion, being well informed, usually expresses itself with clearness and force."

BARON MAKING HIS WAY AROUND WORLD TO TEST HEARTS OF MEN.

On a journey by which he aims to show that civilization has not made mankind heartless, Baron Fon Der Osten-Saken, St. Petersburg, Russia, who says he is a nephew of the Russian minister of war, is making his way around the world. He started penniless. Sitting in a cafe in St. Petersburg he argued with another Russian named Poitovsef, a merchant, regarding the effects of civilization on hospitable instincts. The result of the debate was that the baron started from St. Petersburg without a cent to make his way around the world, testing the kindness of persons he met by applying for employment. The time limit given him is seven years. He is to travel by any means availa-

USEFUL TREES OF FLORIDA.

Great Variety Growing in the State -Durable Woods.

Florida has perhaps more usefu trees growing within her borders than any other State in the Union-a greater variety. But there is a general desire to introduce more, as the soan berry, the tallow tree and the eucalyptus.

An addition to the discussion of the latter, a tree which is very valuable because it has the unusual quality of growing with great rapidity, yet furnishing a hard and durable wood, is furnished by a letter to the editor of the Florida Fruit and Produce News by E. E. Thompson of Avon Park. Mr. Thompson says in part: "Eucalyptus trees were first planted here about 1894, and were injured by the great freeze, but sprouted and grew like orange trees.
