Clinkenbeard became violent and it was necessary for six men to hold him. Dr. L. DeVore was summoned and administered an antidote in time to save his life. Clinkenbeard was put to bed on the floor and a watch placed over him during the night. It was alleged afterwards that Clinkenbeard had swallowed the laudanum with a raw egg and merely intended to frighten his friends and the girl rather than end his life. His condition was reported this morning as favorable, and it is not believed any serious effects will result.
