Mr. Delk and his wife last winter were located for some time at South Sioux City, where he was conducting revival services. He became ill during the services and did not complete his work. He termed himself the "acrobatic evangelist." He did hand-springs over chairs to prove his ability. Sioux City Journal, 23: Died, at Waterbury, Neb., on Wednesday, June 21, 1916, Hans Hansen, 43 years old. He lived in Woodbury county, Iowa, for twenty years and went to Waterbury a short time ago. His widow, three daughters and two sons survive. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the Nelson chapel. Burial will be in Sergeant Bluffs cemetery. Frank Kimbel, a junk dealer of 3604 East Fifth street, died at the Samaritan hospital yesterday morning from a bullet wound inflicted by Joseph O'Brien, night marshal at Jackson, Neb., early Wednesday morning. He was 58 years old. Kimbel was operated upon Wednesday morning, but had lost so much blood through his refusal of medical aid that he failed to rally. Little hope for his recovery was entertained from the first. Twelve intestinal punctures and a large bullet hole through the front wall of the abdomen were sewed up in the slight hope that Kimbel would be able to muster sufficient strength to successfully battle with his wounds. Some mystery surrounds the shooting of Kimbel. He never made a statement further than to say he did not know why he was shot. Kimbel drove to Hubbard, Neb., Tuesday, accompanied by William Shirley, a friend. He disposed of a load of empty beer bottles and was returning by way of Jackson. About 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning he arrived at Jackson, and, instructing Shirley to remain with the rig, walked down the main street. Marshal O'Brien says he saw Kimbel walking down the street looking into windows. He commanded Kimbel to stop, but was not obeyed. After repeating the order several times the marshal says he fired at Kimbel's feet. O'Brien did not realize he had hit the Sioux City man until he learned it from here later. The marshal said robberies have been frequent at Jackson and he was suspicious of Kimbel's actions. O'Brien insists he merely sought to scare Kimbel. Kimbel staggered back to his wagon and returned to Sioux City with Shirley, whom he forbade to call medical aid. He yielded to persuasion only after reaching his home, following a three hours' drive from Jackson. He was then hauled to the hospital in the same conveyance, a further distance of about three miles. Kimbel is survived by his widow and a stepson, George Kimbel 19 years old.

Looking Backward.

Sioux City Journal, June 24, 1896: The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha company yesterday commenced the construction of a spur track across the river which will begin above the Pacific Short Line bridge and run east through Covington. The spur will be about a half mile in length. The tracks are needed at once to carry along the river bank 500 carloads of stone which will be used in the government rip-rap work. There were received at the stock yards yesterday ten steers and seven cows from the fancy Hereford herd of D. C. Dibble, of Dakota City, Neb., that were "finer than silk, but not quite as fine as tissue paper." Every one was a beauty and finished as well as grain and intended feeding could finish them. They averaged 1,320 pounds, and were purchased by H. Van Hoven at $4 straight, to be shipped to Chicago. About nine years ago Mr. Van Hoven purchased a car load of Hereford cattle from Mr. Dibble that stood as a standard for high class beefs for all these years. They also were shipped to Chicago and sold at $4.85, or 35 cents per hundred pounds more than anything else sold on the market that day.

Sioux City Journal, June 23, 1896: The government towboat Little Josie, which is being repaired at the dry docks of the government on the Big Sioux, just opposite the vinegar works, was struck by lightning yesterday afternoon during a rain storm. Foreman Walter Foley and his gang of workmen, Sam Jenkins, E. B. Wilbur, Henry Roth, Marshal Luther, Sam Lopp, Tom Mullon, Rolph Smith and Clarence Doffit, were all at work on the machinery when the bolt struck, and they were all knocked down. None sustained much injury except Henry Roth, who was severely burned.

Sioux City Journal, June 22, 1896: A small steamer will soon be at the service of visitors at Crystal lake. C. D. Smiley, of South Sioux City, is having one built that will carry twenty passengers. The only town in Dakota county which has declared its intention of celebrating the Fourth of July is Homer. Many of the towns across the river will unite with Sioux City in her monster celebration.

Mrs. Martha F. Adair Passes to Her Maker

Mrs. Martha Ford Adair, a pioneer resident of Dakota county, was called to the great beyond Friday morning at 1:30. Her death was due to senility. She had been in failing health for several years, and for the past two years had been under the constant care of a trained nurse, in the home of her son, Harry H. Adair.

Mrs. Adair was born in Cunningham, Mass., July 13, 1838, and was in her 78th year. She removed with her parents, in the early 50s, to Grinnell, Iowa, where on November 11, 1857, she was united in marriage to Wm. Adair, and the same year moved to Dakota City, Neb., where she resided continuously until her death. Her husband preceded her to that other world November 5, 1907.

Mrs. Adair was a devout Christian woman and a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal church. She was also a charter member of Dakota Chapter No. 65, Order of the Eastern Star. She is survived by five sons—Ed N. Adair, of Centralia, Wash.; Will R. Adair, of Omaha, Neb.; Chas. W. Adair, of Sioux City, Iowa; Frank F. Adair, of Chicago, and Harry H. Adair, of Dakota City; also one daughter, Mrs. Chas. L. Culler, of Hartington, Neb. One son and three daughters preceded her in death.

The funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from the Harry Adair home, Rev. F. J. Aucock, pastor of the M. E. church, officiating. Interment was in the Dakota City cemetery.

"Life's race well run,
Life's work well done,
Life's crown well won,
Now comes rest."

Albion News: W. P. Warner, republican candidate for congress in this district, was in Albion last Saturday between trains. He had been at St. Edwards the night before to address the commercial club meeting. Mr. Warner expects to make a clean and vigorous campaign this fall, and hopes to meet as many of the people as possible. He was United States marshal for ten years, and made many friends by his able, efficient and affable manner of doing business. He is an attorney by profession, but a farmer by trade. He is at present living on a farm five miles from Dakota City, where he went as soon as his term of office expired last year. This congressional district is slightly democratic on a normal vote, but those who are posted believe that Mr. Warner will overcome the handicap and be elected by a nice margin.
