THE HEART OF NIGHT WIND A STORY OF THE GREAT NORTH WEST BY VINGIE E. ROE

ILLUSTRATIONS by TRAY WALTERS COPYRIGHT BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

CHAPTER XXXI.

-16-The Red Death.

So they were left, these two-the the cup among the peaks. East and the West-alone upon the mighty pyre of the jumbled peaks. high between the red surf creeping at its base, carried a passage out of the burden, staggering blindly. roaring death. Siletz had planned

Now she turned back to the two men she loved-the Preacher, silent | the earth. under the shielding ferns with his Bible and his flute, Sandry prone upon the earth, his face in the pine needles. She passed him and knelt beside the other. Her eyes were dim with the old look of emotion. She bared the white face and gazed long upon it. The call of blood had ever held the man behind her and she never her to this man mysteriously, though both were ignorant of the vital tie between them, the Preacher because of the dreamy blank in his mind since the tragedy of that far-off day, Siletz because Kolawmie, wise beyond his generation, had seen how blood takes to its own, even at its cost. He had loved her mother and had tried to make her Indian, though she was White, a waif of the old frontier, and he had seen her break her heart and Therefore, after silent hours by the mandate of Destiny and had taken the babe of the Broken Sign and given her to the only white woman he would trust, Ma Daily, who took her with few questions when she saw he would not tell her history. So now Siletz looked for the first and last time consciously upon her own. Presently she leaned over and kissed him softly, replaced the ferns and rose.

Beside Sandry she stopped, stood a moment gazing around at the pine boles that loomed like fearful ghosts in the smoke, and sat down beside him, tucking her feet with the age-old motion of the blanket-wearers beneath her skirt, so deeply had she absorbed the ways of the dusky people whom eyes contracted to pin-points. she loved.

She did not speak.

before the fire. He looked at her, raising himself on his albow. looked long while Knowledge was born in him.

So this was the West, the world he had once thought so unbearable, this was the wild, the untaught, the crude this slim forest creature who served him without question because he had bought her with a kiss, who asked nothing, who stayed by him to die because she loved him! Who still believed in him despite that other's declaration that she was his promised wife! And yonder went his world, his cultured, polished East, riding down to life and safety, her love forgotten in the face of danger! Yonder went what he had thought "the best blood of the land!"

Nay, he had been wrong! It was here beside him, its feet tucked under it in meekness, the savagery hidden in its dim black eyes! The last barrier went down in Walter Sandry, the last last strand of prejudice broke with a snap. He rolled near and caught the hem of her ragged skirt.

"Little S'letz!" he said brokenly, "oh, Little S'letz! What am I that you should have done this thing!"

She looked down at him and the rare smile curled up the corners of the lips above the sign.

"You are my man," she said softly, "the king of the whole world! You are the light on the waters, Sandry, the mist in the valleys, the path to the feet of God! Only I have lost my footing thereon."

A tender wistfulness rang in her voice. She fell silent, after her fashion when great emotions stirred her. Sandry's eyes smarted under blinding tears. His chin was quivering with the mighty emotions that swelled his heart to bursting and his scorched and blackened hands clung, trembling, to Siletz' skirt. your 'God above the sea!' Take my blew the smoke aside. hand that we may go together, and

But the girl raised a calm face to the unspeakable heavens—a face in which all struggle had been stilled, where there was neither hope nor fear, only great content.

"No," she said, "I cannot pray for I have no soul. I have lost it as the price of love." The man could not speak and answered the look in his face. "We will go together. You have had no God. I have forsworn mine. We straightly: will go to hell-it is the right lawthe sure and just wage of sin," she was falling into the stately Bible language, taking on the simple dignity of the Preacher's way and manner, "but big man's life and he came near not we will go together. I give my soul taking it standing. He staggered as his knee and gathered her into his the great dun canopy that covered the arms. He held her to him with all the sky. yearning of his breaking heart and aried his face in her throat.

The dull rumbling again broke through the howling of the storm of fire that was fast surging its way to Behold the Hog Back running out Only the forbidding spine of the Hog from the jumbled peaks, a blade be-Back, running like a great thin blade tween the surges far below. Behold a great black horse, carrying a double

See a mammoth mongrel who tugs that the splendid black should make at the rein tied to his collar and strains to follow the dim trail which calls only to the heavy muzzle hugging

> And listen! A woman's golden voice, shrill with exquisite agony. "Help! Help! My God! Oh, my God! I'm choking! I can't breathe! great brute, can't you do something?"

with the blood of his wound. As Hampden looked into her face, distorted like a maniac's, his hard eyes softened. He knew how slim the odds that they would beat the flames to the foot of the trail. Also he knew in that moment that they would never knew that her beautiful hand was red

"Yes," he said, swiftly, "there is somethin' I can do." He slid off the horse. With heavy hands he seized the skirt of the woman's gown and ripped it from her, tearing it into Great Waters he had accepted the strips which he wound about her and Bill?" And Bill didn't.

fastened securely to the saddle horn. 'When you come to th' Hog Back shut yer eyes an' don't look down, He'll take you all right. Now-Good-

He stepped back, then caught her arm for one fleeting second.

"Poppy girl," he said hoarsely, "kiss love you. My God! How I love you!" But Poppy Ordway shook his hand started forward with renewed heart under the lighter load.

Out upon the two-foot blade of the Hog Back crept Coosnah, his long body flattened to the rock, his pale

When at last the man, his face tain, trembling in every limb, and and Siletz. drawn out of all semblance to itself, snorted with fear. Far below in the "They're - up behind - the Hog licked up toward them and blazing torches lighted them like searchlights. ting the-fires-with candles." But the dog pulled ahead on the long reins, as he was bidden to do. He was going home, faithful, wistful hybrid that he was.

> And the horse was of that fine mettle which does its best in the face of danger. Therefore he shook himself slightly, gathered his feet and stepped out carefully on the parrow the saddle horn, every nerve in her gotten, its wistful searchings ended. body stretched to the utmost and her breath held hard.

A Great Black Horse Carrying a Double Burden.

Once she swayed, opened her eyes unconsciously, and saw the pine tops "See, little one! I come at last to far below where a cross-gust of wind

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Blessed Rain.

At camp at the upper rollway John Daily was searching wildly in the crowds of silent, exhausted men for trace of Saudry, of Siletz and of Miss Ordway.

His face was ghastly, for love tore at his heart with double force.

Ma Daily had not seen him for two days and when she met him she said "S'letz went into th' fire, son, after Sandry. That was hours ago. An'

th' Jezebel woman went, too." That was the hardest knock of the from a blow and looked away to the which tightened her clasp on Sandry's Biting his ashen lips Sandry rose on inferno they had left at the north- hand. Neither she nor the young own-

> Then he started on a wavering run among the men, calling for volunteers, Daily who carried one end of Sandry's | kee Times.

shricking hoarsely that two women sling and was filled with a generous the heavy face of the Yellow Pines were lost up there and that he was go- joy in that he had found these two owner. ing after them. As he ran, looking up, something fell from the hidden heavens and splashed upon his face. It stopped him in his tracks. Then another fell and another, big, plash- but hideous blackened shapes, moning drops that struck him like stones in their portent. They thickened rain, their bases smoking here and swiftly, beating up the light ashes in there where a bowlder shielded stubtiny puffs, and from the gathered men, busy with roll-call and accounting, there came first astounded exclamations and then, as the drops gathered headway, a mighty cheer that rent the covered skies, even as a heavy clap of thunder shook the hills,

"The rains!" they cried, "the rains! The first rains!"

And it was even so. Nature took a hand and sent Destiny skulking from the havoc of her carnival. The plashings turned to a downpour.

Among the mountains the effect was indescribable. The thing that took place was too big for man to grasp. It was greater than the fires had been alone. Long sheets of water fell athwart the world, slanting from some tilted sea of the infinite. They dashed in among the canyons, played along the ridges, lashed slope and ledge and valley. The smoke was beaten to the earth in a blanket that spread over a hundred miles and more. It writhed and twisted and was lost in the clouds of steam that fled, hissing, high above Save me! Save me, Hampden! You the hills. The gods played with the Coast country. Daily turned his face In her wildness she turned and struck away from any man and the general went to the little south room in the cook-shack for unaccustomed prayer. The world turned blue with rain as it had been white with smoke. And the pygmies, men, who had fought so long and failed, tossed their blackened hands in triumph and shouted with the last of their voices. For an hour, two, it rained, until the black spikes on the devasted alopes were blotted out.

"It's mighty onusual, a rain's hard's this-specially the first rains," said a man from Toledo, earnestly. ever remember one's hard. D'you, Presently, in the second hour of the downpour, a strange procession loomed out of the gray-blue sheets, startling the men who were out in it, too glad to shirk its worst, standing like ducks in the ashmud.

It was the long, shining body of a giant dog, still tugging at the reins me-just once. I'm done for, but I tied to his collar, a dripping black horse, tired to the point of falling, and a woman who sat fastened to the canloose and shricked to the horse, which the with strips of broadcloath, and whose face was not good to look upon: It bore upon its features the brand of too much horror.

They flocked around her with cheers and eager hands, and questions that tumbled over each other. But John Black Bolt stopped at the awful Daily thrust them all aside to seize point where the spine left the moun- her wrist and demand word of Sandry

"We found Hampden-

Here there were awed mutterings. "He-shot that-Preacher. He said -the East Belt deed-was recorded all right-but that-he owned-the recorder."

She seemed dully bent on straightening out some tangle. "Sandry is-a man-despite all. Get Hampden-if -he's alive. No. I don't mean-that. He-sent me down. The horse wasnear done." As she slid down into Daily's arms she sald with her last ounce of strength but with such commanding spirit that he knew she was in deadly earnest. "Get me-a conveyance-at once. I want to be in Toledo -for the-night train-out."

Thus it came, that, as night closed down blue with rain over the tortured country, two things of import to the fortunes of the Dillingworth and its owner were taking place. Poppy Ordway stood on the platform of the dreary station at the lost little town on the backwater, bound for the outside world and the far cities.

At the same moment yet one more procession was coming slowly down from among the peaks, a line of mena long line, for weary as they were dozens had followed the foreman into the wrecked, mud-deep forest-who bore tenderly among them two slings. It was a significant fact that scattered along that scarecrow line was every man of Sandry's old crews who had gone over to Hampden.

In one sling there swung gently the still figure of the Preacher, its Book path. Almost fainting, the woman in upon its breast, its martial flute beside the saddle shut her eyes and clung to it, its glimmerings of the Past for-> hand clasping two small dark ones whose owner trudged faithfully beside him refusing all offers of assistance.

> A holy joy was in his heart, his lips moved noiselessly in the rolling Latin of a "Te Deum." This was the hour for which he had carelessly learned it at college.

Unashamed he acknowledged the existence of that Power which he had once denied to Siletz.

And the little maid who had lost her soul for love lifted wondering eyes toward the west ridge, hidden in the dim distance, where her sanctuary, the seven-foot fir stump, waited in vain for her rites of worship.

There was a wistful pathos in her calm acceptance of the mighty price which had been asked of her, and yet she was content. She had offered both her soul and body, exalted, glorified, in that she might serve this man.

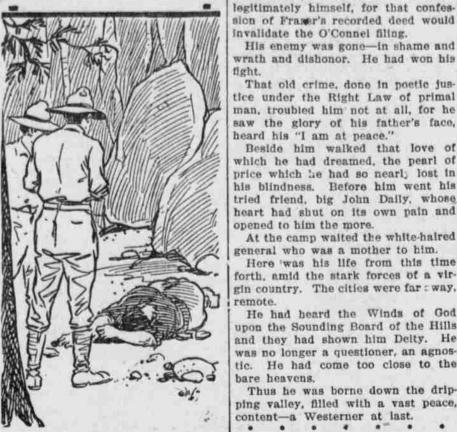

Where her soul had been there was a sweeping, burning, glorious passion er realized that they had exchanged places on the path of life.

The procession, headed by John alive, wound slowly down from the cup behind the Hog Back, penetrating that fringe of pines at its foot which had formed the trap. They were now sters that towered frightfully into the born fires.

Close along the face of the giant the procession. cliff they pressed, taking the shortest

Suddenly, without warning, they came full upon a huddled heap that lay at its base. It was pitifully flat and broken, as if it had fallen from a great height, and it bore upon a shoulder a dreary crimson stain, washed and widened by the rain. Daily halted and sent a cry along

A Huddled Heap Lay at Its Base.

They touched the thing with awed amaze, turning up in the blue dusk

Hampden, with the aid of the towering spine and the sheer depths, had made good his words. They would never send him to the chair.

And with the passing of the wondrous face under the disheveled gold hair had gone his last desire.

They hastily constructed another sling and added one more burden to

So at last and forever Walter Sandry came unto his own. There was yet timber in the Coast country. The East Belt was all but free of the shadow. Those old hidden records should be unearthed through Hampden's boast, or he would file on it invalidate the O'Connel filing. His enemy was gone-in shame and wrath and dishonor. He had won his

That old crime, done in poetic justice under the Right Law of primal man, troubled him not at all, for he saw the glory of his father's face, heard his "I am at peace." Beside him walked that love of which he had dreamed, the pearl of price which he had so nearly lost in his blindness. Before him went his tried friend, big John Daily, whose heart had shut on its own pain and opened to him the more.

At the camp waited the white-haired general who was a mother to him. Here was his life from this time forth, amid the stark forces of a virgin country. The cities were far : way, He had heard the Winds of God upon the Sounding Board of the Hills and they had shown him Deity. He was no longer a questioner, an agnosbare heavens. Thus he was borne down the dripping valley, filled with a vast peace, content-a Westerner at last.

tic. He had come too close to the

"Sandy," whispered Siletz, as the procession wound up the slope to the cook-shack, lifting troubled, adoring dark eyes to his, "will it make any difference to you that I have no soul? Will my heart do?"

And Sandy could only hold more tightly the two small brown hands. THE END.

raised his eyes to her she was calm sea of smoke long red streamers Back," she shuddered as she spoke WOULD TAKE BIBLE TO RICH BROUGHT TO LIFE BY LIGHT

They Do Not Take Time for God's Word, Is Assertion by New York Pastor.

"Pity the poor rich, for they are the poorest of all. They are barricaded against the Bible. If the Master himself were to undertake to carry his message personally to the hotels and apartment houses of New York he would be turned aside by the doorman with the information that 'No peddlers are allowed."

So Rev. Joseph W. Kemp, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, explained to me the Sunday sermon in which he said that "the crying need of religion in this city is to put Bibles in the homes of the wealthy." "How hardly shall they who have riches enter into the kingdom of heaven," the divine earnestly quoted. "It is not that the possession of riches is inconsistent with Christianity, but that the rich grow to worship the creature of their own brains-money. They believe that riches may be counted in the palm. This is not so. True riches are within. There are millionaires of the mind, Rockefellers of the soul, and they are found oftener than not among the poor-the rich poor whose doors and whose intellects are open to the Gospel of Christ."

"To what do you attribute the raligious apathy of the rich?" I asked Doctor Kemp.

The rich are obsessed with materialism," Doctor Kemp answered. "They have all the time in the world to read the latest novel, to go and see the latest play, but they have no time for the word of God."-Nixola In the other lay Sandry, his right Greeley-Smith, in Nov York World.

Marketing Farm Products.

United States Senator Fletcher has called a meeting of the national marketing committee to devise means to aid the farmer in marketing his products, and also to enable the consumer to distinguish between the high cost of food and the high cost of serv-

"The farmers of the country are producing annually crops for which they receive $9,000,000,000, and for which the consumer pays, $27,000,000,000," said Representative W. S. Goodwin of Arkansas, a member of the committee. The farmer gets 35 cents and the middleman gets 65 cents for each dollar the consumer pays for the farmer's crops. There is an enormous amount of waste, especially in perishable products, because of the lack of some central directing intelligence."

Where the lowan Drew the Line. You may be able to force an oldfashioned man to wear evening dress, but you can't convince him that he is

Poppy Seeds, Twenty Centuries Old,

Sprang Into Brilliant Bloom When Uncovered.

Some years ago there was seen in a silver mine of Laurium a curious instance of the resuscitating power of light after many years. The silver mines of Laurium were abandoned more than 2,000 years ago as unworkable, and were filled for the most part with the slag from the workings of the miners.

It was discovered, however, that this slag contained plenty of silver, which could easily be rendered available by up-to-date appliances. Accordingly it was removed to the furnace, and, when next the mine was visited, a wonderful transformation was found to have taken place. Instead of a heap of rubbish, the mine had become a gorgeous flower garden. The entire space was covered with a brilliant show of poppies. This profuse vegetable life, it is asserted, belonged to the age in which the mines were worked. Twenty centuries old, therefore, were those poppy seeds; yet, when the removal of the siag allowed the light to fall upon them, they sprang into life and bloom under its influence.

African Fashion Notes.

The prettiest dress of the Mpongwe woman is a cloth drawn up under the arms, a scarf on the shoulders, and a handkerchief folded over the coiled hair in a high stiff fold set well up on the head, rather like a child's idea of a crown, writes Jean Kenyon Mackenzie in the Atlantic. There is a great fancy for purples and lavenders set off with shades of rose and red and a sudden keen note of gilt. With black there will be a touch of most delicate bright green. A cloth and a scarf worn by a woman of beautiful gesture-and a Gabonnaise is always that-have a certain mutable charm; the movements of the body, the wind that blows from the sea-these renew and display the folds of the garment so that the eye is intrigued.

To Reduce Flesh Safely.

If one really wishes to reduce the flesh without injury, careful diet is absolutely necessary. Milk, eggs, fish. fowl and fresh fruits are good, and you must have lots of water, air and sunlight. Bicycle riding is better than walking, and dancing also helps to reduce.

Eat only simple, light foods without fats, greases, offs, starches and gravies. Shun all liquors and hot drinks-and eat nothing after five o'clock in the afternoon. Do not sleep over seven hours at night and avoid an afternoon nap as you would the plague. The juice of a lemon, taken in a glass of hot water with a teaeating dinner at supper time.-Chero- spoonful of rochelle salts at night is

PROSPERITY IN WESTERN GANADA

900 Million Dollars in New Wealth Added in 1915.

Canada as a whole has enjoyed wonderful prosperity in 1915, from the products of the farm, the orchard and the centres of industry. No country wrote a brighter page of history in agricultural and industrial development during 1915 than Canada. Nearly a billion bushels of grain produced. Taxes in Western Canada average $24 and will not exceed $35 per quarter section, which includes all taxes. No taxes on improvements. When Western Canada was faced with her enormous harvest last fall the military authorities decided that soldiers in Canada could give the Empire no better service for the time being than to assist in harvesting the crops. For that reason leave of absence was given to soldiers whe wished to work in the harvest fields, and their labor was an important factor in harvesting the big crops success-

The necessity for increasing the agricultural production is commanding even more attention in 1916, and it is now announced that soldiers in Canada may obtain leave of absence from their military duties in the spring for a certain length of time to enable them to plant the seed for the crops in every Province of the Dominion.

The fact that the Government recognizes the seeding and harvesting of Canada's crops as being of the Brat importance is perhaps the best evidence that conscription or any increase of taxes which would reduce the agricultural activity of Canada will never be considered by the author-listed for overseas service it has been found necessary to secure farm labor in the United States. It is hoped that fifty thousand can be secured .- Advertisement.

Owing to the number who have en-

Perhaps the best hand a man can hold in the game of life is the hand of some good woman.

To keep clean and healthy take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate liver, bowels and stomach.—Adv. Alas for the intellect when the understanding is limited only by the size of the feet! For a really fine coffee at a moderate price, drink Denison's Seminole Brand, 35c the lb., in sealed cans. Only one merchant in each town sells Seminole. If your grocer en't the one, write the Denison Coffee Co. Chicago, for a souvenir and the name of your Seminole dealer.

Buy the 3 lb. Canister Can for $1.00.

Good-By Birch. Bill-Is the school up-to-date? Jill-Yes; they use an electric switch in the building.

War on Dirt. "What's this? Your house is all torn up. Things are a wreck." "Wy wife has started her housecleaning offensive."

Limitation. "A woman should be able to trust her husband in everything." "Well," commented the lady with an anxious expression; "I'd trust John with the rubber plant and maybe with the goldfish. But I could never depend on him to look after the dog and the canary bird."

SALTS IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS TROUBLE YOU

Eat Less Meat If Your Kidneys Aren't Acting Right or If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat enters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effect vescent lithia-water drink .- Adv.

When a married woman begins to juggle dumbbells it's her husband's cue to cultivate the acquaintance of divorce lawyer.