Washington Matters.

Washington, March 10, 1910

For many weeks there has been in Washington a delegation of Omaha Indians from Thurston County, Nebraska, representing their tribe in matters pending here. They found friends from Nebraska to help them both at the Department and at the Capital. Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs Fred H Abbott, formerly of Aurora, Nebraska, had the handling of practically all of the business at the Department, and in the various bills pending before Congress, Senators Burkett and Brown were at the front for them. Senator Burkett has one important measure upon which he has been working for the Omahas five years, while Senator Brown is a member of the Indian Affairs Committee, and hence has been able to do good service for them there. Senator Burkett spent many hours at the Department with the delegation also.

The visit of the Omahas has brought results that mark an epoch in their lives, giving nearly all of them final control over their property, and conferring upon them the prerogatives of full citizenship. To the Omahas it is a new page in history, just as significant to them as the granting of Magna Charta to the people it affected centuries ago, or the proclaiming of independence to the colonist of New England. While the Department is still to have some friendly oversight of those of the Tribe that specially need it, for the most part they are to be wards of the government no longer, and will take their place in affairs of private and public interest as citizens.

Before they left Washington, they saw the way cleared for the passage of their bill to grant jurisdiction to the Court of Claims over the claims the Omahas still have against the government. Heretofore the Department has ruled upon their claims, and the Omahas have had no higher court to go to. Not satisfied with the awards under the treaties, they have long desired to submit the facts to a court, and the bill referred to, which Senator Burkett has been working on for five years, gives the Court of Claims this jurisdiction. Heretofore the Department has opposed it. However the Secretary of the Interior has finally recommended its passage; the Indian Affairs Committee has reported favorably, and it seems sure to become a law before Congress adjourns.

Congressman Kinkaid is working hard upon the bill to allow settlers on the Reclamation projects to assign their patents after five years residence. The bill has gone over to the House after passing the Senate Senator Burkett made a vigorous fight for greater privileges to the Homesteaders on the floor of the Senate when the bill was up for passage. While the equities of the settlers were admitted by the Irrigation Committee, they did not see their way to grant all the concessions urged by Senator Burkett. There is still a chance to have them incorporated before the Bill passes the House, and if they are put in, both Congressman Kinkaid and Senator Burkett will exert all their powers of persuasion, eloquence and whatever else they can use with propriety to see that they stay in.

Wrong Views of the Census

Letters from the census supervisors to the United States Census Bureau show the erroneous apprehension of a considerable element of the population that answers to the enumerators questions in the next census, beginning April 15, this year, will cause increased taxation, legal entanglements or injurious consequences to their persons and property.

In order to quiet such unfounded fears, which would, unless removed, materially affect the accuracy of the census, the bureau has prepared an official statement relative to the decennial census, its origin, purpose, and uses.

This statement should furnish complete assurance to those concerned that information given the enumerators is held by the Census Bureau in the strictest confidence with reference to the identity of the informants, as required by the policy of the bureau and commanded by the law of the United States.

The bureau earnestly hopes that clergymen, priests, physicians, schoolteachers, employers, and other public-spirited citizens who come in contact with large numbers of people, will cooperate with the bureau by telling persons who are believed to entertain erroneous opinions of the census the real facts and urging them to give full replies to the enumerators Teachers are particularly requested to speak of the census to the school children and ask them to tell their parents about it.

The statement issued by the bureau explains that the Constitution requires a census of the population to be taken every ten years in order to reapportion state representation in the National House of Representatives. It is the means also to ascertain the increase in the population, agriculture, industries, and resources of the nation since the last census.

It is emphatically declared, by the statement, that the information sought from the people of the United States is used solely for general statistical purposes. It will neither be published nor used in any other way to disclose facts regarding any individual or enterprise. The census, it goes on to say, is not, never has been, and can not be employed to obtain information that can be used in any way in assessment of property for purposes of taxation or the collection of taxes, either national, state, or local; or for deportation proceedings, extradition measures, army or navy conscription, internal revenue investigations, compulsory school attendance, child-labor law prosecutions, quarantine regulations, or in any way to affect the life, liberty, or property of any person.

It points out that replies to the enumerators are and must be held by the Census Bureau in strict and absolute confidence. All the bureau officials, supervisors, supervisors' clerks, enumerators, and interpreters, before entering upon their duties, are obliged to take a solemn oath not to disclose any information they may obtain, except to the Census Bureau, and a violation of the United States law in regard to this oath means a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for two years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Walthill Times: Miss Grace Lamson was home over Sunday....J B Rossiter went to Dakota City Tuesday evening....County Coroner Johnson held an inquest over the body of Mrs Oscar Crawford, at the family home, six miles northwest of Walthill, Tuesday. The inquiry was instigated by neighbors, but developed nothing except that the woman had died from natural causes. Mrs Crawford's death occurred Sunday evening and was sudden. She had been ill, but had been up and around the house that morning. The doctor who had been attending her was out of the county and Dr Ream was summoned, but when he arrived death had preceded him. Some few days before her death Mrs Crawford had received an injury to one of her eyes, and this having caused a discoloration of the skin and appearing on the body after death, led some of the neighbors to suspicion something wrong. At the inquest, however, it was clearly developed that death was due to peritonitis and that the injury had only been a very slight one and contributed not even remotely to the woman's demise. It was simply another case of neighborhood rumor developing into scandal; based upon nothing, resulting in sorrow and distress to innocent people. Mrs Crawford was a member of an old and respectable Dakota county family and was buried at Homer, Wednesday.

Sioux City Journal, 8th: It was declared last night that the Superior Lumber and Coal company of Minneapolis was preparing to establish one of its branch yards in Sioux City. John H Beaver, auditor of the Edwards & Bradford Lumber company of Sioux City, has resigned his position with that company, to take effect March 15, and will become manager of the new company, according to the report. It is said the Minneapolis concern already has purchased a half block of ground at Lakeport and Morningside avenues and will at once construct yards there. As soon as lumber arrives from Minneapolis the branch yard will be started. Mr Beaver could not be reached last night. He is out on the road and will not be back until Saturday. His wife when called to the phone, refused to state whether her husband would take the new position C H Bradford, vice president of the Edwards & Bradford company, said last night he had no knowledge of the new company other than that Mr Beaver's resignation was to take effect March 15 and that it was with the understanding that he was to go to a new company. He said the same thing had happened last year, but that the company had not come then and that Mr Beaver retained his present position. The Superior company is a large concern and represents a capital of half million dollars. It has twenty-five or thirty branch yards in the middle west.

Emerson Enterprise: H O Armour was an Emerson visitor Thursday.... DID you ever sit around outside your house on a Sunday afternoon, or of an evening, maybe, and watch the paint, and see it go, when it ought to be holding on tight?

Some paints are so poor that you can almost see them as they dry out, and crumble, and powder, and blow away.

Why do they do this? Why does this happen? Something the matter with the materials—too much lead, maybe, or poor oil, or not scientifically ground and mixed—might have been good materials but not balanced right for wear.

At this store we make it our business to KNOW what paint will wear—because it pays us to handle the kind that pays you. And that's why we handle MOUND CITY HORSE SHOE BRAND HOUSE PAINT—made of pure lead and zinc and aged linseed oil, the necessary drier and coloring matter—and nothing else. Every atom of every gallon of it is good paint. Paint that is balanced for longest wear, for finest looks and to spread over the largest surface to the gallon.

So much for the outside of the house, but don't forget there's a HORSE SHOE BRAND PAINT for every use—one for kitchen floors and steps—one for borders around rugs—one for screens—one for buggies, another for wagons, and one for practically every other purpose.

The best place in this town to buy paint is the place where they know most about paint and can help you and advise you what particular paint to use for the purpose, how to get the surface ready, how to put it on, and all that; things you naturally want to know to get the best results. So if you want the best paint and the best paint service (and you do, if you come here,) come here.
