Harvey Beardshear and Miss Mary Nelsen were married in Sioux City Saturday. They were both born and raised to young man and womanhood near Homer, and their many friends wish them all happiness in their future married life. We understand they will farm one of Walter Smith's farms near Walthill this year.

Yes, there are some bad boys in Homer, and they do break the law, but are we doing anything to make them better? Why not organize the Boy Scouts and give them something to think of besides mischief. We think there is something good in every one of those boys if we only try to find it. But say! How about Dad, is he perfect? Is not the dad breaking the law every day and every night in Homer? Better send a few of them to the reform school. I am not upholding the boys, but I think the reform better begin with the grown-ups.

The postoffice inspector was a Homer visitor Monday.

The bride wore a strictly tailored suit with hat to match. The bridesmaid wore a suit of blue tricotine with hat to match. Immediately after the ceremony a three course wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to the immediate relatives of both families. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Nelson will make their home in Jackson. Their many friends wish them much success in their wedded life.

Lutheran Church Notes
By Rev. C. R. Lowe.

The young folks will meet for their prayer next Friday night at the home of Mr. C. K. Lee, 1st ann.

The communion service was lightly attended on account of the severe cold weather, but those of us there enjoyed the day.

The communion service was well attended by the choir. Miss Vera Beermann was at the piano. The service is so new to the congregation they were not able to follow it in the books, but it will not be long till we will be as familiar with the new one as with the old one. Until we secure a hymn board the pastor will announce early the place where the introtit is found, and the congregation will spend a few moments in finding the places rather in whispering and visiting. When we come into the church for worship we ought to have always a demeanor worthy of the worship, remember we stand in the presence of God, and he still that He may speak to us. In that way we at least can get ready to hear the gospel, and get a greater benefit from it. We are so full of ourselves so often that we do not have time to wait before God for Him to speak to us. God seldom speaks to a man when he is busy and joyfully engaged in a work where his mind is all taken up with what he has in hand. If you want to commune with God you will have to be still and wait for Him to speak. You do not expect to be interrupted by a friend when you are in the midst of your conversation. Why, then, should we expect God to break into what we have to say, for when you are busy, you do not appreciate being interrupted by an agent or other person, then why shall we presume God will break in on us boldly and tear us away from what we are doing? He will not. We have to wait on Him. Time is not so short that we cannot afford to wait on God once in a while for a little while. And then if we fill our mind with other things we do not give Him a chance to speak. If we have our own notions about things of the Kingdom, how will we be set right if we will not hear. Cornelius in the S. S. lesson got a vision from God when he was at prayer, but God did not tell him what he wanted to know, he simply directed the man to send for the prophet or preacher that he might be instructed fully. So it may be with you. Call your pastor as you call on the Agricultural Agent.

Are you receiving the benefit from the church you ought to or would like to? When a merchant has bills standing out, he sends statements to his debtors. What are you doing to receive from the church what ought to be received by you. You will have to make an effort to collect. What I mean is that you will have to connect with the Lord, and with the preaching of the gospel if you will be benefitted. The word may be read and preached but if you are not there you will not be edified. It may be raining hard, and you are thirsty, but if you are in a dry and desert land, you will be thirsty in spite of the rain. The sensible thing to do for spiritual refreshment is to put yourself in the way of it and see what will happen.

President E. E. Stamper D.D., has written us that Midland College has passed the 400 mark in enrollment already this year. This is about twice as large as Midland ever was. This makes Midland about the same size as Morningside. He has promised to spend a Sunday with us in the near future.

Many Study Power Farming

March 15 is the last date on which men may register for the power farming short courses of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture. More than 500 men have either completed these courses or are now taking them, since they were started last October. The courses are four weeks long, and consist of training in the operation and repair of tractors, trucks, and automobiles, and a course in the farm shop, or blacksmithing and carpentering. Registration may be made any Monday at the University Farm, up to and including Monday, March 15.

How to Control Sheep Diseases

The rapid increase in sheep raising in Nebraska has brought with it a demand for more information, especially about sheep diseases. United States Department of Agriculture farmers' bulletin 713 deals with sheep scab, one of the oldest, most contagious and most injurious diseases affecting sheep. If not curbed soon after it is introduced into a flock of sheep it spreads with great rapidity and does serious damage. The bulletin deals with the symptoms, contagiousness, treatment, dipping, cleaning and disinfecting premises, dipping tanks, etc. It may be obtained from the College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

It has been proved, both experimentally and by the practical work of stockmen, that loco weeds can be destroyed by digging and that the cost of the work is not excessive, says United States Department of Agriculture farmers' bulletin 1054, "The Loco Weed Disease." This bulletin will be of interest especially to stockmen in western Nebraska, for a part of this state lies within the loco-weed belt. The bulletin discusses the extent and cause of loco-weed disease, loco plants, poisoning by loco plants, post-mortem appearances, treatment of locoed animals, and destruction of loco weeds. The bulletin may be obtained free from the College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

Getting Results

Cutting down a tree with a hatchet is no more foolish than to try to deliver all your messages through personal calls. Your telephone is your best messenger and you want it to give you the best service possible.

And that is the service we want to give you, the only service we are satisfied to give you; for we want your support, and that will only come through satisfaction.

To give this service, telephone rates must bring in enough money to maintain the telephone in perfect condition—and enough to pay good employees for good work.

The telephone employees who are serving you have had increases in their wages. These increased wages have to be met by the people who use the telephone, for that is the company's only source of income.
