Nebraska the Home of the Big Type Hog

In the swine barns and around the judging arena at the Nebraska State Fair every fall, one will find the crowds large at all times, as the Nebraska hog is such a factor in the farmer's material prosperity that he is always an attractive show object.

During the week of September 3-7 the hog classes will share in the honors and awards to be made by competent and fair judges in recognition of their contribution towards Nebraska's wealth and prosperity.

FARM PROFITS.

Do favorable or unfavorable climatic conditions determine them? Yes, but more often the proper application or misapplication of generally recognized farming principles evolved by successful farmers and breeders and the government experiment stations. Farmer and Breeder is a compendium of the best ideas and successful methods employed by successful farmers and breeders. It is issued semi-monthly at Sioux City, Ia., and deals with farming conditions as they are here found. Its subject matter is strong and appeals both to the farmer and stockman. You want to farm profitably—every intelligent farmer does. Farmer and Breeder will help you to do this and more, too.

Splendid Offer.

Special arrangements have been made which enable us to offer Farmer and Breeder and The Herald both for one year for only $1.00. Save money by letting us have your subscription now. Don't let our remarkable offer pass without taking advantage of it. Every subscriber to Farmer and Breeder is entitled to free consultation with its special service department on any branch of farming and stock raising.

Lutheran Church Notes

DAKOTA CITY-SALEM
REV. C. R. LOWE.

The best part of a vacation is the getting home. There is little that is more wearing than visiting. It is largely because there is nothing to do but hold your hands and have a pleasant time. But the gilt edge of even that wears off. The harness, after it has been worn a long time becomes comfortable if it does not pall. The getting away is delightful, but the returning is full of joy. I wish we could all get away some time in the year.

The above brings us to a reflection upon the happiness of men. Happiness is a fleeting condition, depending upon conditions favorable to self. That it is transient is suggested by the fact that conditions pass away. We can hardly say we are yet happy because of the trip away from work and care. We were happy while with friends and relatives it is true, but we are there no more. That passed. However, we still retain something from the associations. There is something much deeper than the happiness, there is an abiding joy at the renewal of old ties of friendship and affection. It will remain a long time with us, part of it forever. This joy does not depend upon any outward circumstances. Some of these were truly bad enough. But we rejoice over our meeting. If there is no deeper emotion than just being happy yourself, it is soon gone, and the same old grind soon begins. When one cries to you over troubles and implores you to do something and you are wholly unable to do anything, you can't be happy then, but you can rejoice over the confidence and the concern, and the memory of it will be a pleasure. What we want to set forth here is the difference between happiness and joy, that the one is deeper and better than the other, and abides while the other passes away. Our meeting old friends at "Old Settlers" is a happiness while it lasts and a joy the whole year. We have joy and sorrow mixed but we cannot be happy and sorry at the same time.

If joy is abiding seek that which abides. We know the things of the world pass. They are pleasures for a season, every body knows it. When they are gone we are left with nothing. But if we lay hold on that which does not fade we will be forever enriched. The great thing to lay hold of is the future in Christ. All other things are not to be compared to this. A half hearted holiday will not give you great joy but a whole hearted holiday will. Ask any devout saint if he does not have joy in his Saviour the many things are against him.

The Salem Ladies' Aid which met at Mrs. Frank Leamer's last Wednesday was a most enjoyable affair. There were over a hundred present. A goodly number of ladies were present from Sioux City.

There will be preaching in the churches next Sunday, also at Homer.

Emmanuel's Ladies' Aid will not meet this month.

HUGE LIVE STOCK PARADE

March of Animals Worth Million to Follow Prize Awarding at Fair.

The fact that all stalls and pens for the entertainment of live stock have been rented already at the Woodland park grounds of the Interstate Live Stock Fair assures the fair management of the most comprehensive and aristocratic assembly of fine animals in the history of the exposition, according to the cheery statement of Secretary Joe Morton, of the fair association.

The fair, which will be held at Sioux City, September 16 to 22, inclusive, therefore already is certain of success in one of its primary and most important purposes—that of bringing together for the profit and pleasure of farming people the largest possible exhibit of fine horses, fine cattle, fine hogs, fine sheep and the various other domestic animals and poultry. The arduousness of the stock judging will naturally be increased by the huge entry list, but the fair management has arranged to take care of this with expedition and fairness. The planting of ribbons will be one of the crowning events of the annual show to the thousands of fair visitors who, it is recognized, are interested in stock.

As a natural result, also, of the full pens and stalls on the exhibition grounds, the annual parade of all premium winning animals will be bigger and more attractive than ever in the past. Custom has fixed for this procession the name, "Million Dollar Stock Parade," but it has become a question of late years whether an injustice is not done to the parade by so labeling it. The actual value of the animals that march past the grandstand throngs in this proud feature it would be hard to compute. Certainly, if it could be reached fairly and accurately, the total would be found to be astounding.

Taken in connection with the class of other fair attractions that are assured this year, Secretary Morton says he looks for the stock exhibit to bring through the turnstiles bigger crowds than Woodland has ever held.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Halls' Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Halls' Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. A. J. Druggists, Inc. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
