KILLING THE COUNTRY TOWN

Prosperity of Small Communities Menaced by the Operations of the Catalogue Houses.

At a recent convention in Chicago a paper was read by Capt. D. F. Dolan of Western, in which relationships of the farmer and the country merchant were taken up and thoroughly discussed with the end in view of thoroughly impressing the gathered hard-ware men with the necessity of meeting the tilters half way. The paper has had almost a nation-wide circulation since that meeting, and comments have been very profuse wherever the trade papers in which it was reproduced have been read. A few extracts from it are of importance to the public generally and indicate what several hundred business men are thinking about at this very moment. These outline the woof of trade transactions between country and town and show that there is a pronounced interdependency between both which to result in prosperity of the state must be adhered to by each in the belief that he is meeting the other fellow half way, and that the other is doing the same to him. The paper, in part, reads as follows:

"Our business fears are enhanced by the operations of the catalogue houses. These become menaces because if patronized to the exclusion of the rural trade they will kill the country towns which are the source and center of the best things in American life. The future of the catalogue houses depends upon the attitude of the people toward them. Every community must have some trading facilities, a place where the people can bring their produce and get needed merchandise and staples in return."

BEST FOR RUSTIC FENCES

Olive Wood is the Material That Should Be Employed Wherever It is Possible.

In building so-called rustic fences too free use is made of eucalyptus poles, wood that is too hopelessly straight for any rustic fence except of strictly formal design. One of the most satisfactory rustic fences known to the City Beautiful man is made of olive wood. In design, coloring, and general harmony with its rustic surroundings and setting it is unsurpassed. Olive wood is an ideal material for any and all work of rustic character. On the other hand, eucalyptus poles are ideal for supports for bridges, as stout poles of this material may be had of great strength and of considerable length. Across such stringers could be nailed a floor composed of smaller poles about two inches in diameter. Any superstructure deemed necessary could then be built of olive or some material less straight.

London's New Civic Ideal.

London university has taken up a modern position and given a lead to Oxford and Cambridge by appointing a professor of town planning. Realizing the vast importance of the move, we asked the occupant of the new office, Stanley D. Adshead, for a few statements as to the lines upon which he will work.

"You can't study the shell without the mollusk, or, at least, the living inmate," said Mr. Adshead. "The chair is particularly opportune. Of course, the school will go further than planning suburbs. As well as lecture courses for students, it has been suggested that there should be courses of public lectures."

If this comes to pass, the general public will be able to keep abreast of expert opinion, and to take a practical and effective interest in the city's welfare.—T. P.'s Weekly, London.

House Beds.

Every building should have a space for plants left close to the foundation. No cement or other walks should be allowed within three feet if conditions will allow, and in new places this is always possible. The angle formed by ground and building should be filled with plants and an occasional vine should chamber over a corner or along a porch. The house should appear to rise out of a mass of shrubs and plants, as a gem rises above its setting in jewelry. No place has a proper finish without such provision for embellishment.

Bridegroom Forgot He Was Married.

Clark Conkling tells of a man in Lyons who had long boarded at a restaurant, but finally there came a time when he was caught by the gracious smiles of a young woman. The wedding passed off just like any other wedding, but the next day being a very busy one for hubby, he forgot all about being married and at dinner time he entered the restaurant and took his seat at his accustomed place. It was not until he was half through with his dinner that the idea occurred to him that he was married and his wife probably had a dinner waiting for him at home. He arose hastily, went home and ate about twice as much as he ought to have eaten in order that his wife would not find out how forgetful he was.

The Wrong Diagnosis.

"I like your face, sir," said the inquisitive stranger. "It is a cheery face, a face with a mission; it is the face of a man who believes in reducing the burdens and annoyances of his fellow-men."

"Mebby it is," said the little man.

"You're the sort of man who believes in banishing the shadows," the inquisitive man went on.

"Nops," replied the little man with a vigorous shake of his head. "You're out me this time. I'm the man who juts up the awnings."

GRABS RIFLE BALL

French Aviator Thinks It Is a Strange Insect.

When High in the Air He Stretches Out His Hand and Grasps What to His Amazement Proves to Be a Bullet.

London.—A French aviator is reported to have brought from the skies a German rifle bullet which he had caught in his hand. The story goes that he was flying at a height of about seven thousand feet when he suddenly became aware of a small black object close to his head. He thought it was an insect of some kind, and was sufficient of an entomologist to realize that a flying insect at such an altitude was a curiosity. So he stretched out his hand and grasped what to his amazement proved to be a bullet.

He explained afterward that it was evidently a rifle bullet that had been fired almost vertically and had reached its utmost elevation. He arrived on his aeroplane just at the moment when the bullet slowly turned over and was about to fall again.

TRAGEDY OF LAW'S DELAY

Girl Injured in Street Car Accident Unable to Collect Damages Owing to Company's Bankruptcy.

New York.—Harriett Nugent, the young girl who has just been discharged from the King's county hospital to which place she was taken when found wandering in a pitiable condition, due to lack of nourishment, on a Brooklyn street, is the principal figure in one of the most interesting phases of the law's delay ever written of. When three years old Harriett was run over by a Madison street car and badly crippled. Benjamin Oppenheim, a prominent young attorney, took her case to court and received a verdict of $5,000 against the company. The Metropolitan Street Railroad company refused to pay this claim and managed by devious ways to have Benjamin Oppenheim disbarred. One of the employees of the company was told to burn certain vouchers he had in his possession, but believing they would some day be of value to him did not do so. In 1915 this man's landlady discovered among the papers the data which proved that Oppenheim was wrongfully disbarred. Her evidence restored him to the bar. The verdict received by him 17 years ago has now, with interest, reached the sum of $14,000, but still the girl cannot, because of the bankruptcy of the street railway company, collect the amount of her judgment.

Harriett Nugent.

3,000 MILES TO BURY A DOG

Young Woman Ends Holiday in New York When Pet Dies in California.

New York.—When a young woman from San Diego, Cal., ran out of her room on the fifteenth floor of the McAlpin with a crumpled telegram in her hand and crying, "She's dead, she's dead!" the clerk for that floor did what she could to comfort the wretched one. Ordinary measures

REFUSES TO LEAVE LEPER

Wife and Her Two Children Share Fate of Victim of Terrible Disease.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—In one of the two homes which they own Joseph Norman, aged thirty-two, with his wife and two children, are shut completely off from the world. The wife and children are prisoners because they chose to risk leprosy to be with the afflicted husband and father. For experts have declared Norman to be a leper. Already the skin on his face bears unmistakable evidence of the dread malady.

When convincing proof had been obtained that Norman was a leper the door of his home was opened for the escape of wife and children. Mrs. Norman was instructed to cut away from her husband forever. She left the house because she believed she must. Next day she took her little sons and with them went to the city officials and begged to be allowed to return. They endeavored to dissuade her.

"I cannot live without my husband," she cried, falling on her knees. "I was happy when he made me his wife. I have been happy during the 11 years that we have lived together and struggled to lay aside a little money for the rainy day. My love has been fanned into a flame by his goodness and his care of me. I became his wife for better or for worse. I have tried to be a kind, dutiful and loving wife. I have borne him children, whom we both love."

MUSIC FOR BATTLE

German Band Serenades Soldiers on Firing Line.

Musicians Lie in Advanced Trenches All Night and Play Melodies Appropriate to Action—Leaders Get Iron Cross.

Berlin.—A concert in the firing line is thus described by Bandmaster Adolf Becker with one of the German armies in France:

"After a long march we went into camp at G— and promised ourselves a good night's rest. At 2:30 we were suddenly and rudely waked up; our outposts had come into touch with strong French forces and the whole camp suddenly became alive. A sharp fight was soon in progress. The French artillery was firing incessantly from a covered position. Their shells came with a sharp whiz, to explode with a mighty crash. Their infantry also kept up a hot fire. I went forward with my musicians in a covered position and met Colonel von R—, who ordered me to contribute my part to this infernal concert."

"I crawled to the most advanced trench, asked them to get out their instruments, and we played to the great amusement of the troops the beautiful air, 'I Feel So Fine in the Evening.' After some time the moon came out from behind a thick bank of clouds and lit up the battlefield with its bursting shells, and we gave it a welcome with the melody, 'Good Moon, You Move So Quietly,' and the soldiers joined in with spirit."

"Somewhat later the French attempted a forward movement, and we promptly refused them with 'Dolly, You Are the Light of My Eyes.' The French did not seem to trust this assurance, however, for they hastily withdrew, to the resounding laughter of our men, who did splendid shooting. In order to make it clear to the Convict Wants Speedy Death.

Sacramento, Cal.—Immediate death via the hangman's noose is the plea of Samuel Swearington, under sentence at Sacramento. He was asked if he had any preference as to the time of death. "Make it as soon as possible, your honor. Tomorrow would suit me. I want it over with," he replied.

failed, and the young woman became hysterical. Mrs. Lois Hughes, the manager of the woman's floor, was telephoned for and hurried up at the top speed of the elevator.

Mrs. Hughes sent for the young woman's father and brother. One took the telegram and read it. They looked one at another, the elder helplessly, and the younger man defiantly.

"She'll insist upon going straight back home," said the father.

"Fiddsticks!" exclaimed the brother. "I am not going to have my hol-

WESTERN CANADA'S STRONG POSITION

"THE WHEAT GRANARY OF THE WORLD," A WELL APPLIED TERM.

Western Canada occupies a stronger position today than it ever has occupied. Taking one year with another, the efficiency of its lands to produce has been well proved. It has not been said of it that year in and year out there were bumper and bounteous crops. If such a condition existed it would be phenomenal in the history of any country. With an extensive territory producing grain, hogs, cattle and sheep, of some 800 miles wide and 1,000 miles long, it is easy to conceive of a wide variation in temperature and climate; there is variation in rainfall and snowfall; every section is not the best in the district—some are better than others and some worse, but as a general thing, the great percentage is "better." This past year has shown that some portions are not altogether immune from periods of drought. The same may be said of adjoining states to the south. But this year has also shown that in the greater portion of Western Canada drought does not appear, but even in the drought-stricken area of this year, past years have shown that the soil produces wonderfully well and even this year, with modern methods, known as "dry-farming," good crops were harvested. The large number of Americans who during the past sixteen years have been attracted to Canada have not gone simply because of the advertising of that country, but because their friends and their old-time neighbors have done well there, and with careful and judicious farming almost everyone has done well.

As a result of the great influx of immigration the open or prairie homesteading area is being rapidly taken up. The fact that this is so is evidence that Western Canada lands are productive, and on these open plains today are to be seen the homes of successful farmers from almost every state in the Union. They have earned their patents and now own outright their 160 acres of land, together probably with an adjoining 160 acres, which they have purchased or pre-empted, all of which is worth from $25 to $30 per acre. They originally started by growing grains altogether, but they found that they could secure a better price for much of their grain by feeding it to hogs and cattle, and the most successful ones are those who have followed this course.

But to meet the wants of the newcomer a new homestead area has been opened up, known as the "park country." In this park country are to be found beautiful groves of poplar and willow, small lakes and streams, with sufficient open area to enable one to go into immediate cultivation of crop, and in due time when they wish more land to be put under cultivation, they may at small cost cut down some of the groves, which in the meantime have been valuable in providing fuel and in giving shelter to cattle.

Notwithstanding the high character of the open prairie lands and the fact that farmers there have realized in a splendid way, there is the opinion backed up by a lot of experience that this parklike country contains soil even better than that of the open area referred to.

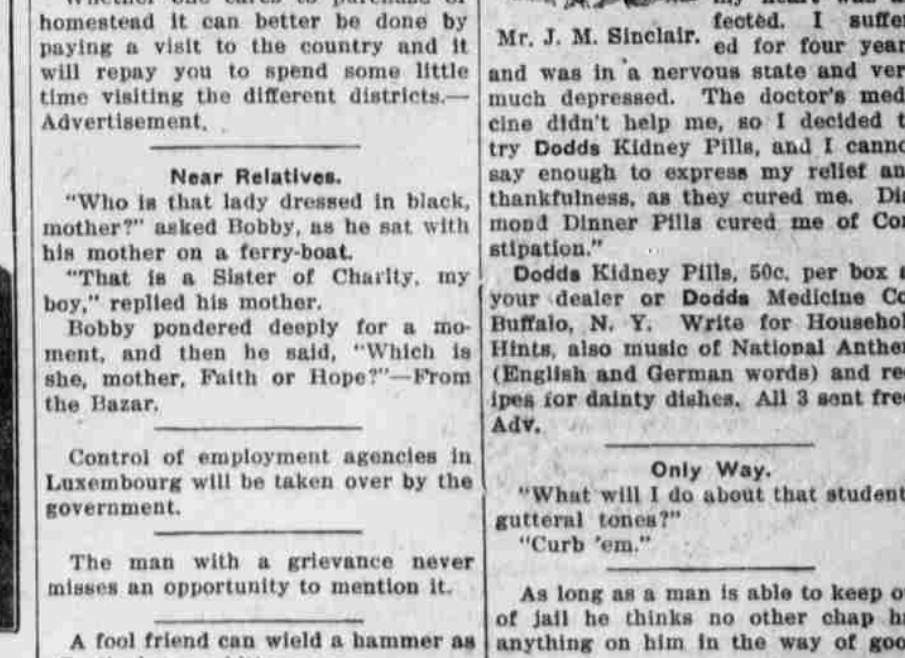

The opportunities, therefore, for money making are as great today as they ever were. The opportunities for carrying on farming successfully are fully as great as they ever were. Of this park area we have an immense quantity of land yet to be settled. It is true that the railroads have not yet penetrated these districts to the extent that they have the open area, but this will come and as settlements advance, so will railroads build. For the present there is a temporary lull in railroad building, but it is always the case that where there is a demand there will come a supply, and it will not be long before the park country will be penetrated by railroads that will give sufficient accommodation for all needs, but to those who prefer it there are lots of opportunities for purchasing land nearer towns and villages and at low prices and on easy terms.

Whether one cares to purchase or homestead it can better be done by paying a visit to the country and it will repay you to spend some little time visiting the different districts.—Advertisement.

day spoiled by her foolishness. I am going to stay right here in New York as long as we planned."

"What a heartless son!" said Mrs. Hughes to herself.

"No use making such a fuss over a dog, anyhow," went on the younger man.

It was Mrs. Hughes' time to feel like going into hysterics.

So yesterday afternoon the young woman and her father, sure enough, took the train for home. The brother staved on.

CAR GOES 28.7 MILES ON GALLON OF GASOLINE

Red Crown Shows Remarkable Test.

Judged by C. A. C. Committee. Surprising results were obtained. The day in Chicago, when, in a distance test on the boulevards, a 1915 big six went 28.7 miles on a gallon of Red Crown gasoline. The test was made to demonstrate the fuel economy of high test gasoline, by the technical committee of the Chicago Automobile Club.

Red Crown gasoline, 58 test, was decided upon by the judges and drivers as the best gasoline to be used. All through the trip the clutch was not slipped, except when traffic congestion made it necessary. The dash adjustment on the carburetor was disconnected, and in order that the test be a fair one, the fan was in operation throughout the run.

Next came the acceleration test. With the carburetor adjustment the same as during the economy run, the car was driven from standing start to thirty miles an hour in 12.45 seconds. The flexibility test saw the car run at four miles an hour, then speeded up to forty-four.

The test proves that the six is not an excessive fuel consumer, where the best gasoline is used.

Superior Knowledge.

Little Walter and highly alarmed had ceased to wonder at the arrival of another baby brother after a few weeks had elapsed since that eventful occasion. Their attention was now directed to an importation of baby kittens.

"Where do you s'pose those kittens came from?" queried four-year-old Gerald. "Did the stork bring them just like baby brother?"

Seven-year-old replied with ponderous precision:

"Of course not, silly. Storks couldn't bring kittens. God made them. God said, 'Let there be kittens and there was kittens.'—Harper's Magazine.

American Cheese.

Imported cheese will be scarce while this war lasts, but plenty of good cheese is made in this country. Americans have never consumed as much cheese as they should have, yet it is one of the cheapest and most nutritious food products available. Foreign cooks have taught New Yorkers its value, but few Americans outside this city know how extensively it is used in cooking and as a condiment.—New York Commercial.

SUFFERED FOR FOUR YEARS.

Mr. J. M. Sinclair of Olivehill, Tenn., writes: "I strained my back, which weakened my kidneys and caused an awful bad backache and inflammation of the bladder. Later I became so much worse that I consulted a doctor, who said that I had diabetes and that my heart was affected. I suffered for four years and was in a nervous state and very much depressed. The doctor's medicine didn't help me, so I decided to try Dods' Kidney Pills, and I cannot say enough to express my relief and thankfulness, as they cured me.
