WILL D. G. EVANS DO IT?

To sum up D G Evans' published statements, he says that he will run the office of county treasurer, if elected, for just what is absolutely necessary. He claims to have used only $179.75 for deputy hire last year, (see delinquent tax list on the inside pages of this paper). He does not promise this year, nor next year, nor the next; but to get along with what is absolutely necessary. W J Manning is just as honest and conscientious as D G Evans, and makes the same promise—to do the work of the treasurer's office with just as little deputy hire as is absolutely necessary. Besides W J Manning is a property owner in Dakota county and has interest other than the salary connected with the treasurer's office, which cannot be truthfully said of Mr Evans. What the voters and taxpayers want to know is, will D G Evans do the work in the county treasurer's office next year with $179.75 deputy hire, and the year after for the same, or will he use all that is necessary of the $600 allowed by law to properly care for the work, even if it should require it all?

J C Elliott, editor of the West Point republican, who was nominated by the republicans of the Third district last week, in congressional convention, as the candidate of the party for congress to succeed the lamented Congressman Latta, is well known to many Nebraskans outside his own district. As a member of the Nebraska Press Association, and of the legal fraternity, and a pioneer and recent president of the Nebraska State Volunteer Firemen's Association, he has thousands of friends throughout the state who will retain a keen interest in his race—even though they have no voice in the matter—and will sincerely hope to see him elected. With a candidate of the ability and strength of Elliott there'll be something wrong with the Third district if it does not commission him as its representative in the lower house of congress.—Grand Island Daily Independent, Oct 3, 1911.

The Cedar County News boasts of the smallest tax list ever published in that county, and probably the smallest in the state, and attributes it to the splendid business ability of their county treasurer. If Dakota County could only do likewise—but no! we probably have the largest list this year in the history of the county, and the largest list of any county for its size in the state—an increase of several columns from two years ago, when Manning was treasurer.

One of the latest gags sprung by demagogues is that if Hazlegrove is elected sheriff all the slot machines must go, and what will the kids do for gum, then, poor things? Whatever should happen, if John L Hazlegrove is elected we will venture the assertion that he will perform the duties of the office of sheriff of Dakota county without fear, favor or partiality. Vote for Hazlegrove.

If Wilfred E Voss has served you well as county superintendent, he respectfully solicits your vote and support. We have the first one yet to hear say that he has not served Dakota county faithfully and well during his term of office, and the present prosperous condition of our schools is the very best testimony.

The Lyons Mirror used a lot of its valuable space last week trying to defend the liquor element for the part it is playing in politics this year. You can't tell whether Mosey is a Bryan county optionist, a Dahlgren democrat or a D O Heffernan "consumer."

If you want a good, capable business man on the board of county commissioners, W L Ross is the man to choose. His past record as a business man and county official is without a blemish.
