

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callous. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callous right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

YOUNG GIRLS' FROCKS FOR GRADUATING DAY

Now that May and June are not far off, the world is full of talk about graduation dresses. It is buzzing about like the hum of bees in all the schools and in the homes that are livened by those precious but opinionated high-school girls who are about to complete one lap of their little journey in the world. To each one of them her graduation dress is the most important matter in sight, and it is an important matter from several viewpoints.

Many schools, much to their credit, prescribe definitely what their graduates shall wear, and thus avoid heart-burnings among the girls. A great many others give some general directions as to how dresses shall be made, and let it go at that; while other schools leave the matter to be decided without any restrictions. In the last case a mother is very often called upon to insist on less pretentious frocks than her daughter would select, and she may acquire a few extra gray hairs and deepened wrinkles in carrying her point. But she must carry it or else have her taste in dress discredited.

The graduation dress is to be made of some thin white fabric in a pretty but simple design, and a delightful example appears in the picture above. White voile and narrow white satin ribbon give a good account of themselves in this girlish dress, which employs nothing else (except white satin for a girdle) in its makeup. The voile is gathered into a ribbon at the bottom of the skirt and tacked to an underskirt of lining silk.

Net, organdie, batiste or georgette might be made in the same way.

Another frock employs narrow ribbon and wide tucks in its decoration. It has a full straight skirt, finished at the bottom with three rows of satin ribbon about an inch and a half wide, placed two and a half inches apart. Above them at the knee there are two tucks, three inches wide, with a four-inch space between them, and above these three rows of ribbon again. Ribbon encircles the baby waist and finishes the short sleeves, placed in three rows on them and finally forms a narrow sash with long loops and ends at the front.

New Blouses and Smocks

SO MANY of the latest blouses, now being shown for midsummer wear, have elbow sleeves and very short peplums, that there is no room to doubt that they are proving popular. Designers have great faith in these features in midsummer styles since they are fashioning the most costly laces into them as well as the usual beautiful and refined fabrics used for blouses. Irish lace, combined with flit and a little embroidered or pin-tucked batiste, are the rich ingredients that go to make up the most costly of these blouses for midsummer wear. Often fine voile, with draw-neck or embroidery as an embellishment, takes the place of batiste. In many blouses one or the other of these fabrics predominates, but sometimes they make way for the laces and are merely used to set them together cleverly. Among blouses that are simply lace trimmed or ornamented with needlework, voile is a favorite material.

The lovely blouse shown here, made of crepe georgette and decorated with beads, is a perfect example of the new summer blouse. Its short peplum, cut into four scallops at the bottom, is simply an extension of the body of the blouse. Beads in short strands form a fringe for the peplum and the loosely adjusted girdle is made of the crepe. The sleeves are set in with hemstitching which continues to be the favorite way of disposing of seams in blouses. A smock of crepe de chine shown with the blouse employs beads also for its trimming, but they are used on its skirt much more plentifully than on the body, reversing the order of things in the blouse. This is a slip-over model fastening on the shoulder and having long sleeves. In lighter colors it is very practical for general wear or for traveling. In lighter colors it makes a pretty toilet for summer afternoons worn with white skirts or with light-colored skirts to match. Many smocks have elbow sleeves, but these, not being becoming to some women, find themselves occasionally replaced by long sleeves with cuffs, like those shown in the picture.

Thousands of Women

Owe Their Health To

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine. Compared with it, all other medicines for women's ills seem to be experiments. Why is it so successful? Simply because of its sterling worth. For over forty years it has had no equal. Women for two generations have depended upon it with confidence. Thousands of Their Letters are on our files, which prove these statements to be facts, not mere boasting.

Here Are Two Sample Letters:

Mother and Daughter Helped. Middleburg, Pa. — "I am glad to state that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me much good when I was 35 years old. I was run down with female trouble and was not able to do anything, could not walk for a year and could not work. I had treatment from a physician but did not gain. I read in the papers and books about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. The first few bottles gave me relief and I kept on using it until I got better and was able to do my work. The Vegetable Compound also regulated my daughter when she was 15 years old. I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the best medicine I have ever used." — Mrs. W. YERGER, R. 3, Box 21, Middleburg, Pa.

MARTHA JANE A DIPLOMAT CLOSE STUDENTS OF NATURE

Even Stern Mamma Couldn't Deny She Had Obeyed the Strict Letter of the Law.

Martha Jane's sweet tooth had been indulged so much that her mother had issued the decree, "No more candy," and the remainder of the box had been relegated to the top shelf. A few days ago it was brought down and judiciously apportioned to Martha Jane, for whom a taste spelled more, and even a second taste did not satisfy. When her mother saw her about to take a third helping she remarked, emphatically:

"Now, don't let me see you take another piece."

Presently Mrs. S. — was called from the room, and when she returned she found her four-year-old daughter in the farthest corner of the couch, hastily making way with a nice, plump chocolate cream.

"Martha Jane," said her mother, in her sternest tones, "don't I tell you not to let me see you take another piece of candy?"

"I know you did, mother," said the little diplomat, "but I took this one while you were gone."
