NEBRASKA

— is our state. Its present constitution was written in 1875, but during the forty-four years that have elapsed the state has developed to a degree that demands a new and revised constitution.

¶ All statutes, all laws are based upon the constitution. Hence the necessity of having a broad document. That will be possible only if broad men sit in the convention; men who are actuated by patriotic intelligence rather than class prejudice.

¶ Farmers and bankers, doctors and lawyers, preachers and teachers, carpenters and merchants, newspapermen and capitalists—intelligent men from every walk of life should be represented in the convention.

¶ Out from the hate, the strife and the strain of the war period a NEW NEBRASKA is emerging. If you want to have a part in this forward campaign fill out the attached coupon. Hand it to your editor or mail it.

I enclose $1.00 for membership in the NEW NEBRASKA FEDERATION, with the understanding that all fees paid in shall be publicly accounted for and shall be used for publicity that will appeal for a broad constitution and a better state.

peal of the war-time prohibition. They received a personal response from both Norris and Evans, pledging their opposition to the repeal. Senator Hitchcock's private secretary wired that he would refer the matter to the senator some day when he had time, or words to that effect. If ever a state was misrepresented in congress it is Nebraska, by that man Hitchcock. However, he made a rattling good representative of the kaiser during the early years of the war, and is the "king bee" of the booze lobby in Washington at the present time. But as a representative of the people of the state he is a Benedict Arnold. Of course we do not want to insinuate the ability and willingness of the kaiser and booze combine to out bid the state has had anything to do with his attitude. It is just the peculiar makeup of the man but it is a darned funny makeup, and we are of the opinion that he ought to be made over. Such men are as dangerous to society as an I. W. W., or a bolshevist agitator.

Wayne Herald: Brown Palmer of the Hubbard vicinity, was in Wayne Tuesday between trains. He used to farm near Wayne. Announcement of the marriage of William Harvey Neely and Miss Gladys Gertrude Orr was made at two social functions on Saturday of last week. The first was at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when Mr. and Mrs. Neely entertained about twenty friends at dinner at the Martin hotel in Sioux City, where place cards announced their marriage on February 1st, last. In the evening, about fifty invited friends and relatives assembled at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Eva L. Orr, in South Sioux City, where further announcement was made of the happy February event through announcements served with the refreshments. The wedding ceremony was performed at Brunswick, Neb., by Rev. F. J. Aucock, a former Methodist minister of Dakota City, now located at Brunswick, and a personal friend of the bride. Mrs. Orr-Neely is one of Dakota county's accomplished and cultured young ladies. She was born and raised in that community. She is a graduate of the Wayne State Normal and for the past year was a teacher in the South Sioux City schools. Mr. Neely is a life-long citizen of the Wakefield-Wayne locality, and is a young man full of promise. The young couple start out in life with well wishes of a host of friends, and prospects of a happy and successful career. They will make their home in Wayne.

Emerson Enterprise: Hazel Hansen spent the week end visiting with Anna Blanche Evans at Acrona. Mrs. M. McEntaffer and Wava June went to Carroll Saturday for a visit with relatives. Mrs. C. F. Rockwell and daughters went to Homer Friday morning for a few days' visit with Mrs. Rockwell's mother. Joe Smith is mail carrier on one of the rural routes and his patrons are much pleased at the prospect of regular mail service in the future. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hileman of Julesburg, Col., who have been visiting in Dakota City and Homer, stopped over night here with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John Watson. Miss Kathleen Ryan and Mrs. Will Heenan, of Jackson, who came over for the festivities on Sunday, were detained by the storm and stayed over with their friend, Mrs. Nellie Crahan. Mrs. E. J. Carabine, of St. Albans, Vt., who has been visiting her brother, J. L. Davis and family, left Monday. The Carabines lived here thirty years ago, but have been gone for many years. Mr. and Mrs. J. McEntaffer of Ft. Morgan, Col., started Saturday morning on their return auto trip. They were delayed here a week by the rain and if they had not started Saturday they would have been detained longer, as the rains continued Saturday night and since.

Iceless Refrigerator Advocated.
In homes without ice the iceless refrigerator can be used with a high degree of success, according to Nebraska Extension Service house equipment circular No. 3. The refrigerator can be made by most any boy, and consists of a wooden frame covered with screen and cotton flannel, burlap or heavy duck. This type of refrigerator is extensively used on homesteads and ranches in the west and southwest and gives very good satisfaction. The circular, which gives full directions for making the refrigerator, may be obtained by writing the Extension Service, College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

struggle, and as to the enemy, there need be nothing said, the world knows their heart. The affairs of the world are not run by the might or wisdom of men. "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord." God can and does confound the councils of men, and the best laid plans go wrong. The arts and sciences on which we lay such great store are but little in God's sight. Egypt, Ninevah, Babylon, where are they? More glorious in their day than anything we know, and richer. They are the dwelling place of jackals and the nest of place of owls. Egypt just now is clamoring for independence, but the word of God is that they shall never be a nation among the nations for ever and ever.

The pride of our finery and pleasures can be swept away in a short time. Indeed there are symptoms of it now in the general unrest of the world. A generation is not a long time, and it can take place in much less than that. God has carried nations away by their enemies, some have been humbled before our eyes, and the matter is not yet done. Austria, proud and lordly, has been humbled, and almost destroyed, and there is no nation that can make themselves immune. The nation that forgets God shall be cast into hell, and while we do not like to think of such like the word stands good for our country as much as it does for the rest. A man's prosperity can be a curse to him, indeed it is a powerful influence to steal his heart away from God. The same is true of the nations. What a prosperous people we are, and therefore in what a great danger we are.

We go on the assumption that the way to prosper is to labor with wisdom and diligence, that is part of it, but the other part of it is the blessing of God on the labors. Last Sunday we saw men plowing in the fields and dragging roads. We know the fields need to be plowed and the roads surely need dragging, but God's day is not the day to do it. God can and does bring the work of the wicked to naught, and the corn plowed on Sunday will not bring any greater harvest than if it had gone till the next day, and it would not be a strange thing if it did not bring as much. When God put the curse on men for the sin of the first parents, he put also a curse on the ground, that it should bring forth weeds and thistles and also that the earth should not yield her increase. The way to begin to fill up the barns and the pens of stock is to live in the fear of God. We sometimes wonder that men are blessed as they are. We cannot go on disregarding the voice of God. Ask Israel of their history and get your answer. When we see the disregard of men for what is right, their seeking after pleasures and wickedness, some increasingly rich and some without what is necessary and making but little effort in the wisdom of this world to get what is necessary, loving rather "direct action" we can sometimes feel that there is to be an end to our good times, and we shall come upon hard times again, such as many of the living now remember. It is not our spirit to be a crapphanger, but just the same people do not take God into their account, and for that they must pay the price, inevitably.

Easy to Trap Flies.
One of the most effective methods of getting rid of flies is the fly trap. It consists of a square frame work covered with screen, with a pyramid bottom through which the flies enter. The trap is very effective and almost bushels of flies can be caught in a summer. Full directions for making the trap are given in Extension house equipment circular No. 7, which may be obtained by writing the Extension Service, College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

Safeguarding Securities

After a person has exercised especial caution and care to invest in securities of known value and dependability. Consistency demands that they be protected from the ever-present hazards of fire, theft or misplacement. This is best accomplished by renting a box in this Institution's safety deposit safe. Call at your convenience and examine our equipment.

The inclement weather interfered with the meetings scheduled for the past week. The work which was to have been discussed was on the "Drying of Vegetables." This is one way to help save all that we grow. The drying is not taken up with the view of displacing the canning of vegetables but many vegetables that are difficult to keep by canning may be easily dried and when cooked have a very pleasing taste. Anyone interested in this work may see a very convenient drier in the office.

POULTRY HINTS
Don't forget the growing chicks need fresh water now quite often, clean fresh water and keep it in the shade. You know how you feel in the summer when thirsty, of course you demand ice water, but the chicks will be satisfied if it is reasonably fresh and clean.

It might be well to look into the question of ventilation for the chicks now that they are getting along in size. Too many in a house that is not properly ventilated is very disastrous and will do a vast amount of harm. It is like putting too many in a room to sleep and shutting down the windows. Be very careful.

FIGHTING CHICKEN LICE

(From Farm Bureau News)
For all poultry lice, it has been found that nothing is better than sodium fluoride. This comes in two forms known as chemically pure, which is in crystals or small lumps, and the commercial, which is powdered. Either form is effective, but the latter is easier to apply. The price varies from 30 to 60 cents per pound.

In treating with sodium fluoride, the dusting or pinch methods will likely be the ones employed. This may be done by placing the powder into a shaker and, while a second person ruffles the feathers, the insecticide is dusted on. The pinch method is widely used and is perfectly effective. This is done by placing one pinch on the head, one on the neck, two on the back, one on the breast, one below the vent, one on the tail, one on either thigh, and one scattered on the underside of each wing when spread out. Each pinch should be scattered somewhat.

On real warm days the fowls may be dipped, using a solution of one ounce of the commercial or two thirds ounce of the chemically pure sodium fluoride to each gallon of water. Hold the wings over the back and plunge the bird in up to her head. Hold her there for half to three-fourths of a minute with one hand, while with the other ruff the feathers. The head is then ducked once or twice and the fowl removed. Sodium fluoride is very destructive to lice without producing any ill effects to even young chickens. Sodium fluoride solutions should not be left over night in galvanized vessels, as it may injure them. One pound of the commercial form by the pinch method will treat 100 hens. By the dust method twice this amount will be used. The dipping method uses less of the material than either of the other two where a large number of fowls are treated. If only a few are to be dipped this method may be the most expensive.

Septic Tanks Meet With Favor.

University extension engineers recommend the septic tank as the best means of farm home sewage disposal. The only exception is where a good stream of running water is available. Septic tanks need not be expensive, nor are they difficult of construction. Scores of farmers are building modern homes this summer and the majority of them favor the septic tank. The University Agricultural Engineering department furnishes blueprints of disposal systems for the asking.
