Wayside Notes in Sioux City Journal, 11: At the historic old city of Yankton, dwells Capt. Giesler, steamboater, and pontoon bridge builder and conductor. Giesler knows the fickle old Muddy like a book, and from time to time interprets its whims and caprices for the scribe, Arthur Westhorpe, who sets them down in ray English to delight the hearts of readers. Giesler is about the only living man who dares to look the Missouri straight in the eye, or who dares to grapple with it when it is like an angry bull. His mind is rich with tales of other days along the vast stream, when swearing river captains and pilots were thicker than they are now. When its ice groans in springtime, he can explain the meaning of the sound, and he can tell by the morning capers of the sand on the bars how the wind is most likely to conduct itself. In summer, after the breakup, Giesler mans a steam ferry to carry Nebraskans Dakotawards and Dakotans Nebraskawards. This is a useful service, and from it Giesler wins his deserved bread and butter. Sometimes owing to the everchanging habits of the channel, Giesler gives his passengers quite extended excursions before he lands them at the desired port. When the spring floods break loose, Giesler smokes his corncob pipe, or cigar, and has a short vacation, but not always, for sometimes the smash-up is as sudden, almost, as a clap of thunder from a clear sky, and the captain must drag his pontoon from the snarling crystal teeth or it will be carried on the rushing tides to the awaiting gulf. Capt. Giesler is known far and wide, for many travelers have, at one time or another, been his temporary guests, teasing themselves and their loved ones to his care, when old Muddy would claim them in a twinkling.

Heikes, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Munsinger of Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Poole of Crofton; Mrs. Earl Sides, Miss Doris Heikes and Harry Aughey, all of Dakota City; Rev. and Mrs. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sheehan. Purebred Dairy Sires. Every dairy herd, regardless of its quality or breeding, should have a good purebred dairy bull at its head, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This applies to all scrub and grade herds as well as to herds of better breeding. The daughters of a scrub cow and a good purebred dairy sire are only grades, but often their production records are double the records of their dams. If these daughters are then bred to first-class purebred dairy bulls of the same breed, the granddaughters may become high grades of large production. In this way each generation may climb to high and still higher levels.

Farm Bureau Field Notes

C. R. Young, County Agent

Each week brings several enquiries relative to who shall have their cows tested for tuberculosis in conformity with the new state dairy law. To assist the many who may desire information on this subject I am giving herewith two paragraphs of a letter from Secretary Leo Stuhr of the state department of agriculture:

"A new dairy law was passed at the last session of the Legislature and became effective July 18, 1919. One of the provisions of this law requires dealers in milk and cream to obtain an annual license from the department of agriculture in all cases where the product, in whole or in part, is sold to be consumed as milk or cream, when produced from a herd consisting of more than five cows. Those who sell milk or cream which is the product of a herd of five cows or less, and those who sell milk and cream produced from any number of cows when the entire product is sold for manufacturing purposes exclusively, are exempted from this provision. The fee for this license is one dollar ($1.00) and all licenses expire on July 1st of each year."

"The law also provides that no milk shall be sold which has been taken (a) from any animal having any disease or sickness, (b) from any animal which has not been examined by a duly licensed veterinarian, and certified by him to be free from disease, within not to exceed one year previously. Milk which has been taken from any animal which has not been examined by a licensed veterinarian, must be pasteurized before it is offered for sale. This latter provision applies to the sale of milk and cream regardless of the size of the herd from which it is produced, whenever the product is sold to be consumed as milk and cream."

February 1st, 1920, has been set as the date when all cows coming under this law must be tested. It will greatly reduce the cost of doing the work if a number of men will bunch their cows on one farm.

Did you read last week's article by P. K. Wheelpton, in the Nebraska Farmer, on taking farm inventories when keeping records for income taxes? This article shows the advantages of so doing and shows that they are lawful. If you have not read it, do so. It may mean dollars.

The Nebraska Experiment Station offers for sale a small quantity of Nebraska No. 21 seed oats for sale. This is an improved strain of the Kherson oats which gave splendid results in this county last year. We can also secure for those desiring a start in this valuable variety, seed grown in this county last year.

Why not spend a few days at the State University during the week of Organized Agriculture in Lincoln January 19 to 24? This will be the greatest series of meetings held in Lincoln this year. It includes sessions of interest to all lines of agriculture. The State Farm Bureau Association meetings will be held January 22 and 23. This should be attended by a large number of Dakota county farmers. Write C. W. Pugsley, secretary, Lincoln, Neb., for programs.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

INSIST ON GENUINE FORD PARTS

Imitation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail order houses, down-town stores and garages to the unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. They are not genuine Ford parts. They are made by concerns who have no connection whatever with the Ford Motor Company. Tests have shown them to break when the genuine Ford parts didn't even bend.

The Authorized Ford Dealers are your protection. As such, we handle nothing but the Genuine Ford parts. They are made from the famous Ford Vanadium Steel, and each part—according to its use—is heat-treated in the way that will give it the longest wearing qualities.

Our Ford garage and Ford mechanics are at your service at all times. Drive in when replacements or repairs for your Ford car may be necessary. Save your car and also save your money.
