

SHEEP

G. W. Hervey
Pioneer Sheep Man,
Editor Sheep Dept.,
Twentieth Century
Farmer.

The pure-bred sheep industry in the Missouri Valley is coming forward in grand strides, due to high prices prevailing, and, in part, to the excellent work the Twentieth Century Farmer has done and is doing along this line. This has only been possible by having such a man as G. W. Hervey on the editorial staff.

Mr. Hervey is very popular among sheep breeders and is considered one of the best posted men on this subject in the middle west. He was born and raised on a sheep farm and his actual experience in breeding and feeding pure-bred sheep extends over a period of more than twenty-five years. To Mr. Hervey belongs the honor of being one of the first men, if not the first, to ship a car load of pure-bred registered sheep into the state of Nebraska. Although not now actively engaged in the breeding and feeding business his articles in the Twentieth Century Farmer are of great value to the farmers of Omaha's Trade territory. These articles and his knowledge of sheep have been a big factor in the growing success of the pure-bred sheep industry in this territory.

The Twentieth Century Farmer is proud of the fact that Mr. Hervey has been connected with its publication for more than twelve years, in which time he has secured the absolute confidence of the thousands of readers of this work from his pen. His word on sheep leaves no room for criticism.

Make your farm and your knowledge of sheep more valuable by reading Mr. Hervey's articles in the

Lutheran Church Notes

DAKOTA CITY-SALEM
REV. C. R. LOWE.

Next Sunday we are going to make an offering for starving Syrians, the people who live in the Holy Land. The pastor has taken the initiative upon himself in this matter. The appeal has come to us from the Syrian Relief committee and from our own Publication Board and we will come through with an offering.

No copies of the minutes of the Synod have come to us yet for some reason, and we have written to the secretary to find out if we cannot have our share.

The cold weather is rather hard on our church services. It is not desirable to have a team stand out and it is a bit freezing for the cars to stand or even to go. So we adjust ourselves to conditions and hope for element weather with patience.

There will be preaching at Homer next Sunday if nothing prevents.

Walking isn't crowded these cold Sunday mornings. Nor are you likely to be hit by an automobile and hurried into "kingdom come."

A good walk, of three miles and a half is conducive to a good spirit for preaching. And it isn't bad. So long as your pleasure is at the other end of the walk isn't unpleasant. When the pastor was a boy he used to walk as far to skate on a snowcovered creek, skate all day without dinner and walk home and declare we had a good time. But tastes change as years come. We probably wouldn't have walked as far to church then without complaint, and wouldn't skate on such ice if it were at our door now.

We will always find it true that the more we sacrifice for a thing the more we will enjoy the thing and it is especially true in spiritual and godly things. The reason we do not enjoy our privileges more than we do is because they come so easy to us. Would you walk from here to Washington for a copy of the bible? No. And yet a number of Indians did that very thing to get a copy for their tribe. If we didn't have any copies we probably would, but as they are on every hand we can read them when we will, and postpone the matter indefinitely. Jesus says, "If a man lose his life he shall save it," and a bit of sacrifice on our part is but a part of this process of losing. He did not mean the literal losing of life in all instances, but that we should not keep our life for our own pleasures, though some are called on to give it up literally. Many a saint has found his chiefest joy in his martyrdom for Christ, and we can find some in making a serious effort toward godliness. Try it and see. Experiment with your religion as well as with crops or stock.
