That's quite a joke that some of our exchanges are trying to foist upon their readers by quoting Banker Gov Shalenberger as one of "we farmers" because a man "farms the farmer" it is no sign he is a farmer or a son of a farmer.

The board of county commissioners at its session Saturday passed an order designating the county clerk as purchasing agent for the county supplies. This was done for the reason that some of the county officers have been giving orders for certain supplies to parties that do not handle them and the county is charged exorbitant prices for them, where if they were given to dealers in such supplies they could be furnished for about half the price charged. Dakota county is now on a cash-paying basis and should have the benefit of cash prices.

Washington News Letter

Washington, April 6, 1910.
The Rivers and Harbors bill, which will be reported out of the Commerce Committee of the Senate certainly not later than Thursday, will carry in the neighborhood of fifty-two millions of dollars; but of this amount between seven and ten millions will not come out of the revenues for the current fiscal year, because they are only recognizing the meritoriousness of projects which have heretofore had no legislative endorsement.

The bill which will recognize the necessity of completing the improvements of the Missouri River from St. Louis to Kansas City, will also appropriate $300,000 for the improvements of the Missouri River above Kansas City, taking in that stretch of the river up as far as Yankton, S. D., and possibly beyond. The sentiment for improving the Rivers and Harbors of the United States has grown enormously in the last few years, and Senator Burkett stands among the first of the Senators to recognize the necessity of proceeding with these improvements along broad and conservative lines. In season and out he has urged Congress to adopt a broad comprehensive policy of river improvement, to the end that those great natural waterways of ours with which this country has been most bountifully provided shall be put to their best use; for the time is not far distant when the railroads of the United States will be wholly incompetent to move the enormous freights we are producing. Senator Burkett was before the Commerce Committee of the Senate the other day urging not only that the Missouri River should be looked after, but he asked for a liberal appropriation to the end that the lands be saved and made stable rather than have them washed away at flood periods; and if the annual feature of the bill becomes fixed, as both committees dealing with this subject have voted, the "pork barrel" as this has been called, will be done away with, and an annual appropriation to carry out the projects endorsed by the Board of the Engineers of the Army will be certain of completion within a reasonable time, a consummation most devoutly to be wished for.

Congressman Brossard, of Louisiana, who has introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $250,000 to be spent by the Department of Agriculture in the propagation of new meat-growing animals, had a most interesting hearing the other day before the House Committee on Agriculture, in which it was shown that the horse, the cow, the goat and the pig were not native to this country, but had been brought in in early days from foreign countries. It was also shown that a hundred other animals could be introduced and would thrive in this country, and it introduced would go far toward solving the problem of our meat supply. Farmers, according to the statements made before the Committee, could have species of smaller deer around their places weighing anywhere from five to one hundred pounds, which could be used for meat; and the introduction of the hippopotami into the lily-pad section of the south, notably Louisiana, Florida and Texas, might clear the streams in that section of the water-hyacinth, provide for a larger fish supply, and at the same time furnish food for persons living on the bayous and the rivers of that section. The hippopotamus gets his full growth in four years and weighs about four tons. The Boers in South Africa live upon this meat most largely, and the fatty portions of this animal between the skin and the muscles, when cured and salted, make a most delicious morsel, and is called by the Africans "Lake-Cow Bacon."

The Sixth Annual Banquet of the League of Republican Clubs, composed of twenty-five state organizations, of which E. C. Snyder, Washington correspondent of the Omaha Bee, is President, gives promise of being the most largely attended banquet of Republicans ever held in Washington. It takes place at the Arlington Hotel Saturday evening, April 9th, at which time President Taft, Secretary Nagel of Commerce & Labor, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, and Representatives Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, Wm B. McKinley, of Illinois, Chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, Duncan McKinley, of California, J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania, and John Hayes Hammond, President of the National Republican League, will make addresses. Hon W. E. Andrews, formerly of Hastings, now Auditor for the Treasury Department, is chairman of the Banquet Committee, and it is expected that Nebraska will be among the states having the largest representation present. There will be four hundred covers laid, and more tickets would have been sold had there been seating capacity, for interest in the banquet is very keen. The Republican members of the Nebraska delegation will attend in a body.

She united with the Presbyterian church many years ago, under Rev Wheeler and ever since she has endeavored to live a consistent christian life. She was a lady of great strength of character, carrying herself as one determined to bear rather than expose affliction and sorrow, and she lived a life of splendid self-negativeness. She was a devoted mother and wife, a splendid neighbor, and faithful and true to extreme. For the past fourteen years she has been gradually declining until at last, with faculties keen and alert, she made preparations for her demise, calmly choosing and arranging for this day when we so affectionately pay the last tribute. She was a member of the O E S, affiliative to the Masonic order, of which her husband is a member, the brethren and sisters of which accompany her to her last earthly resting place. Her husband, her aged mother, two brothers, three sons, William, Clay and Arthur, and two daughters, Mrs Carrie McBride, and Mrs Perl Barker, with grandchildren and other relatives, and a host of friends, live to mourn her death. She was 63 years old.

Sioux City Journal, 6th C A Conant and O J Kloster were elected councilmen yesterday in the municipal election at South Sioux City to succeed D L Fairbank and N D Pilgrim, whose terms of office expire. The election returns gave Mr Kloster 100 votes, Conant 99, Fairbank 65, Fred Gordon 59, John Jenkins 49 and N D Pilgrim 46. It is declared by those in touch with the situation that the result of the election means a new mayor for South Sioux City. The present mayor is W A Morgan. The new council will meet for the first time May 3 and will choose a mayor at that time. It is said the alignment of the council members will be changed with the advent of the two new members and that the law and order league will have backing in the effort to drive the houses of ill fame from South Sioux City. Members of the league point to the fact that while there has been considerable talk against these houses, but little has been accomplished, and it is declared the councilmanic campaign really was fought on this issue. The council now will make up of Morgan, Kloster, Conant, S B Funk and A McIntyre. It is asserted a majority of these men are ready to line up for strong law enforcement regarding houses of ill fame. It is also hinted that the street department and marshalship will be separated. Heretofore these departments have been presided over by one man. Grant Castor now holds the office. At present there are six houses of ill fame in South Sioux City.

Most men fail in business through the lack of will power or not developing the inherent energy that every man possesses. The possibilities that lie within man's possessions within an ordinary lifetime if comprehended or realized would be startling. Some men do only what they are influenced in doing. Life throws out no inducement. The line of least resistance seems to be their's by choice. It is within every man's circumstance to be a benefit to the world and he should be proud of the opportunity to develop his talents.

Not long since a young man of splendid muscular development was seen in our city with two heads, on his shoulders. Both were fully developed heads, with rather handsome features, one with blond hair and the other with black. The young man is not a museum freak as might be supposed. The other head was the property of his sweetheart, and would not have appeared in such a deformed position had it been for the young lady's neglect to "drop the curtain."
