We wish for our successors as much pleasure and profit in the service in this community as we have had. We wish further to thank the patrons of the school for their cooperation without which our effort would have been in vain. Further thanks is due our school board which has stood faithfully and conscientiously back of the teachers and the community in the effort to have a good school.

It was purchased a few years ago by Frank Krueger and fitted up for a brewery, and about that time the "dry" wave came and it was never used for that purpose.

Lutheran Church Notes

DAKOTA CITY-SALEM

REV. C. R. LOWE.

Despite the fact that the day started in with a drizzle it was not an unpleasant day and there was a good congregation at Salem in the morning. We are somewhat tardy as a rule owing to the newfangled time. The features of the service were the confirmation of our catechumens, to whom the pastor gave a short address concerning their new and larger relation to the church, the reception of members, and the communion service. The confirmed are, Vera Beerman, Edith Bridenbaugh, Loraine Ostmeier, Harold Armour, Ollie Bartels, Everett Blessing, Celia Bobier. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bridenbaugh came to us by renewal and their two sons, John and Earnest, by letter from Uplands, Cal., Presbyterian church.

There is not a better thing a man can do than establish and maintain a proper relation to the church. He aligns himself with the best there is in the world and has a place he can call his own. A vital faith establishes a vital relation to the church. There is a good deal to be done in the exercise of faith by those coming into the church, but there is much to be done for them by those who have been in the church for a long time. These are to be welcomed and encouraged by the membership and made to feel they are a part of the congregation, they are to be taught many things by very kindly direction in their christian life. It will not hurt any of us to speak a word of appreciation to them and show it by our attitude.

That is helping to maintain the unity of the faith. It will help to keep them true to their profession because they are made to feel they are wanted in the church. The older members of the church should give diligence to do this. In your planning of work give them a place and consideration. The young people can do much to help if they are given a chance. If they are crowded back they are scarcely to be blamed if they do not develop into active workers early. Our church relations are to be mutually helped.

The ladies of the Church of the Redeemer asked the pastor to carry to the Salem and St. John's churches their very kindest appreciation for the offering to the building fund of $21.28. This church has bought from the Methodists a nice building amply large for some time to come. It is of concrete stone, has a large anti room suitable for Sunday school and entry. There is a fine large basement under the whole building. It cost $75,000. The church extension board has taken $5,000 of this and the mission has undertaken to raise $2,500 by the first of June. The Methodist congregation considered the building was too small for them and that they would build. The property is cheap at the price paid, and in a substantial residence section about ten blocks from Fort Omaha. The mission is certainly to be congratulated on securing such a building. Also upon having a pastor who is old enough and stable not to lead the mission into grievous ways which is the experience with so many missions.

The preaching service and communion at Emmanuel was held at 6:30 last Sunday evening in order that our people could attend the class sermon and by the way it was the largest congregation we have had for some time.

There will be preaching and communion service at Homer next Sunday, if nothing prevents or disarranges.
