

CHAPTER XXI-Continued. -15-

That was the worst part of it allthe waiting. Heart-rending reports of not talked long before Guy Falconer tappenings in many Belgian villages came out of his abstraction. He raised same to the British, for Courvoisier his head all at once and looked inquirwas only one of many hamlets that ingly at the civilian. Then he jumped and tragedles to relate. And the British were powerless to aid those strick- stretched hand. an people.

Trench 27-the English trench which Streetman had indicated upon his map | Charlie Brown?" as being the keystone to the enemy's defense-lay in the first line of the cial designs that the Germans might have against their particular position, the Tommles stationed there-proceeded to put things in shape for the general action that was bound to come. After completing their grim arrangements, there was little for them to do for the time being, except rest. And that they were glad enough to do, after their bereulean exertions of those first days of the war. That there was worse ahead of them they did not doubt. But in the meantime there was no reason why they should not

It was night-the second night following that fatal day when the Germans descended upon the Lion d'Or and robbed Jeanne Christophe of her father. In Trench 27 four soldiers were playing poker under the shelter of a bombproof but that they had constructed by digging into a side of the ditch. Dirty, unshaven, begrimed, they were nevertheless enjoying to the full their well-carned respite. And the flickering light of the candle which stood upon their rude table revealed no fear upon the face of any of them.

make themselves at home.

At either end of the trench two men stood guard, while close at hand a periscope lay upon a makeshift bench, ready for instant use in case the watchers should detect any unusual and suspicious movements in front of them. Out there beneath the stars the first outpost of the enemy had already dug itself in. And in testimony of their alertness the Germans continually played a searchlight upon the British position. That prying shaft of tight was never still. Now it swept the top of Trench 27, now flickered upon a tree close by, and then searched the intervening ground between the two lines in an effort to detect some venturesome observer.

To the four privates in the bomb proof shelter there came a momentary interruption, in the shape of a lieutenant, who sauntered into their trench from the left. This youthful officer, whom they had already voted "a bit of all-right," observed them pleasantly.

"Hello, boys!" he said.

They sprang up and saluted, murmuring "Good evening, sir!"

"How's the game?" the lieutenant inquired. "Henry, there, is winning all our elgarettes," one of the men said. The young officer smiled. And then, drawing a pencil and a postcard from his pocket, he scated himself and proceeded to write a note to a young woman in London. For Guy Falconer had consistently kept his promise to write Georgy every day.

The privates promptly resumed their poker game.

"I raise it one cigarette," one of them said. And again Guy smiled. He was glad that his boys were en-Joying themselves.

So engrossed did Lieutenant Falconer become in his note to his lady love that he did not notice when his captain appeared, in the company of a civilian. Captain Montague paused and turned to his guest. "Now, Mr. Brown." he said, "you're in the first line of the English trenches -Trench 27-and I may say you're the only American correspondent who has had this experience." Charlie Brown looked about with undisguised interest.

"And I rather butted in." he re marked.

"Well, as long as you stumbled inside our lines, you might as well see something, if you give me your word not to write anything."

"That's a nice thing to say to newspaper man," Charlie retorted. "But I have your word?"
"I s'pose so!" It cost Mr. Brown

some effort to promise that. He saw the makings of a bully scoop before bim. And he hated to forego such a wonderful opportunity.

"The closer you are to the front, the tess you know of what's happening,' Captain Montague resumed, "except on your own very small square of a very large checkerboard. . . . But, technically, you are under fire." "Am 1?" Mr. Brown was surprised at that. "Somehow, I don't feel any different," he said. "You would if you stuck your head over that trench and they happened to see it," the captain told him grimly. "Well-believe me, I'm not going usually quiet tonight?" "Yes, rather! But always before the evening's over they give us a bit tague received a message from the the daytime, and then at night they shoot at the same range."

Charlie Brown and his escort had up and approached Charlie with out-

"I thought I recognized that voice!" he exclaimed. "Do you remember me,

"Hello, Guy!" the delighted American cried. "So you did come over British. All unconscious of any spe- to the front, after all? Didn't I say you would?

> "Yes! I came over with the first batch-bribed the recruiting sergeant! And here I am! . . . But what are you doing at the front?"

Charile explained how he had fallen into the hands of the Germans, how they had set him free and started him toward Brussels. But his rebellious nature had revolted; and having hidden by day and traveled by night, he had made straight for the place where he understood the British to be in-brief recital when there followed an ominous whistle, which seemed to careful." come from over his head. Off in the distance there was a flash and an explosion

"What's that?" the American asked. "Oh, just one of our shells traveling somewhere to our friends, the enemy," the captain informed him.

"That will probably start their evening song," Guy remarked.

"They needn't hurry on my ac count," Charlie said. For a few minutes they stood there, discussing the war. "What's it for?" the newspaper man asked. "There's no individual hatred -no great, soul-stirring emotional crisis behind it all."

"But England was forced into it, Captain Montague interposed.

"And I dare say France and Russia and Austria all feel they were forced inte it, too," Charlle replied. "That's the whole trouble. Each nation bewar like this," told him.

As they talked, a doctor, accompanied by two stretcher bearers, enin that quarter, they passed on.

"That's the Red Cross," Captain Montague explained, noticing the journalist's interest in the trio. Following by the arm. close upon his words came another of those sinister whistles.

'Hello Guyl" the Delighted American Cried.

"That's one of their shelis!" the captain continued, meaning the Germans.

At the information Mr. Brown promptly ducked and huddled down upon the bench under the overhang of the trench.

"You needn't duck, old man! It wouldn't do you any good," the elder caught the fellow skulking around. officer remarked. "Anyway, that shell was on its way toward one of our batteries," he added, pointing to their rear.

"Well, now they've started, anyhow," Guy said. "Sometimes they fire only one or two shots-and then again they go on a loyal Englishman!" Streetman proto," said Charlie. "Aren't they un- all night," his senior officer explained. tested. Stepping to the field telephone, which rang insistently, Captain Monof theworks and go for some of our battery posted some distance behind. bull story about being wounded and when Guy Falconer learned that some then-" the sergeant started to say, when they try to get our range in light bombs were to be let off, he when Streetman interrupted him.

begged the captato to let him climb the tree that rose near one end of the information that's vital to England," trench, in order that he might try to he insisted, get the range of the German guns. The captain did not like the blea. of him. He had been cautioned not to expose his men-and especially his officersunnecessarily. And he warned Guy British army. I've been in business in that he might get picked off by a Ger- Belgium—the automobile business. My man sniper.

to do something."

at last he gave his consent.

ful lieutenant carefully watched the and I got one of their bayonets in the their heads and burst increasingly nearer to the Teuton artillery.

"Right on a gun!" Guy shouted at last. "I saw it crumple! That's it! Keep the range at twenty-nine fifty!" The words were hardly out of his mouth before he came toppling from his perch. The captain and one of the privates caught the limp figure just before it struck the ground, and they laid him tenderly upon the dirt floor of Trench 27.

"They've got him. . . . He's not dead, though." . . . Captain Montague kneeled beside the lad and bent over him. And a corporal with some knowledge of first-aid procedure undertook to stop Guy's bleeding. He was seriously wounded—that much was clear. And he was unconscious.

"Beastly dull"-so Guy had been writing Georgy Wagstaff. "Awfully hot-no excitement. Haven't seen a Mr. Brown had scarcely finished his German or any decent food. But that doesn't matter. Tell mother I'm being

"Poor kid!" Charlle Brown exclaimed. It was a grim business-

"Sad-very sad!" the captain agreed. "But perhaps he'll pull through; and if he doesn't-well! forgive me, Mr. Brown, if I seem heartless-but remember! this is new to you and he's only one, and I've seen so many!" Captain Montague noticed that the American correspondent was white and somewhat unsteady.

"I feel a bit shaken. Do you mind if I go back now?" Charlie asked.

"Certainly not!" "If I come across the surgeon or any of the Red Cross, you don't mind if I send them back, do you?" Charlie wanted to do what he could to help his friend

The captain readily gave his assent. "I'm through with war," Charlie Brown said as he shook hands with lieves ifonestly that it's in the right, Montague. "I'm off to London. I'll and in some way I suppose each of see his mother there, and that kid girl them is. . . . I don't know-I'm of his-and then go to New York, not a big enough man to attempt to where there's no war, thank God! And And what good is it all?" you know, Cap, when I'm home, sit-"It is that militarism shall cease- ting at my desk, looking down over gue told him. Still, he was somewhat that never again can there be another Broadway where war only means some the English captain | more headlines on the front page about some unpronounceable places, and you turn over the paper to see how stocks closed, or who won the game-when tered the trench, and, finding that I'm back there and the war stuff there was no need for their services comes over the wire, I'll be thinking of you fellows over here under fire, and I'll be wishing you luck, old man, the best of luck!"

The captain thanked him; and they said good-by.

Charlie lingered for one last look it the wounded Guy.

"I hope you pull through, old boy! he said; he knew, though, that Guy could not hear him. "Do what you can for him, won't you?" he asked the captain. "I know his mother. . . . This whole business is hell, isn't it?"

CHAPTER XXII.

A Meeting In the Trenches.

Charlie Brown had gone, and Captain Montague had ordered his men to place Guy upon a heap of straw, where ne must lie until the doctor came. In Trench 27 an atmosphere of sadness had succeeded the air of light-hearted stranger's story. carelessness that Charlie Brown had found when he arrived there. The candle still flickered upon the table round which the poker players had phone. It's for England! I beg of you lately sat. But all thought of that to believe me! Let me inform headfrivolous game had vanished from quarters-let them decide! Do you their minds. It was not that they had dare take the responsibility?" not already seen many of their men shot down. But Guy Falconer had denly called out. quickly endeared himself to all-officers and enlisted men allke. And now that he had received his billet, in the German bullet, there was not one soul in Trench 27 that was not both sobered and sad.

But they had little time to bestow upon a contemplation of war's horrors. Five minutes had scarcely elapsed after Charlie Brown's departure when a sergeant appeared, holding a prisoner

It was Streetman-that prisoner. And he was far from presenting the jaunty figure that usually distinguished him. His clothing-civilian clothing-was badly torn, his face was scratched and dirty, and his right arm was in a sling. The man's hat was his men to their stations. "Keep your gone, too.

The sergeant reported to his captain that while on patrol duty he had "He came from the German lines," he said. Captain Montague held the candle to Streetman's face. "And in civilian's clothes! A spy, eh?" he exclaimed. "No, no, captain! An Englishman-

They searched him: but found noth ing of importance. "He's got some kind of cock-and-

'Never mind that! I tell you I've

But the captain was still suspicious "My name's Lee-Walter Lee," Streetman asserted, "formerly of the papers there will prove what I say. "Not a chance!" Guy protested. The Germans took my factory-kept 'Please! It would be ripping really me prisoner all night in the cellar. That's when I learned their plans from The captain perceived that the in- some major-Major von Brenig and a action of waiting for an attack was Captain Karl. I could listen to them fast setting Guy's nerves on edge. And talking-there were holes in the floor from that shell fire. I realized what For a little time Guy called out di- it would mean to England if I could rections to the captain, who stood at bring word to the British army of this the telephone relaying Guy's instruc- secret plan of the Germans. During tions to the battery. In the light fur- the night I managed to escape through nished by the British bombs the youth- the cellar window. They followed me, effect of the shells that whistled over shoulder. They left me for dead; but it was only a flesh wound. And for the last twenty hours I've been seeking the British position somewhere near Trench 27-for that's the vital spot-when your sergeant caught me.'

An Englishman-a Loyal Englishman!" Streetman Protested.

"Trench 27, eh?" the captain said. "Yes!" Streetman answered eagerly. 'Is it near here?"

"Remember, sir, you are not questioning me," Captain Montague replied. "So you won't believe me? Yet you've looked at my papers. Don't they convince you?" "Papers are easily forged," Monta impressed by the other's glib tale, and he allowed the captive to proceed with his story. "The Germans are to attack tonight in force at your Trench 27, in the hope of cutting through the British lines.' Streetman continued. "Your only chance is to bring up every possible man to protect that trench. Otherwise we'll be beaten. You see what it means. . . Ah! There's your field telephone! Let me communicate with headquarters! They'll understand!" He started for the telephone.

But Captain Montague sprang in front of him.

"Keep away from that instrument!" he commanded. And, turning to the sergeant, be ordered him to take the prisoner to headquarters. "You can explain to them," he informed Streetman.

"By then it may be too late," the fellow replied. "Their attack was to be at midnight."

"Indeed!" the English officer exclaimed dryly. "It's past midnight now." And straightway he became more doubtful than ever of the

"Then they're likely to charge any minute," the spy declared with wellsimulated alarm. "I've got to tele-

One of the privates on guard sud-"Somethin' crawlin' out there, cap tain! Looks like a man!" The sergeant faced to the front, with gun ready for action.

"He's comin' this way!" another soldier cried.

Streetman saw another chance for his plan to succeed, and he quickly seized it. "You see, captain, it's the start of their attack!" he said excitedly. "For God's sake let me telephone!" ha begged.

At last Captain Montague was convinced.

"Quickly then-telephone!" he said. And while Streetman sprang to the instrument, the British officer ordered eyes open-and give 'em the best we've got!" he urged them.

Meanwhile, out there in the moonlight between the two lines of trenches, that dark figure crawled nearer. Rifle fire crackled out from the German watchers, and the skulker broke into stumbling run.

other side!" one of the Britishers cried. "Another trick to fool us!" Captain Montague observed. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

"They're tryin' to pot him from the Monster of the Sea.

The average weight of the Green land whale is 100 tons-224,000 pounds -equal to that of 80 elephants or that of 400 bears.

etThese When you feel yourself taking cold, Peruna Tablets are likely to check and overcome the attack. When your appetite is fitful, your food does not taste good, Peruna Tablets will invigorate and regulate. When you are weak after Illness, Peruna Tablets are noted for their healthful Tonic Effect. When catarrh distresses you, Peruna Tablets will help your system to rid itself of this disease Manalin Tablets are a delightful laxative. Strong cathartics weaken, and are followed by reaction. Manalin is mild, gently urging the liver to action, and will be found as safe as they are pleasant. By their use as directed, the habit of constitution is usually overcome, for children and invalids the treatment is safe and satisfactory. Any drug store can supply you. Get a box today.

THE PERUNA COMPANY Columbus. Ohio THE PERUNA COMPANY Columbus, Ohio

THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE" $3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 AND WHEN N Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World. W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the both tom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them. The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he can-not supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free. LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas President $3.00 $2.50 & $2.00 W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brackton, Mass. name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

The steel mast of an Atlantic coast oil barge is used as a smokestack from the galley.

DON'T LOSE YOUR HAIR Prevent It by Using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

If your scalp is irritated, itching and burning and your hair dry and falling out in handfuls try the following treatment: touch spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment and follow with hot shampoo of Cuticura Soap. Absolutely nothing better.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere .- Adv.

The earth under a blanket of snow is usually ten degrees warmer than Rub the windowpanes well with old newspapers-it will let in the sunshine.

Neglected Colds bring Pneumonia. Look out.

The old family remedy—in tablet form—safe, sure, easy to take. No opiates—no unpleasant after effects. Cures colds in 24 hours—Grip in 3 days. Money back if it fails. Get the genuine box with Red Top and Mr. Hill's picture on it—25 cents. At Any Drug Store

Have You Rheumatism, Kidney, Liver or Bladder Trouble?

Pain or dull ache in the back is often | night, irritation, sediment, etc. evidence of kidney trouble. It is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

Danger Signals.

If these danger signals are unheeded more serious results may be expected: kidney trouble in its worst form may steal upon you. Thousands of people have testified that ing increase and remarkable prevalency, the mild and immediate effect of Swamp- of kidney disease. While kidney dis-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is soon realized-that it stands diseases that prevail, they are sometimes the highest for its remarkable curative the last recognized by patients, zuho

Lame Back. Lame back is only one of many symptoms of kidney trouble. Other symp-

Lack of control, smarting, uric acid, dizziness, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, sometimes the heart acts badly, rheumatism, bloating, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

Prevalency of Kldney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarmthe most common orders are among effect, in the most distressing cases. If very often content themselves with doctor-you need a medicine, you should have the ing the effects, while the original disease best.

may constantly undermine the system.

may constantly undermine the system. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores.

Don't make any mistake, but remember toms showing that you may need Swamp-Root, and the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which and frequent bladder troubles day and you will find on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. This gives you the opportunity to prove the remarkable merit of this medicine. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

The Result.

"The tall, handsome policeman youder does not seem to be doing much." "Indeed, he is. He is arresting attention."

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Cart flitchers In Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria Ninety-three per cent of the floor of the ocean is devoid of vegetation.

You can't offend a homely woman by telling her she is pretty.

Kidney Disorder (BY DR. V. M. PIERCE.)

The most simple methods are usutreating any disorder of the human some years ago for general weakness of hot water each morning, plenty after I began taking the medicine I of pure water all day, and a little was entirely cured and was as strong Anuric before every meal has been as ever."-MR. SYLVESTER AULT, found the most effective means of 144 Second Ave, North. overcoming kidney trouble. Death would occur if the kidneys did not poisons and uric acid from the blood, such a fine reputation for the past 40 depressions, pains, heaviness, drowsl- residents of Iowa. Every day more ness, irritability, headaches, chilli- and more people are coming to realize ness, rheumatic twinges, swollen that this is a standard medicine, and joints or gout.

PATENTS Watson E. Colemau, Wash-ington, D.C. Books free, High-set references. Best results

"ROUGH on RATS" Ble outdoors. 15c and 25c. Sioux City Directory

"Hub of the Northwest." FOR BEST SERVICE SHIP RICE BROTHERS Live Stock Commission Merchants at

SIOUX OITY, Ohioago or Kaneas Oky HIDE and FUR SHIPPERS Highest market price guaranteed

and a square deal. Write for our circular. BOLLES & ROGERS, Sloux City, Iowa

A PROMINENT MAN

Oelwein, Iowa. - "I took Doctor ally the most effective ones when Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery system. -The mere drinking a cup caused by hard work. In a short time

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovwork day and night in separating ery, the herbal remedy which has had The danger signals are backache, years, is indorsed by many well-known Is safe to take. It contains no alcohol Since it is such a simple matter to or narcotics. The ingredients are step into your favorite drug store and printed on the package. It is to be obtain Anuric, anyone who earnestly had at every drug store in the land in desires to regain health and new life either liquid or tablet form; or send will waste no time in beginning this Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., ten cents for large trial package,-Adv.