the Balance of Supply and Demand

When this nation entered the war, our entire telephone system was placed at the disposal of the government.

Unusual business activities incident to the war have further taxed our facilities.

The scarcity of materials for repairs and new construction is becoming a more serious problem for us with these increasing demands.

You can "do your bit" by making no unnecessary local or long distance calls.

Are You A Home Owner!

If not, Change this condition. Territory along Burlington Lines West affords many opportunities for the homebuilder and investor.

Western Nebraska and Northeastern Colorado excel in dairying, live stock and grain raising. Non-resident owners have many farms which they are unable to develop. Well-located farms, $25 to $50 per acre, with terms of payment not more burdensome than eastern rentals, bring independence to any industrious farmer.

Big Horn Basin irrigated land—near to beet sugar factories, oil refineries, coal mines and other natural resources—which grow immense crops of wheat, oats, alfalfa, sugar beets and potatoes, from $50 up.

Very Desirable 640-Acre Free Homesteads, in a large area, are yet available.

"HOME COMING DAY" AT NEBRASKA UNI.

Annual Gathering of Graduates is Scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 10, at Lincoln.

Saturday, November 10—the day of the Missouri-Nebraska football game—is "home coming" day for the graduates of the University of Nebraska. It is the appointed time for the alumni of the Cornhusker institution to round up at the "old school" in Lincoln to exchange handshakes, renew acquaintances, call back the memories of their college days and then trek to the football field to watch the Cornhuskers of 1917 smother the aspirations of the Missouri Tigers to win the Missouri Valley conference championship.

The "home coming" fashion first came into style at the state university upwards of a decade ago. Each succeeding year has seen it grow in popularity and the "grads" like it so well that they are showing up in increased numbers at each succeeding roundup of the former students of the university. The Nebraska-Kansas game was played on the day of the 1916 "home coming," but it is Nebraska's turn to go to Lawrence this fall, which explains the substitution of the Missouri game as the big attraction of the 1917 "home coming."

The growth of the University of Nebraska is one of the marvels of the west. Although every educational institution in America has reported a falling off in attendance this year, a condition due to the war with Kaiser Bill, the enrollment at Nebraska is almost up to the normal. The total for 1917 is well over the 4,000 mark, and when peace is declared and the young men Nebraska has contributed to the army return to their homes, the university enrollment is expected within five years to attain or surpass a 6,000 total. Students of less than thirty years ago can recall the elation in university circles when the roster of students crossed the 1,000 line, yet the state university of today at Lincoln is rated as one of the ten great institutions of higher learning in America.

The "grads" who have not kept in close touch with their alma mater during late years would find it worth while to visit Lincoln November 10 if for no other reason than to tread the old campus, see the new buildings, inform themselves of the plans for the enlargement of the campus and then marvel at the growth and the strides the "old school" has been making during the past decade.

And Cornhusker alumni might find a special reason for taking part in the "home coming" festivities of 1917. State university football profits are being donated to the American Red Cross and a large proportion of every dollar taken in at the gates on the occasion of the Nebraska-Missouri game November 10 will go to the war chest charity which now commands the interest and loyalty of every American citizen.

CORNHUSKERS VS. TIGERS

Annual Gridiron Battle Booked for "Home Coming" Day.

Missouri and Nebraska universities, which will compete in football Saturday, November 10, at Lincoln, are old-time foes in the game of the pigskin and the chalk-ribbed gridiron. Football was first introduced at the University of Nebraska twenty-seven years ago. Before the end of another year, the old Missouri Valley league, comprising the Universities of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, was formed and the competition for championship honors was waged as keenly as the struggles between Harvard, Princeton and Yale in the east—the cradle of the gridiron game.

Missouri and Nebraska were consistent contenders for the championship and the record reads that the Cornhusker institution generally was triumphant over the Tigers from old Missouri. The old four-cornered league disbanded nearly twenty years ago, but Nebraska and Missouri continued to compete until after the game of 1902, when they parted company in football and sought new foes. The last football game which Missouri won from Nebraska was staged during the season of 1899. The Missourians were trounced by Nebraska in 1900, 1901 and 1902—and then came the split. Relations were resumed in 1911 and for two years the Cornhuskers took the Tigers' measure. Then came another break and then a determination to renew the old competition, under an agreement which calls for the 1917 game to be played in Lincoln on Saturday, November 10, and the one of 1918 to be staged in Columbia. The agreement also provides that the two games are to be the "home coming" contests of the institutions.

Comparative performances for the football season to date indicate that the Cornhuskers have the edge on the Tigers. While the Cornhuskers were winning from Nebraska Wesleyan, Iowa and Notre Dame on the Lincoln gridiron, Missouri was losing to two opponents—the Kansas Aggies and the Ames Aggies. But defeats in other years have not been permitted to depress the Missourians. The Tigers lost their 1916 game to the Kansas Aggies by a score of 7 to 6, but came on with a rush during the lag end of the campaign and developed so much of the Missouri fighting spirit that they took the measure of Kansas university on Thanksgiving day, winning quite decisively in spite of the fact that Kansas had previously won from Nebraska.

Another "come back" on the part of Missouri is not unlikely in 1917 and Cornhusker adherents who may have been disposed to rate the Tigers as "easy" opponents may be compelled to revise their predictions. So it is that the Nebraska football squad is looking forward to one of its most strenuous gridiron battles of the season when the Missouri Tigers invade Lincoln, November 10, to face the Huskers and make their bid for the 1917 championship of the Missouri Valley conference.

American Telephone Men
Build System in France

An American telephone system, built by the American telephone men, with American wire, American switchboards, American instruments and operated by Americans, has just been completed in France. The lines connect General Pershing's headquarters with all the encampments and training quarters of the American forces. Everything used except the poles came from the United States.

Two battalions of the army men who built the first American telephone system on French soil were former employees of the Bell Telephone System. About 2,500 other former Bell employees are already in France with the army signal corps, or in mobilization camps awaiting orders to embark.

"It is a great treat for the officers to be able to talk through an American instrument instead of the types used on the continent," says a press report.

Officers using the new army telephone system in France are not the first of the American forces to find relief in up-to-date lines such as they had at home. In France the government owns and operates the telephone systems, and an army officer must wait his turn like the others even in time of war. In the United States, where the telephone systems are privately owned, military requests for telephone service have only to be made to be immediately complied with. In the United States, government telephone calls have been given precedence over all others since the war began.

According to a press dispatch, when the first of the Americans expeditionary forces reached a French port, an American general expressed a wish to report to General Pershing, who was in Paris. He was conducted to the port postoffice where the long distance lines of the government telephone system converge.

"Number 23, if you please, sir," the telephone operator said to officer when he gave her his call for General Pershing.

"Twenty-three?" returned the General in astonishment. "What does that mean?"

"Twenty-three calls before you, Monsieur le General. Your turn will come in about four hours—"

"Cancel the call," ordered the General, at the same time calling his Chief of Staff.

"String up four telephone wires between here and Paris and start work at once. Use the poles of the French system."

The telephone men of the American Army were at work in five minutes. In ten, the General was surrounded by a veritable hierarchy of French government telephone officials, large and small each excitedly expostulating.

The French officials protested, and they argued. "A commission must decide, permission must be obtained, an authorization was necessary," they said. All was to no avail. While they talked the American soldiers kept on stringing wire. The line went through and is now in use.

Catarrah Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrah deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrh Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running ear, which is not perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflamed portion be removed and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh Deafness that can be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. 73c.
