Sioux City Journal, 26: The little town of Hubbard, Neb., has been upset by mysterious gun attacks on the home of John Sullivan, a wealthy farmer near there, which culminated in the alleged shooting of one of a gang of four "gunmen" by Albert Mullin, Mr. Sullivan's farm hand, but now it may return to its peaceful way. The deep mystery, in which many sensational incidents took place, has been solved. Albert Mullin, hero of the young men and young women of Hubbard because he put to route the "gunmen" gang, is the "double dyed" deceiver. Mullin yesterday confessed to A. J. Nuss, manager of a detective agency, that he concocted the story of the "gunmen" attack and that he fired the shots at the home of Mr. Sullivan, who is his uncle. Mullin's confession, which he signed, was turned over to Mr. Sullivan. It is probable that Mullin will not be prosecuted because of his kinship to the Sullivans. The stories framed up by Mullin, according to his signed statements, were weird. He posed as the hero in all his pseudo adventures. Residents of Hubbard, and particularly the Sullivans, were greatly wrought up by the attacks on their home. Several times the house was struck by bullets. Occupants heard the bullets whiz by. Here is the solution to the mystery, as told by Mullin in his confession. "I shot at the (Sullivan) house a number of times. I do not know the exact number of times. I shot for the purpose of making Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan believe that they were being molested by other parties. Here's another story concocted by young Mullin, which proved the 'deepest' mystery of all. It is here told in his own words: 'On or about the Fourth of July, about 9 o'clock in the evening, I hid in a pit about 30 feet west of the granary, and while hiding there I saw four men approach the cultivator which was standing in the field; the four men began to strip the parts off the machine, and I opened fire on them with my revolver, firing at and hitting one man twice, who fell to the ground. He was picked up by his companions and was taken to the place where they had the horses tied and was taken away on one of the horses. In going away they dropped a piece of blood stained cloth which had covered the wound inflicted by me. I showed the blood stained cloth to Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan. I now state that the piece of blood stained cloth which I showed to them (the Sullivans) was taken from the sore foot of one of the horses on the farm. The horse's name was Kate.' Mullin, according to his signed statement, stripped Mr. Sullivan's farm machinery of different parts and told his employer that they had been stolen.

Lutheran Church Notes
DAKOTA CITY-SALEM
"The abundance of life consisteth not in the abundance of what a man possesseth." This is what most people will subscribe but it is what many do not comprehend. How men do wrestle with the world to wring from it what they can. As if happiness and riches of one sort or another were synonymous, or even went hand in hand. Abundance of life is a condition rather than things possessed. The man who has little may live as loyally as he who has much. Indeed we have all known some who would pass out of the world and never be missed, possibly men rejoiced at their passing tho

Sioux City Journal, 28: Miss Mary Duggan and Miss Helen Duggan, of Goodwin, Neb., with their guest, Miss Mary Moriarity, of Woonsocket, R. I., returned to their home yesterday after being entertained by their Sioux City friends for several days... Among the Sioux City-ans who are spending the week at Crystal lake are Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knight, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Warsing, Miss Anna

Coughlin, Miss Gladys Coughlin, Miss Grace Langfeldt, Miss Mabel Barclay and Miss Helen Herbst. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bryant, of Boyden, Ia., are with the party... The Rienhart flats, Seventh and Nebraska streets, have been purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rice, of Chicago, and James M. King, of Homer, Neb., and Samuel J. Knox, of Waterbury, Neb. The purchase price was $80,000. Record of the sale was filed yesterday at the office of the county recorder. The deal was made through the real estate firm of H. L. Cravens & Co. Mortgages on Sioux City realty totaling $40,000 were part of the consideration. Mr. Cravens stated that the property had been bought for investment purposes... Rumors, starting from no authoritative source, and yet which have been persistent in the city for several days to the effect that the waters of Crystal lake were "poisonous," yesterday brought forth a denial signed by the cottagers of the lake. There were several hundred names on the testimonial. Among them were those of some of Sioux City's most widely known doctors. It is estimated that nearly 1,500 people are living at the lake this year, and from 2,000 to 4,000 persons go to the lake each Sunday. The starting point of the rumor could not be determined. The cottagers attested that they go bathing in the lake every day, and have suffered no ill effects as the result. Joe Marshall, who is interested in the Crystal Lake Park company, said some people have been poisoned in this way: Instead of going to a bath house they back their automobiles into the woods and change their clothes, resulting in some instances in cases of poison ivy. The statement signed by the "cottagers" reads: "We, the undersigned cottagers and residents of Crystal lake, believing that a great injustice is being done by the circulation of false reports regarding the purity of the water in Crystal lake, desire it to be known that we use this lake for daily bathing for ourselves and families, and with no ill effects, and we know that the water is pure. We believe the said false reports were circulated by parties with malicious intent, and as this lake has become a popular summer resort and is attracting thousands of people, it is only just that we express our sentiments."

They were possessed of much, while others leave a distinct void when they have left tho they needed no will to distribute their riches, for they took all their wealth with them—the love of the community, the memory of kindness, the oft times unrequited service, the downright self denial. Such a one has lived an abundant life, one of wide influence and deep friendship.
Then, how many things there are to thrill you over life. Get off the farm to the city for a while, then come back to old Dobin and the dog, and your spring plowing and you will know what we mean. Just real joy over the commonplaces of life. You do not need many possessions to experience that. Your possessions could not buy them. A rich man may have a fine cane, and an elegant coat, but hardly "life" enough to smile. His heart may be heavy and lifeless, even sordid. That is not life abundant, it is poverty, squalor of life, misery. Choose a cot, a mind to work, and strength rather than such. Choose a life that tingles at a kind word spoken, a spirit that leaps in you because you are serving, a soul that sees the bright side of lowly things. That is a full life, and abundance.
We once heard an old man say, "Who wants to sleep his life away," and from his conversation we judged he wanted more waking hours for revelry. But how poor are the pleasures which pass in an hour and leave depression in their wake compared to the beauty of right. Righteousness exalteth, even in the eyes of the debased. How long have you rejoiced after you had "stung" a friend or how many times have you been really sorry that you helped him. That is the abundance of life. When your soul is stirred and the spirit is thrilled with the good, that is abundant life. Money could not buy it, you would't sell it. A poor man can have it as well as the rich, and much easier. And the power of it all is Jesus Christ. A non-christian truly may know something of it, but the fullness of such abundance is in the love of the Master.
The Emmanuel Ladies' Aid will have a picnic Wednesday, as this goes to press, at Crystal lake.
Our Salem Sunday school was well attended last Sunday as was the church service. Remember we will have the communion next Sunday. We will not be disappointed.
We rejoiced to receive four into the church at Salem last Sunday. Two by confirmation, one by adult baptism and one by infant baptism.
