

A New York lecturer in a recent address undertook to demonstrate that some of the practices of immigrants in this country, which are troublesome to the authorities, have their origin in the best intentions and may be easily corrected when the requirements of the American environment are made clear to the new arrivals. To illustrate his point he told an interesting story. A certain immigrant mother of numerous offspring was several times haled to court and fined for hurling her ashes into the city street on which she lived, says the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin. With philosophic submission to arbitrary governmental tyranny she paid her fines and went her way. Finally, a charitable person, explained to her, in her own tongue why she should not throw her ashes into the street. It then appeared that in the little Polish village whence she came she and her neighbors had been requested by a local authority to throw their ashes into the road by way of impromptu street building. Then he related a contrasting anecdote as follows: "I once heard one of the founders of the City Club say that when he came of age he asked his excellent father to give him some idea of what might be his duties as a full-fledged citizen of this great city. His father replied: 'My son, as a gentleman and the son of a gentleman, all you need know of municipal procedure is that in order to have your ashes properly cared for you must bribe the ashman.'

Baby Pleas Win the Father's Liberty

"It's my husband," the mother explained; "he's in jail and I haven't anybody to support these." And she pointed to the flock of youngsters about her.

"I guessed as much," Judge Latschaw said. Then calling a marshal, the father, Robert Burns, was brought before him.

"Papa!" the youngsters cried fully when their father stepped into the room, all of them trying to embrace him at once.

"Well, Burns," the judge said, "your children have won a parole for you. But let me tell you, a man who can't keep straight with as many strings to his heart as these, isn't much of a man. He—"

"But, please, judge," the wife interrupted to defend her husband, "it's partly my fault, too. We used to go to church, but somehow I just let him get out of the habit and I quit, too. I know he wouldn't be in this trouble now if we'd kept on going to church."

"Well, church is a mighty good place to go to," the judge said.

"Now, you take your wife and children home and you stay home with them nights, if I hear of you—"

As the happy father left his office Judge Latschaw told Burns that he would put him in jail again the minute he heard of him taking a drink or abusing his children.

Just one more kiss for good night, mamma. Just one more kiss for good-night. And then you may get to my dear papa. And—yes—you may put out the light. For I'll promise you truly I won't be afraid.

As I was last night, you see, 'Cause I'm going to be papa's brave little maid. As he told me I ought to be.

But the shadows won't seem so dark, mamma. If you'll kiss me a little bit more; And, you know, I can listen and hear where you are.

If you only won't shut the door. For if I can hear you talking, I think. It will make me so sleepy, maybe. That I'll go to sleep just as quick as a wink.

And forget—to cry like a baby. You needn't be laughing, my mamma dear. While you're hugging me up so tight; You think I am crying to keep you here, you, and—I guess—the light. Please kiss me good-night once more, mamma. I could scarcely promise keep. If you'd only stay with me just as you are, And kiss me till—I go to sleep.

City of Portland a Bower of Beauty

Portland, Ore.—Old Oregon, originally that section of the northwestern part of the United States, now including the present states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, is without doubt one of the most wonderful regions in the world, and were it necessary, could go it alone very nicely as a little world by itself.

Oregon contains a large amount of territory, has a varied climate of the most salubrious nature. For nearly 300 miles on the west, the waters of the Pacific ocean, warmed by the Japan current, wash its shores, whence to its eastern boundary line it is almost 400 miles. The great Columbia river forms the greater portion of the northern boundary of the state, which joins California on the south and contains 96,000 square miles of land. The western part of the state is almost semi-tropical in its nature, while the eastern part still partakes largely of the nature of the vast acres of the middle west.

Portland, the metropolis of the state, is fittingly named the "Rose City." The title is fairly descriptive, for everywhere in Portland one finds early in the spring until very late in the fall these nature beautifiers blooming in great profusion. They prove not only the fertility of the soil in this part of the state, but demonstrate also the salubrity of the climate. Washington's birthday is rose planting day in Oregon. While on Christmas day one frequently sees beauties in bloom out of doors untouched by frost or harmed by chilly weather.

The festival of the roses held in June is the great gala occasion of the year. The city is literally smothered in fragrant blossoms and the daily rades far surpass in beauty any of the pageants, famous in history, held in ancient times.

But the "Rose Festival" is only one of the beautiful scenes to be met in the Rose City, with its wide well-kept streets, stately trees, artistic lawns, elegant residences and pleasant public parks.

When water courses were the only trails followed by commerce, Portland was born and since that day, but without blare or bluster, has steadily kept pace with the progress of the times. A quarter of a million people is a fair estimate of the inhabitants living in and around the city.

Who says the United States is not enlightening the world? The manufacture of what is called American-style furniture has become an important industry in Spain, where the people have a great liking for the product. This country was the pioneer in turning out attractive furniture at moderate prices, as it has been the leader in many other innovations that have contributed to domestic comfort and enjoyment, and the others are catching on. It is reaching the point where that sincere flattery which takes the form of imitation in becoming more and more pronounced. American ideas are being adopted everywhere.

The biggest submarine yet built is the Seal, which was launched at Newport News, Va., the other day. She is classed as a "cruiser" and is 131 feet long. The Seal, it is expected, will be capable of making long trips under water and is so well equipped that she will not be conveyed by a fighting craft on the surface, as is now usually the case. The submarine "cruiser" will be a unique addition to the American navy. When the proposed aeroplanes are constructed for the same branch of national defense it would seem that our navy would lack nothing for service on, under or over the water.

Kansas Man Has Streak of Hard Luck

about $12,000, he had little extra cash. But he was willing to help his sons, so they found a mill near Harper, Kan., reputed to be worth $40,000. Schreiber did not know the actual worth of the property, but he bought an eleven-twenty-fourths of the mill, giving in exchange his farm and notes for $8,000 for the minority interest.

Schreiber and his sons were ready to take charge of the mill, when it was burned. One insurance company has absolutely refused to pay any insurance and the other three insurance companies, which carried policies on the property, will not pay more than one-half the face value of the policies because of evidence of incendiary origin of the fire which the insurance agents have found.

Schreiber's farm is gone. His mill is gone and he cannot collect more than $3,000 as eleven-twenty-fourths of the insurance money. The grounds and salvage has been seized by the creditors of the mill. Schreiber can pay whatever he received on the notes he signed, but that will leave about $6,000. Attorney General Dawson may be able to compel a return of notes given by Schreiber on account of alleged fraud.

Telephone "rubbering" will be discouraged in New Hampshire should a bill pending in the legislature become a law. This measure provides a penalty of $10 for each offense when a person breaks in on a telephone conversation. It is aimed especially at the "listeners" on party wires, whose curiosity leads them into attempting to hear talk not intended for their ears. The practice is not confined to New Hampshire, but it will be interesting to observe the degree of success attained in the Granite State in dealing with the offense.

A New Yorker has bought for $3,600 a prize thorough cow in Canada and has brought the animal home in a special car and in charge of two veterinary surgeons. It is evident that there is money somewhere in the milk and butter business when properly conducted.

Every typewriting machine has an individuality, says an expert. We have noticed that some of them are wretched spellers.

In three months last year 321 persons were killed in railroad accidents. And then we shudder at the toll of the aeroplanes!

A New Jersey judge says dental work is not a luxury. He was referring, no doubt, to the way a victim feels in a dentist's chair.

Professor Goods wants the coal supply conserved. The landlord of your flat building will subscribe to that doctrine.

Some day stealing a hot stove may be regarded as tame and unexciting beside stealing the family chunk of radium.

However, we fear that the "Kiss Not" campaign will not gain a whole lot of popularity among our younger element.

A play that is branded "Not good for the young person" always draws packed houses at a mainline.

Among the most honored guests at the British coronation, early in the summer, will be the American dollar.

Almost always, when a man resolves to save regularly ten cents a day, he succeeds in doing it for one day.

Bloodhounds for Cincinnati Police

CINCINNATI, O.—Capturing criminals with bloodhounds is what the Cincinnati police department is preparing to do. Bloodhounds can trail successfully on busy streets as well as in the country. It has been tried out in recent experiments. The value of bloodhounds in connection with the detective department of police service in large cities has just been established in Cincinnati and a staff of bloodhounds will be the novel addition to the Cincinnati police department. This will be practically the first time such a thing has ever been attempted in a large city on a considerable scale.

The bloodhounds recently trailed a newspaper reporter over a trail half an hour old, through downtown streets of Cincinnati and finally rounded him up at police headquarters in the city hall. The trail of the reporter had been walked over by pedestrians, yet the hounds picked out the culprit.

Celebration Forbidden. The Rev. Dr. Unger, of Prague, has published the following advertisement in a number of Austrian papers: "Please take notice that because of my deafness any festivities arranged by my friends to celebrate the forthcoming fiftieth anniversary of my activity in the pulpit will have my disapproval, and I hereby forbid any arrangements in that direction."

Desperate Dentistry. An original Hamburg youth, who had a tough toothache the other day, got himself posed in front of a mirror, and shot out the offending molar with a revolver. He had the bullet lodged in the opposite shoulder, and proved more difficult to extract than the tooth would have been, this novel made of home dentistry might have been considered quite a success.

his path and landed the prisoner. Another test over a cross-country chase giving three men a two hours' start, resulted in the capture of the men after traveling almost five miles across rough country, suburban streets, across brooks and through woods. The dogs found all three negroes, took the trail readily and followed it without trouble over the entire course.

The success of these dogs in Cincinnati has resulted in other large cities becoming interested and police bloodhounds may soon be added to the departments of other large cities.

According to the history of the bloodhound he practically went out of business in England when districts established police forces. Prior to that bloodhounds were the police, or at least those people were dependent on them in tracing criminals. This was especially so on the border line between England and Scotland.

Since then bloodhounds have occasionally been brought into regulation. They have been employed by the Egyptian government to discover secret stores of smuggled hashish, while some owners of estates in England have successfully employed them in running down poachers.

Winder Before Attachment to Aeroplane.

According to the length of the rubber band used, is obviated by a little device invented in France. It consists of a ratchet wheel, provided with pincers of spring wire to clutch the mounting of the aeroplane, and a clamp attached to the propeller and connected with the ratchet wheel by means of a flexible spring. The rubber band is quickly twisted by turning the crank of the ratchet wheel. By the time it has been twisted sufficiently, the flexible spring connecting the ratchet wheel with the propeller has taken the form of a loop, which is the signal to stop winding.

CHURCH FOR CHILDREN ONLY

Worcester, Mass., Has First Institution of Its Kind—Collection Taken Up by Boys.

The original children's church of America, organized along the exact lines of the larger ones, has been established at Worcester, Mass., by Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern.

The service is similar to that for adults. At the opening a familiar hymn is sung and then comes the prayer, during which all the children bow their heads. The scripture lesson is read by Rev. Mr. Crathern from one of the versions of the Holy Writ which is taken up by four boys.

This is followed by a sermon by Rev. Mr. Crathern of a nature that any child could understand.

The children, in order to be active members of the church, have to subscribe to a simple creed and in addition, the Shepherd's psalm, the beatitudes, the new commandment, the faithful saying, the apostles' creed and the meaning of the Sacrament.

To aid them in preparation for membership there is a weekly class at the home of the pastor, where all can learn what is necessary in order to become full members. The plan is to have the children step from their church into the adult body when the proper time comes.

A choir of boys has been organized and at least one hymn is sung by them at every service. The girls of the church have organized themselves into a society which has been called the Lambs of the Flock, whose work is to look after charitable work.

OLDEST "CITY" IN AMERICA

Scientists Discover Copan Buried in the Forests of Honduras. Was Once Busy Center.

You were doubtless taught that St. Augustine, Fla., is the oldest city in America, and so far as settlements by Europeans are concerned that is probably correct, but scientists know of a city so old that there is no telling when it was built, and they often speak of it as "the oldest city in America." This "city" is Copan, buried in the forests of Honduras, near the Guatemala boundary line. It is not a city in the modern sense of the word, for it is only a heap of ruins, but there is enough to show that at some time centuries and centuries ago it was a busy center of population. Then the Maya Indians of Yucatan and Central America were at the height of their civilization. They built cities by constructing the bases of great pyramids out of blocks of stone of enormous size. These blocks were taken from quarries some times two miles distant, were conveyed to the "city" and placed in the wall in perfect order, and yet it is not known that the Mayas had any machinery for handling such heavy material.

The pyramidal base of Copan is built up to considerable height, and upon the flat top are placed the palaces, the altars and other smaller pyramids. From all evidence Copan was in ruins when Cortez conquered Mexico in 1521. The Spaniards and his soldiers passed within a short distance of it and did not see the town at all, so it must have been deserted even then. And yet the ruins of Copan bear evidence of having lain there, buried amid the luxuriant foliage of Honduras, for ages, and only some crude inscriptions on the rocks can give a clue to the history of the wonderful place. These inscriptions and carvings still defy solution. There are statues and images made of rock, but they are meaningless. Copan's history is unknown and so scientists are wont to speak of it as "the oldest city in America."

TO MAKE IMITATION FROST

Any Boy or Girl Can Almost Perfectly Duplicate the Beautiful Hoar Seen on Trees.

Everyone has seen and greatly admired the hoar frosts that deck the trees and telephone wires in the spring and fall of each year, but it will be news to many to learn that this exquisite picture made by nature can be almost perfectly imitated. Any boy or girl can do the trick. Take a sprig of some plant and set it on a small wooden stand in the center of which is a small, stout dish containing benzoic acid. If a spirit lamp containing alcohol is placed under the dish and a glass jar over it and the twig the acid will turn to vapor. When it cools a beautiful deposit of white crystals will be seen on the twig. If there is difficulty in getting a jar a wide bottle of large size will do, the lower part of the bottle being removed by the burning of a strand of wool which has previously been dipped in turpentine. When the experiment is performed the cork must be left in the bottle to prevent the vapor from escaping.

BRIGHT SIDE OF GUMBOL.

"Cheer up, my lad! You do look glum. You should always look on the bright side of things." "Perhaps you could tell me which is the bright side of a gumbol?"

Where "Old Put" Was Tied. The stump of the tree to which Isreal Putnam was once tied in the French and Indian war is still standing in the little village of Crown Point, a town in the upper part of New York. It was in the course of a skirmish near Wood creek, at the time of the French invasion in August, 1758, that he was captured by the Indians and tied to this tree. While the flames were searing his flesh he was saved by Captain Molang, a French officer, who rushed through the crowd, scattered the firebrands, cuffed and unbranded the Indians and released the victim. Putnam was taken to Montreal and presently freed by exchange.

Not Modest. "Mamma may I go in swimming with the boys?" asked Gerald. "No, dear, your bathing suit is not finished." "But, mamma. I ain't a bit modest."

WHEN IT REALLY WAS WARM

Incident Related by Mr. Bings Put an End to the Hot Weather Stories.

"Hot in Brazil!" said the young man who had just returned from a trip to South America, according to the Chicago Daily News. "Well, I should say so. Do you know, for days at a time we couldn't take our after dinner siesta on account of the peculiar noises." "What noises?" asked the blonde stenographer, innocently. "Why, the coffee popping on the trees. You see, the sun was so hot the grains just roasted before they were picked." The old traveler yawned. "Rather warm down there, bub," he rejoined, laconically, "but when I was down there you couldn't sleep at night. Every once in a while there would sound the most extraordinary crackling noise that ever fell upon the human ear." "What were the sounds, Mr. Bings?" And Mr. Bings yawned again and replied: "The rubber trees stretching themselves."

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. A. Brecht, Box 888, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. K. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.
