The Sioux City Tribune remarks editorially that "over in Dakota county, Nebraska, farmers are getting a corn crop that is running over 100 bushels to the acre. They are not worrying about winter or war." The above, of course, is too good to be true, and sounds more like a "slam" when twenty-five bushels to the acre would be a fair average for corn this year.

A $4,000,000 FIGHT

A $4,000,000 fight is being waged in Nebraska this fall at the farmers' institutes. It is the fight to eradicate the loss of $4,000,000 annually due to hog cholera in the state. Never before was the slogan that "Hog Cholera Must Go" sounded so loud as this fall. Hog cholera lectures, hog cholera vaccination demonstrations, special hog cholera conferences in groups and in crowds are being given at the farmers' institutes. The work is in charge of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University Farm in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture and the Live Stock Sanitary Board.

MUCH LAND SHOULD BE KEPT IN GRASS

A careful examination of the dry farming regions will show that the percent of smooth hard lands which should be retained in grass is much larger than would at first be supposed. It may be said that these lands have become too high priced to use for pasture, but unless the land can show a net profit on the crop in an average year which will pay the fixed charges on the land, then the excess value placed on the land over its earning power is purely speculative and not to be used as a basis upon which to establish land values or determine systems of land management. The net profit per acre in good years is less under pasture than under grain cropping, but in bad years the revenue is greater under pasture and the risk is always less as you reduce the labor cost per acre and increase the size of the farm unit, up to the limit which can be handled by a single family.—Dean E. A. Burnett, Nebraska College of Agriculture, in a recent speech.

PLANT LILACS NOW

One of the shrubs that should be planted at this time is the lilac. This shrub starts growing so early in the spring that should planting be delayed at that time, after the bush has started to leaf out, it makes a weak growth and often dies as a prey of borers. The landscape gardener at the University Farm does not advise the planting of the old-fashioned common purple and white varieties if the new varieties can be obtained, as the greater range of color and size of

She had been ill for seven weeks. Mrs Rice, who was the daughter of Peter Myers, moved to northeastern Nebraska in 1859. She lived there continuously up to two years ago. They are W L Rice, of Sioux City; George Rice, of Calceico, Cal.; and Charles G Rice, of Portland, Ore.... Trinity college won what is probably the hardest game of this year's schedule yesterday from Jackson by a score of 14 to 0. The game was played at Jackson and the light Trinity team had its hands full and made its gains with speed and great running ability. The two touchdowns were made by McGovern and B Noonan. Noonan made his on an intercepted forward pass and a run of forty yards. The 60-yard run of Kohn at the close of the first half, which brought the ball to within ten yards of Jackson's goal, was one of the deciding plays of the game. The work of the entire team showed nerve and grit and more speed than in the teams of Trinity's class. Tracy, G Noonan, Krige and Hartnett all showed well in play.

Hartington news: George Champion spent a day at Crystal lake shooting and telling of his fine day's shooting. He stopped with a man who is himself an old hunter. They went out to a point, where Mr Champion was placed on a comfortable chair among the rushes well hidden. Then the owner of the hunting lodge went back and with a peck of shelled corn called after him a flock of fifty tame ducks. He scattered the corn about where Cedar county's clerk was seated and the ducks stayed around there all the morning. Several launches were dashing about the lake stirring up the ducks and whenever a flock of them went up or down the lake they flew over the tame decoys. The result was Mr Champion had as many ducks as he could carry when it came time to quit. "If I were as good a hunter, say as B G Mason, I'd have had 25 more ducks anyway. I knew I missed lots of shots that a first class shot would have made all right," said he. He told another story about the trip that is remarkable to say the least. He declares that people from Sioux City come out to the hunting lodges on the lake and order mud hen in preference to duck. He says that the mud hen which has webbed feet is really good eating, that he tried it himself, and found it palatable. He says that the real mud hen is different from the fowl which inhabits our waters and is generally called by that name. If these birds are good eating they will soon be exterminated, for they are of sluggish flight and usually not wild. They are an ornery looking beast, though, to eat.

Sioux City Tribune, 17: Escapes of Sheriff Frank Mahon, Dakota county, Nebraska, with Sioux City for a setting for a wild automobile ride, escape from the clutches of the South Sioux City police and the posting of a $10 bond for the release of a woman from jail in this city, are liable to cost Mahon his re-election as sheriff of Dakota county. The first Sioux City police learned of Mahon's alleged escapade was last Saturday evening, when a tall, lean man shoved Mahon through the door of the police station and into the presence of Desk Sergeant Platt For... "Let him stay here until he is sober," was the request of the individual who had escorted Mahon to the station. Mahon, it is said, made the sheriff's office an uncomfortable place for the matter in general, and the sheriff was placed in snafu room until he became sober, says Chief of Police George Pierce. As soon as he was released Mahon went to the police secretary, William Wiwand, it is said, and asked for the release of a woman who had been caught in the police dragnet during a roadhouse raid within the city limits. Mahon had left the place, it is alleged, shortly before the arrival of the police and was not arrested with the others in the raid. The police say that Mahon was not arrested at any time, but admit that he was left in the city jail until he became sober. This is the statement of Chief of Police George Pierce. Wiwand refused to order the release of the woman, it is said, when the sheriff insisted. Wiwand later accepted a bond of $10 for the release of the woman. Mrs F M Adams is the name given the police by the woman and her address as on Day street. The police say the name is fictitious. With the release of the woman, Mahon is said to have entered his automobile with her and driven away from the station. An hour or so later the wrecked machine of Mahon was taken to a Douglas street garage, it is learned. It is said that Mahon was on his way to Dakota City when he ran into an express delivery wagon and the machine was badly damaged.

Sioux City Journal, 20: School children of Jackson, Neb, assisted in the fight to save the Atlas elevator at that place from destruction by fire early yesterday afternoon. The blaze broke out at 12:30 o'clock in the elevator company's coal sheds, which were a complete loss, with 800 tons of hard and soft coal. The loss is covered by insurance. The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered by John Collins, manager of the elevator. An alarm was sounded and citizens of the place responded. A bucket brigade fought the flames and saw success in sight until the Burlington Railroad company's well gave out. The blaze broke out again, eating toward the large elevator, which stood only a few yards to the north of the coal sheds. The nearest well was more than a quarter of a mile distant. A general alarm was sounded. The public school was dismissed and children and women of the village started toward the fire, carrying pails of water. Collins took the organization in hand and ordered every available team and wagon to be brought to the main part of town and filled with water barrels. The school children were divided between the wells and the fire for the purpose of relaying water pails from the wagons. Hope of saving the coal sheds was abandoned and the fighters gave sole attention to the elevator. Burning embers set fire to the structure in several places before the shed fire was under control. Quick work on the part of the men who were stationed on the roof and on ladders was effective in these cases. The cause of the fire is unknown. It is the supposition of Mr Collins that the sheds caught from the sparks of a train which passed about fifteen minutes before the blaze was first seen.
