HOW MRS. BROWN TRUCK GARDENING AND POULTRY RAISING

THESE, AS WELL AS OTHER MIXED FARMING BRANCHES. PAY IN WESTERN CANADA.

Truck gardening and poultry grow ing are two branches of agriculture in which the farmers near the main lines of the three transcontinental lines traversing Western Canada are much concerned. The abundance of sunshine during the long days from May to September, and adequate moisture in the spring and early summer permit of a wide variety of crops. The soil is rich and warm and is easily worked. Close attention to cultivation has resulted in record yields of all sorts of vegetable and small fruits which bring good prices in the cities and at the numerous railway construction camps.

Mr. Harris Olum, an Alberta farmer, came from South Dakota eleven years ago and homesteaded the first 160 acres in his township in 1902, which was divided between grain and pasture. He earned sufficient money to buy a quarter section of railway land

Mr. Olum markets from 100 to 125 cattle each year. He has 200 hogs, mostly pure bred Poland China, 25 bred Hereford cattle. By feeding barley to hogs he estimates that the grain nets him 80 cents a bushel, as compared with 40 cents, the average market price when delivered to the warehouse. His average crop of barley is 40 bushels to the acre, while oats average 80 bushels. By writing any Canadian Government Agent, full particulars as to best districts on which to secure homesteads will be cheerfully given.-Advertisement.

Julius Caesar. The almost unanimous verdict of ancient and modern times is to the effect that Julius Caesar was what Shakespears calls him: "The foremost man of all this world." Never before or since has any one exhibited in so high a degree all the qualitles of a born ruler of men. And never had any man a grander role to play. To preside over the most important crisis in the history of the most important branch of the human race was a task that none but the greatest of men could successfully perform. Caesar swept one obstacle after another aside, and stood at last where he meant to stand.

What They Trusted. Having ascertained his weight on the railway station weighing machine

the man said to the porter: "Isn't it a lack of business foresight to put one of those machines that distribute prizes to persons who guess their own weight correctly, bang up against other scales that they could get weighed on before hand, and thus guess on a sure thing? You must have great faith in human nature

"Oh, no, sir," said the porter. "but we have in the machine."

FRIEND OF CONVICTS

New York Sales Agent Long Active in Prison Reform.

Frederick H. Mills Transferred Men From Jaila to Responsible Jobs in Banks and Spent Much Time Alding Unfortunates.

New York .- in 1881 a Chicago merchant took a young man to the First National bank in that city and introduced him to the president, Lyman J. Gage, afterward secretary of the treasury, as Frederick Mills, chief clerk of the state reformatory at Filmira, N. Y.

"I want to get a position in your bank for a friend of mine, Mr. Gage," said young Mills. "He is a man of experience and ability and has the best of references from the Bank of North America in Montreal, where he was employed for several years." "Where is he now?" Mr. Gage inquired. "He is in the Elmira reformatory," replied the young man. "He has just finished his term there and is waiting to get a job in order to be allowed to leave.

The bank president stared hard at his visitor for a moment and, discovering from his manner that he was serious, resisted an inclination to become hogs and a similar number of beef angry, but laughed long and loud in-

"Did you come out here with the head draft horses and 35 head of pure | Impression that the Chicago banks select their clerks from the reformatories?" he asked.

Thirty years ago, before the new penology was born of science and philanthropy, the idea of giving an exconvict employment seemed preposterous to the average man of business. Young Mills, however, was not to be rebuffed. He related to Mr. Gage the story of the coming of the Montreal bank clerk to New York to better his fortunes and of his yielding to temptation in the metropolis; he told of the opportunities he had for studying the other's character in the reformatory office and he asserted his opinion that here was a chance for the bank president to save a human life from wreck. Mr. Gage argued the matter with Mr. Mills for half an hour and discussed it with him for an equal period and at the end of an hour promised HEAD OF NAVY FINGER PRINT BUREAU

GOTHAM TO GIVE UP NAVY

Cost of Maintaining Training Ship for Merchant Marine Proves Too Expensive for Results Obtained.

New York.-The navy of New York will be put out of commission within the year, unless something unexpected comes up to rescind the order which has just been issued, and the flag of New York will be seen no more on the high seas or in the ports of the Mediterranean and the north At-

Ever since 1874 New York has main tained a naval school for the training of officers for the American merchant marine. The fact that there was no American merchant marine to speak of did not at all prevent a great many boys from attending the school and cruising six and eight months at a time, partly at the expense of the state, partly of the city and partly of the nation.

In accordance with a long-established policy, the United States navy has furnished a vessel and a comschools of the coast states. St. Mary was recalled and the gunboat Newport was substituted. The Newport, unlike her predecessor, has engines and she has proved to be a mighty coal eater at a time when coal is costly. Also, the board complained, parents persisted in looking upon the schoolship as a sort of reformatory, where they could load bad boys and get rid of them for half a year in hands that were capable of handling them without gloves, if it was necessary. Accordingly, the board has applied for a change in the city charter abolishing the naval school altogether.
