Edwin Morgan

Republican Candidate for County Commissioner Dakota County, Nebr.

Mr. Morgan served as County Commissioner for six years, and during that time he never once missed a meeting of the board; in other words, was neither absent nor tardy. He made no enemies, except in standing for the interests of the county, and if elected will give you the same prompt and efficient service as before. He will be a commissioner for the whole county, not for one particular locality.

To My Friends:

It hardly seems necessary to recall to you my conduct and the manner in which I have served you as County Clerk. The details in the office of County Clerk are numerous and of vital importance; I am familiar with them, having gained it by experience and close attention, and as before, will continue my method of serving all alike in attending to the duties of the office I am aspiring to. The title to your home depends on strict attention to correct and careful recording. I am constantly on the alert to have everything correctly done, and my experience helps me in this work.

Your support is solicited on my past record.
 Respectfully,
GEORGE WILKINS
 Republican Candidate for Re-election to the Office of County Clerk.

The crowd showed their interest in the speeches by remaining throughout, it being nearly 11 o'clock when they finished.

Lutheran Church Notes

DAKOTA CITY-SALEM

Sing unto Jehovah a new song, sing with timbrel and harp, make a joyful noise unto God, sing spiritual psalms and hymns. How full of such exhortations is the Word of God. There are many songs in the bible, much of it is music in itself. Many people when they read the bible do not try to get the beauty out of the wordings. There is beauty in the thought, but there is music in the rhythm, too, of the flow of words. Many preachers kill the musical flow of the composition. They read it as they would read nothing else in the world. Many people would read the newspaper with more appreciation of the words than they read the most musical book in the world. The psalms are poetry, there is not any rhyme, but there is rhythm, and it is beautiful. Take one of them and read it aloud, read it smoothly and evenly, and see if this is not so. If you have an old first reader in the house that you used when you were in school years ago, get it out for an experiment, read the poetry in it, you may find Shelley's "To a Skylark," or Bryant's "Thanatopsis" and there is nothing in English literature more poetic and smooth than these. After you have gone through this sort of writing for a while, take your bible and read the 90th Psalm, read the 19th, the 23rd, any of them, turn to Luke 1:46 and read Mary's song called "The Magnificat," for the charm of rhythm there is nothing in the world more delightful than this. The beauty of imagery, and the loftiness of conception of just these surpasses all the writings of men. Read Job from the 38th to the end for majesty and statelyness. Get Daniel Webster's speech at the dedication of the Bunker Hill Monument and begin when he says, "Venerable men, you have come down to us, etc.," and read something beautiful, emotional, and lofty, and then turn to John 17, read Paul's speech before Felix, find the Glory parts of the 11th, 12th and 19th of the Revelation, and observe the music. Why will we read almost anything save the bible.

Our own music, the singing in the congregation is hallowed music. We ought to think of it as part of the worship, not as something which is just part of the program. When the soul is full it sings, the song is the overflowing of the fullness of the heart that cannot find expression in words or actions, that is what it should be to the worshipers, not simple words set to music. It should be engaged in heartily, and unto God in praise and supplication and thanks.

On Sunday October 29th, we are going to have a song service by the Salem chorus. It will be for the praise of God. It will be because the singers love to sing and magnify the Lord of Hosts. It is not to be an entertainment, nor is it to be an exhibition, it is to be sacred, the spirit of it is for praise, and for glory to God. It will be our boys and girls, and we will appreciate for that reason, because they are interested in the church service. Give God thanks for that, and pray for their continuance in the service of God and their growth. In the evening they are coming to Emmanuel, and will give the song service there for the good of the congregation in town. That will be a fine and a generous thing for them to do.

Remember Salem in the morning, Emmanuel at night, October 29. There is to be no admission, the offering will be for home missions.

There will be no services next Sunday, and no practice Friday night but Friday, October 27, there will be the regular practice.

Emmanuel's Ladies' Aid meets with Miss Aae Altemus Wednesday, October 25th.
