Sioux City Journal, 20: Willis M. Pritchard, county auditor, and P. J. Brechtel, Liberty township assessor, went to Dakota City yesterday to make assessments on the personal property on about 4,000 acres of Iowa land which lies in Nebraska. The Iowa land lies about fifteen miles south of Dakota City and between the east boundary of Omaha creek and the Missouri river. It was placed there by the Missouri river, and was taken from the Iowa side. It has been steadily deposited on the Nebraska side of the river for the past fifteen years, and the supreme court has held that the old river bed is the boundary line. This decision places a part of the Missouri river within the state of Iowa, and gives Woodbury county about 4,000 acres of land in Nebraska. The land was identified after it had been transposed by trees and land marks. Frank Malby, A. W. Wycoff, John H. Scott, and W. W. Stevens, all of Sioux City, were among the owners of the land. The assessed valuation of the land has been placed at $10 to $50 an acre, according to its condition. Prior to 1917 it was assessed at $1 an acre.

Sioux City Journal, 1: Ward R. Evans, attorney, and promoter of the free bridge project between Sioux City and Nebraska, yesterday outlined his plans for the purchase of the Combination bridge from Swift & Co. in a letter to the city council. Mr. Evans asks that the city begin at once to take steps in purchasing the bridge, and declares if the proposition is submitted to the people it will carry by a large majority. His letter, in part, follows: "The Swift ownership and control of the Combination bridge I have laid before the attorney general and the department of justice. I firmly believe that within a year's time the Swift interests will be obliged to dispose or pretend to dispose of its majority holdings in this concern. Now is the time for the city to act, if it ever intends to act, before the bridge company carries through some plan of pretended organization or sale. Under chapter 140, page 161, session laws of the Thirty-seventh general assembly of the state of Iowa, Sioux City has ample power to purchase and operate the Combination bridge. Under the section in question cities are vested with the power to purchase highway or combination bridges across navigable boundary streams. This is effected by the city council passing a resolution declaring its wish that the city purchase the bridge. If the council and the bridge owners can agree on the value of the bridge, then the amount of tax paid over by the city in the original construction of the bridge is deducted therefrom, and the remainder shall be the purchase price. In the event that a purchase price cannot be agreed upon, appraisers are named and the bridge is appraised at its real value. The question shall then be submitted to the people together with the proposed tax levy to pay the purchase price and the said proposition must carry by a majority vote. In the event of purchase the city is given ample power to operate the same as a free bridge, or charge enough toll to maintain the same, and to create a sinking fund to cover the purchase price. I believe the council, without delay, should pass the resolution contemplated by statute and follow the matter. I believe if the purchase proposition is presented to the public at a fair value for both public and bridge owners, allowing for the fact that Dakota county will be ready to contribute to the purchase, that it will carry by a large majority. I own no property in Dakota county, and what fees I have received in this matter would not begin to compensate me for the work I have done. I shall be glad to take the matter up with members of the city council at any time."

The Nebraska Home Economics association which was held in Lincoln during the week of January 19, was an inspiration to all attending. The meetings were all well attended and it is regretted that every homemaker cannot attend these meetings.

Prof. Grunmann's address on "Art and the Home" received many favorable comments. This speaker said that the farmers have not had their share in this world's comforts which comes from various lines of art but that this is changing for the better through agricultural movements. "Men rushing from the farm to the city will lead to a crisis, and that such a movement can be stopped by making farm homes more attractive," said Prof. Grunmann. He paid a tribute to the women in the statement that homes have been made through the efforts of American women.

Governor S. R. McKelvie in an address urged the women to support the economy campaign which is being launched to reduce the high cost of living. He said that it was his belief that the cause of high prices was the shortage of supplies, but that this could be remedied.

The association closed with the business meeting at which time Mrs. J. T. Graham was elected president of the State Homemakers association. The following is from the Nebraska State Journal.

NEW HEAD FOR HOMEMAKERS.
Mrs. Graham, long a member, is elected to the presidency. An error was made in announcing the election of the new president for the Nebraska Homemakers association at its annual meeting Thursday. The new president for this association is Mrs. J. T. Graham of Dakota county.

Mrs. Graham has long been a worker in the Homemakers association. When this association united with the family type of farm bureau, Mrs. Graham became vice president for Dakota county and at the annual State meeting of the Homemakers association was elected to the presidency. The Homemakers association co-operates with the Nebraska Home Economics association and has a day on the annual program of that association during the week of organized agriculture.

It is said that the first pound of hard cheese made in Nebraska was made in Mrs. Graham's home at a meeting of the Homemakers association.

Farm Bureau Field Notes

C. R. Young, County Agent

On January 23rd, at the State Farm Bureau meeting, the Nebraska association through its County Farm Bureau representatives voted to join the American Federation of Farm Bureaus. The movement also embodies the strengthening of our State association by having a paid secretary and sufficient funds with which to do effective work. This meant that a considerable quantity of money had to be raised, and that a membership campaign of the organized counties would have to be conducted. To many of the delegates present, this seemed impossible.

At this point in the meeting, Mr. J. R. Howard, president of the American Federation, made his address. Mr. Howard told of the organization meeting in Chicago last November when thirty-three states representing every section of the union met to discuss plans for uniting. He told of the wonderful unity which existed among the delegates, for so widely a gathered meeting, with its widely varied interests; and how men, will take a stand for the basic things vital to agriculture united to take up the farmers' National problems. This organization was not to be made permanent until next March, and then unless ten states had ratified its constitution. Nebraska was the fourteenth state, and others were, as fast as they hold their annual meetings. It was to Mr. Howard and other members of the American Federation, as much as any other source, that we owe the debt for the final repealing of our so-called "Day Light Saving Law." Mr. F. C. Crocker, president of the Nebraska association, was a delegate to Washington to help bring the necessary pressure to bear.

In Mr. Howard's talk he told how Iowans had just come out of her campaign with a membership of about 125,000 farmers, each paying a life membership of $5.00 a year into the state associations. That in addition to this they had made a voluntary offering of $200,000.00. Illinois is the only other state up to this time that has put on a membership campaign. Their success has been equal to that of Iowa. Kansas and Minnesota are laying plans for their campaign.

Mr. Howard explained that while $5.00 a year might seem high to some men yet as compared with the dues of other societies, it was small. He cited the labor unions with nothing but their wages to protect. Iowa coal miners, for instance, pay an annual membership of $10.00 and $1.25 monthly dues. Making a total of $25.00 per year. Many others run much higher. The success of these states and the great need of such an organization showed the way clear to this state. Apparently no one left the meeting without feeling that Nebraska should get into the movement.

To assist farmers in getting a start in this valuable strain of oats, the State University offers for sale a small quantity of Nebraska No. 21 seed oats at $1.00 per bushel. This is an improved strain of the Kherson oat. Samples gotten through the department last year and raised in this county yielded from 8 to 19 bushels more per acre than the oats regularly sown on the farms when they were tried. Not only did they measure more per acre but were also heavier. The oats are white, early, thin hulled, with rather short straw. We will be glad to assist any one in getting a start in these oats.

M. E. Church Notes

Rev. S. A. Draiss, Pastor

Altho many of the ought-to-be regulars were otherwise occupied last Sunday, some were sick, we had a splendid session of the Sunday school and two public services. There are a few folks who had a perfect record of absence last year, now finding their opportunity in the evening service, and they are glad to use it. When about 40 others begin to do the same it will begin to seem like Sunday in Dakota City. We talk about the past interest in church and some conclude that the good old days are gone on a long journey. Who can guess the real secret? Some put the blame on Henry Ford, some say it is the Kaiser, others think it is the government, and there is one man who says it is the price of sugar, folks have soured. All wrong—Did you say your prayers today? What did you ask for?

News from the district say "Reveries are on in many churches already", from ten to ninety conversions in several towns no larger than this. Take courage, come on with the praying. Dig around your faith. Come to Church next Sunday.

INSIST ON GENUINE FORD PARTS

Imitation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail order houses, down-town stores and garages to the unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. They are not genuine Ford parts. They are made by concerns who have no connection whatever with the Ford Motor Company. Tests have shown them to break when the genuine Ford parts didn't even bend.

The Authorized Ford Dealers are your protection. As such, we handle nothing but the Genuine Ford parts. They are made from the famous Ford Vanadium Steel, and each part—according to its use—is heat-treated in the way that will give it the longest wearing qualities.

Our Ford garage and Ford mechanics are at your service at all times. Drive in when replacements or repairs for your Ford car may be necessary. Save your car and also save your money.
