Farm Notes.

Issued by the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

VACCINATE HANY HOGS

Farm demonstrators last year in Gage, Merrick, Thurston and Seward counties, which were then the only counties in Nebraska having organizations in Nebraska employing such men, personally vaccinated 8,606 hogs, and as a result of their work 20,220 others were vaccinated.

There is no objection to the slightly cooked flavor, all that is necessary to pasteurization (heating of milk or cream) is to place it in a double boiler and bring it to the boiling point, and immediately cool. This process will kill germs present as effectively as other methods.

SUNFLOWERS VS. A CORN CROP.

That sunflowers use three times as much moisture as the corn plant is a fact recently found to be true at the Nebraska experiment station. After comparing several corn and sunflower plants during the growing season up to September 1, this year, it was found that the average amount of water used by a corn plant was four-fifths of a barrel, weighing 380 pounds the average amount of water used by a sunflower was two barrels and a keg, weighing 952 pounds.

HOW IT'S THE PIG CLUB

The Pig Club is the latest addition to the list of Boys' and Girls' Clubs open for membership to the young people of the state. Membership rules will be much the same as for the corn and tomato club. The list of prizes that are expected to be offered—like the rules—have not been prepared. The leader in charge of the new club is J. G. McMillan. He is a graduate of the Iowa State Agricultural College and has been teaching agriculture in the high school at Holeridge. During the fall and winter he will appear on the program of a number of farmers' institutes and short courses to explain the nature of the work. The Pig Club, the same as all Boys' and Girls' Clubs, is carried on cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Information concerning the club may be obtained from the Agricultural Extension Service, University Farm, Lincoln.

FANNING DOES NOT INCREASE YIELDS

After testing the effects of fanning wheat for 12 years and of fanning oats for 9 years for seed there appears to be no advantage in such practice from the viewpoint of increased yields, according to experiments conducted at the Nebraska Experiment station.

YIELDS OF WHEAT FOR 12 YEARS, AVERAGED:

Heaviest seed planted, 33.5 bushels. Original unfanned seed, 33.5 bushels. Lightest seed planted, 33.0 bushels. Yields of oats for 9 years, averaged: Heaviest seed planted, 54.5 bushels. Original unfanned seed, 54.5 bushels. Lightest seed planted, 54.0 bushels. The slight difference of one-half bushel is considered negligible and well within the possibility of experimental error. These data correspond to similar tests for 14 years at the Ohio Experiment station.

SEED CORN POINTERS

When corn reaches the glazed, dent, or stiff dough stage, it may be safely picked. Seed Corn Selection Week this year begins September 28. Choose mature ears from plants in the field that have grown under average rather than favorable conditions, even the ears may not be large. Select ears growing at a convenient height on upright stalks that are sturdy and of moderate size. Spindling shape, excessive size and leanness do not associate well with drought resistance.

Upright ears are much less protected from rain, frost, and mold, and consequently are liable to have low germinating powers. As soon as the seed is picked it must be stored away immediately in a dry and airy place as possible. The attic of a kitchen or granary or above the driveway in a double corner, the University Farmers have found, is better than a haymow.

Seed if left in a pile may mold in a few hours. One device for separating the ears is the corn post, or corn free, This consists of a post erected on a standard, with finishing nails (preferably with the heads off) driven in the sides. This may hold enough to plant 10 to 25 acres of ground. The sawing method with the use of twine is also efficient.

Dr. Virgil Moore, alleged slinger of the flat iron, is in jail at South Sioux City awaiting hearing on a charge of assault and battery. Ficus is recovering from his injury. A few minutes before the flat iron incident, Ficus broke in a door of the Kinnison home and caught Moore in a room with his wife, it was alleged. A flat fight ensued in which Ficus worsted Moore and left. As he passed the front window, Moore leaped out and threw the flat iron. Ficus was taken to his home nearby and Chief of Police Mathwig was notified. Chief Mathwig arrested Moore a few minutes after and lodged him in the village jail. Judge Clements ordered a continuance until Tuesday when the charge was read in the South Sioux City police court.

For six years Mr. Voss has topped the market with these shipments. Mesger report has reached here as to press that William Ryan, Jr., was seriously injured in an automobile wreck near Vista Tuesday evening. It is reported that he was in company with his brother Nick who is stopping at Waterbury and that they were on their way home from Ponca or Jackson when the car turned turtle and pinned William under the car. Bloodhounds, put upon the scent of yegmen, who robbed a safe in the jewelry store of W. M. Mason, in Walthill, Neb., Sunday night, trailed the robbers to the camping spot of a show troop a short distance from Walthill. The campers had disappeared and the scent was lost. Chief of Police A. By E. V. Parrish. Through gorgeously illuminated streets, reflecting the red, yellow and green of Ak-Sar-Ben and with thousands of tri-colored pennants floating in the breeze, two gigantic parades will wend their way during carnival week, Sept. 30 to Oct. 10. Electrical parade, that wonderful creation of the wizards of Ak-Sar-Ben, will be more pretentious than ever, if such be possible. From one part of the city to the other, traversing the business heart of the city, the electrical pageant will pass in review on the night of Oct. 7. Depicting Stories From Bible. Depicting stories from the Bible, stories known to every one, be he Bible student or not, the theme this year will be most appealing. Twenty beautifully conceived and created floats will tell as many familiar stories from the Bible. Each float will be drawn by four horses, and will be manned by a retinue of Ak-Sar-Ben subjects. The stories will be told as only stories can be told, every detail being faithfully carried out. In its twenty years of successful parades, Ak-Sar-Ben has had many which seemed the last word in electrical accomplishments. But the 1914 parade will be the result of the years of experiments and work and will have the advantage of the accumulated experience of those who have devoted their efforts to electrical effects. Fraternal Parade. No less prominent will be the Fraternal Parade on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 8. This is a departure in the way of such entertainment features. The fraternal orders of Omaha will join in making this the biggest and best daylight parade that has ever been attempted. The fundamental, on which each fraternal order is founded, will be shown by means of floats; the story of the organization told, and the moral drawn; supplementing this, each order will be represented by hundreds of members, assuring a mammoth parade. Originally the intention was to hold this parade in the forenoon, but because of the great number of men who will participate it was necessary to change it to an afternoon affair. The suggestion of a fraternal parade has met with liberal responses from Omaha's organizations. Nine have signified their intention of creating floats and taking part in the parade—the Elks, Eagles, Woodmen of the World, Modern Woodmen of America, Knights of Columbus, Danish Arcanum, Knights of Maccabees, Royal Brotherhood, and Moose. New Plan of Lighting. To keep Omaha in front in the line of advancement, an entirely new scheme of lighting decorations has been planned. On each corner of intersections, lighting poles will be erected, carrying an upright electric light, while immediately below will be a cluster of four or more lights. From pole to pole on the corners, strings of lights will be run diagonally, white ropes of light will be strung from one corner to the next. The lights will be tri-colored, reflecting the red, yellow and green, Ak-Sar-Ben's colors, which typify the three great products of the state, beef, corn and alfalfa. None the less uplifting will be the carnival attractions on the Midway. Listening to the request for educational shows, the Board of Governors have exerted every effort to secure attractions that will appeal to the most education Keynote of Attractions. The World at Home shows have been secured for the season. Education is the keynote of the attractions. Perhaps the most striking is an exact reproduction of the Panama canal. This working model requires space 42x100 feet. The Panama canal is reproduced in concrete, even to the minutest detail. Ships will be seen passing through the locks. Then there is Mazeppa, the educated horse. This magnificent thoroughbred can do everything but talk and at times he shows evidences of trying to talk the language of his keeper. Mazeppa gives the lie to the statement that horses cannot think. His accomplishments are remarkable. He has been the subject of investigation by experts, who have declared that the animal possesses human intelligence. Fifteen shows will comprise the list of attractions offered to the carnival visitors. The Temple of Music with a $25,000 worth of instruments affords a chance for those musically inclined. Varied offerings are presented in the Garden of Allah, the human butterfly and others which go to make up the long line of entertainment features. Coronation Ball. The season's festivities will be brought to a close Friday night, Oct. 9, with the Royal Court and Coronation ball. It is here that Nebraska's flower of manhood and womanhood white away the few remaining hours of Ak-Sar-Ben. Mid thousands of gaily colored lights and to the sweet strains of music, the light fantastic will be tripped until the wee small hours, after which the 1914 Ak-Sar-Ben will be no more. During the evening Ak-Sar-Ben's new king, Samson the Twenty-First, will be crowned and he, in turn, will select his royal consort, who will rule with him for the coming year over the thousands of loyal subjects of the Land of Quivera. Details of handling the crowds this year will be more complete than in the past. An information bureau will be established near the entrance to the grounds, Sixteenth and Howard streets, where Omaha's visitors can secure any accommodation desired. In connection with the information bureau will be a rooming bureau, with plenty of rooms available for the visitors from the Missouri river valley. Any information regarding Ak-Sar-Ben and its program will be furnished by the Bureau of Publicity, Omaha, or by J. D. Weaver, secretary of Ak-Sar-Ben.
