SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE OPENS OCTOBER 12

The great world war is expected to interfere but little with the attendance at the school of agriculture at the University Farm next fall.

MEAT SUBSTITUTES

Cottage cheese is one of the best meat substitutes known, according to home economics specialists at the University of Nebraska.

STORAGE OF POTATOES

Where potato tops have dried, tubers should not be left in the ground but should be dug immediately, according to horticulturists at the Nebraska Experiment Station.

ROUGING OUT DISEASED POTATOES

Because one cannot distinguish diseased from disease-free tubers in the bin, western Nebraska potato growers who intended to use home-grown seed next year are urged to select seed potatoes in the field by rouging out diseased plants.

CLEAN FUSIBLE SAFETY PLUG

Replacing burned-out safety plugs with bolts instead of with new fusible plugs is one of the common causes of explosion of tractor boilers, according to the department of agricultural engineering of the University of Nebraska.

REGISTRATION AT COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Entrance examinations for the College of Agriculture will be held September 10 to 15. Registration is scheduled for September 12 to 15.

MOST AUTOS BOUGHT HERE

So Dealers Plan Great Exhibit at Interstate Live Stock Fair.

Spurred on by official announcement at the state capitals that Iowa is the greatest state for automobile purchases in the union, considered on a per capita basis, and that Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota are almost in the same class as buyers of all kinds of cars, manufacturers and dealers have appealed to Joe Morton, secretary of the Interstate Live Stock Fair, to provide for a greatly enlarged exhibit area for motors and accessories at the big Sioux City exposition, September 17 to 22, inclusive.

The automobile dealers of Sioux City will have general charge of the motor show at the fair, which has grown in the last few years from an experiment to one of the really most important features. The dealers have found by experience that the display of cars at the fair in the fall, when people of the farming communities have practically completed their harvesting, is far more successful from the sales standpoint than the annual indoor shows in the spring, so they are planning to make this year's interstate show at the fair grounds the most comprehensive yet given in this section.

Cars that will be shown and demonstrated on automobile row will cover the whole range of production, from the practical little $360 machine to the classiest products of American motor and coach builders. It is planned, if possible, to introduce also a few of the more famous foreign makes. Some of the fancier cars will go up in price into figures away beyond $10,000.

Probably 100 cars will be on exhibition. Secretary Morton has arranged to house the exhibition of machines in a great, continuous hall of canvas, where experts in all lines of auto knowledge will give advice and urge the advantages of the various trim machines. The show is to be made especially entertaining this year for the folks who are probably not in the market now for a car, but may reach that stage some time in the future.

RODA ROYAL'S MILITARY ELEPHANTS

ONE OF THE TWELVE BIG FEATURE ACTS AT THE INTERSTATE FAIR, SIOUX CITY, IOWA, SEPTEMBER 17-18-19-20-21 AND 22.

Beginning rather timidly with free feature attractions to amuse the grandstand crowds at the Interstate Live Stock Fair, the management from year to year has been so encouraged at the evident popular enjoyment of these spectacles that the free shows have been expanded annually. Last year, when 10 attractions of first class ability were signed up to give circus entertainment on the race track and on special platforms inside the railing, it was thought by Secretary Joe Morton that the limit had been reached. But he has now announced that, partly because of unusual conditions in the tented amusement field and on the vaudeville stage, it has been found possible to go far beyond the 1916 mark both in the general standard of free acts and in the variety they will offer.

"This improvement," said Mr. Morton, "involved the apportioning of considerably more money for free entertainment features than the association has ever felt justified in laying out before. But the opportunity seemed to us so good, and the appreciation of the people of this territory has been made so plain to us, that we decided to forget expense and put on the big features. There will be twelve acts this year, and their quality speaks for itself to anyone who is familiar with the 'big names' in the world of amusements."

One of the headline attractions on the free platforms, according to the program as given out by Secretary Morton, will be the ten members of the Bam Zug troupe, natives of the great Arabian desert, whose acrobatic performances are as startling and entertaining as they are novel. The Bam

Zugs are widely commented upon as offering a show different from anything else in the whole range of acrobatics. Dolly Castle, whose name is known everywhere in the amusement world, will present as a special number throughout the week Rhoda's Military Elephants, which have been trained to the most remarkable and useful tricks. The animals of the herd have performed under Miss Castle's direction before the biggest American circus audiences, and one occasion before royalty in Europe.

A funny and yet artistic bit of pantomiming, in which grotesque combinations are produced, will be given by the Six Marvelous Comiques. The Four Royal Japanese Equilibrists will appear in balancing acts each day. A clever equine circus will be presented by Greer's group of high school horses and high jumpers, showing highly trained and intelligent horses at their beautiful best.

Midair adventures that are described by eastern papers as highly dangerous and sensational will be gone through in front of the grandstands by the Five Flying Fishers. A European novelty act will be offered by the Marie Rocko company, an extraordinary collection of acrobatic talent. An act notable for its altitude is that of the Tasma troupe, who are as completely at home on the far end of immensely long perpendicular poles and ladders as the ordinary lowan is on his back porch. The Three Rogals will give an exhibition of athletics, in all lines of which they excel. A classy knockabout act will be offered by Black and White, a widely known team of comedians.
