Something About Government - Ownership

No. 4

It was an epoch in the world's history when the Bell System opened a long distance line between New York and Chicago, in 1893, and demonstrated that speech could be transmitted 1,000 miles. Today the business man in Denver sends his voice clear and distinct into the office of the New York merchant, 2,000 miles distant. A small army of skilled telephone workmen in the Rockies are now of the great Bell route from New York to San Francisco, and transcontinental conversations over the Bell System will be one of the wonders ushered in by the Panama-Pa-cific Exposition next spring.

Last year the first 900-mile telephone line was built in Europe, where practically all telephone systems are government owned, two decades after a thousand-
