Presence of Prominent Men From All Sections of Country Adds Dignity to Important Gathering-Exemplifies Growth of 50 Years.

Atlanta, Ga .- The presence of Presdent Taft, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Secretary of War Dickinson, Woodrow Wilson, governor of New Jersey, together with all the governors of the southern states and some of the foremost business men of the nation at the opening of the Southern Commercial congress here Wednesday added dignity to a convention whose importance to the country at large and to the South in particular will be second to none. Coming as it does just fifty years after the division of the states in civil strife, it exemplifies that great commercial union that has sprung from ehe ashes of a dead revolution to bind the North and the South firmly in the bonds of mutual Interest.

Three men of world-wide reputation occupied the attention of the convention with adresses of much interest. Secretary Wilson delivered a speech on agriculture in the South, George Westinghouse spoke on "Electricity in the Development of the South." and George W. Perkins addressed the convention on "Business Efficiency in Southern Progress."

During the three days of the convention many speeches were delivered. These discourses were headed by a speech from Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida on "The Southern Renaissance." The second speech of national importance will be by Senator Money of Mississippi on "The Obligation of the Panama Canal." The third national utterance was from the lips of Former Senator ames Gordon of Mississippi, who brought a message "From Yesterday to Today." He was followed by Dr. Clarence J. Owens, comamnder-inchief of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, who spoke on "Today and Tomorrow." Colonel Roosevelt was the fifth speaker. President Taft made the closing remarks of the

This institute is called "Park Life," and was founded two years ago by Prof. B. J. Horchem of Dubuque as an experiment. The plan is to train young boys along useful, interesting and healthful lines, to keep them busy throughout the year and to instill in them a real love for outdoor life, and, above all, for promission shall have power to issue orductive occupations.

All the work of the school centers about "the farm," where the boys are taught the simple elements of sciensame manner and under the same tific farming, how to raise the different varietles of garden truck and how and when to plant the staple crops, no other penalty is provided by law such as wheat, corn, rye and barley. The boys also are taught about cattle, sheep and poultry.

In addition to this, the school grounds must be kept up and the youthful farmers get experience in agricultural engineering, such as ditch and well digging, road building and irrigation.

The defendants agents of the police have been in an are Wilbur W. McAlpine, Albert H. Roehme, George W. Ross, Frank D. Andrus, Arthur Holmes and McCurdy C. Le Beau, all of Detroit, and John M. Bushnell of Chicago. The foregoing are officials of a company known as the Michigan-Alaska Development company.

The contention of the government is that the defendants conspired to induce between 200 and 300 individuals to become stockholders in the Michigan-Alaska company by making "fraudulent and fictitious locations of certain Alaska coal lands," thereby violating the land entry laws of 1910, which made it illegal for more than four persons to form a company for locating Alaska coal lands and taking out patents on more than 640 acres.
