Farm Notes.

Issued by the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

WARNING AGAINST ASPHYXIATION

During the filling of the silo there is danger of death from asphyxiation by fumes of carbon dioxide, says the department of chemistry of the College of Agriculture. Large amounts of gas are produced in the silo and may collect in dangerous quantities if conditions become favorable. To avoid accumulations of gas, doors should be left open as long as possible. Men should not stay in the silo when the blower is not running; and, above all, they should not lie on the fresh silage. If work has been stopped for any length of time, men should not again enter the silo until the blower has been working a few minutes in order to remove the gases. In the case of the pit silo, men should never remain in it when the blower is not running; and the blower should also be running before anyone enters.

WAR BREADS

A new text book of "war breads" has just been issued by the Agricultural Extension Service to aid the housewife who is patriotically trying to conserve the wheat supply. This bulletin contains recipes for the use of whole wheat flour, oatmeal, rice, potatoes, rye flour, and corn meal in the making of yeast breads. The cost and food values of these substitutes are compared with the cost and food value of wheat bread. This bulletin, Emergency Bulletin No. 19, "Substitutes for White Flour in Bread Making," will be sent free upon application to the Extension Service, University Farm, Lincoln.

SUMMER DRAINAGE

The leaves on the corn may curl in the hot summer sun, don't give up the idea of draining your land if it really needs it at the season when there is an excess of moisture. The dry weather is just the time to haul the tile economically, for it will not be necessary to carry the tile very far, on account of soft wet spots. The corn may be suffering now for lack of moisture, proper drainage in the spring would have enabled the corn to develop a deeper root system earlier in the season. Hence, it would now have been better able to resist drouth, according to the agricultural engineering section of the Nebraska Experiment Station. Puddled soils, suitable only for roadbeds, and found in flat districts, may be changed to good farm soil by the magic of the drain tile.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

Utilization of the entire wheat berry in making flour is urged in Emergency Bulletin No. 18, "Whole Wheat Breads," just published by the agricultural extension service of the University of Nebraska. It points out that 27 per cent of the wheat berry is fed to live stock, as the mills utilize only 73 per cent in the making of patent white flour. The use of the hand gristmill in grinding whole wheat for family consumption is suggested in this bulletin. It will be sent free upon application to the Extension Service, College of Agriculture, University Farm.

HOME STORAGE OF VEGETABLES

The home gardener who is troubled with the problem of storing his surplus vegetables for winter use will find help in Emergency Bulletin No. 16, "Home Storage of Vegetables," recently published by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Nebraska. The storing of root crops, potatoes, onions, sweet potatoes, squashes, tomatoes, cabbages, and other garden products is described in this bulletin. It will be sent free upon application to the Extension Service, University Farm, Lincoln.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO CAN

If there is one woman in the state of Nebraska who does not know how to can corn, the Extension Service of the University of Nebraska wants to know it. If she is living near one of the 2,215 food conservation volunteers, she will receive personal instruction. If not, directions will be sent by mail. Address the Extension Service, College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

FARM PROFITS.

Do favorable or unfavorable climatic conditions determine them? Yes, but more often the proper application or misapplication of generally recognized farming principles evolved by successful farmers and breeders and the government experiment stations. Farmer and Breeder is a compendium of the best ideas and successful methods employed by successful farmers and breeders. It is issued semi-monthly at Sioux City, Ia., and deals with farming conditions as they are here found. Its subject matter is strong and appeals both to the farmer and stockman. You want to farm profitably—every intelligent farmer does. Farmer and Breeder will help you to do this and more, too.

Splendid Offer.

Special arrangements have been made which enable us to offer Farmer and Breeder and The Herald both for one year for only $1.00. Save money by letting us have your subscription now. Don't let our remarkable offer pass without taking advantage of it. Every subscriber to Farmer and Breeder is entitled to free consultation with its special service department on any branch of farming and stock raising.
